City of Tobolsk.

One of the principal Siberian cities is Tobolsk, the commercial center of the vast province of Tobolsk, which extends over an area of 500,000 square miles, a large portion of which, however, is practically uninhabited. The most prominent building in the city is the Kremlin, built in imitation of the great citadel in Moscow. This structure was erected by Swedish prisoners of war captured by Peter the Great at the battle of Poltava in 1709.

TOO "SANCTIFIED" FOR HER Aunt Lizzie's Reasons for Leaving Her Spouse, and Why She Was Not Grieving.

Aunt Lizzie, comfortably fat, a widow, and nearing middle age, met her late husband in the person of a prosperous negro who owned a plantation and a good home. Her white friends thought she had done unusually well, and were glad. A few short months after the wedding ceremony, however, she came to see a family she had had once cooked for, and when a young member of the group asked about her wealthy spouse, she said: "Law, child, I done left that nigger. Him and me didn't get along a-tal." Surprised, the girl asked: "What on earth was the matter, Aunt Lizzie? I thought you married a fine man with plenty of money." "Had plenty of money, all right," she replied. "Warn't but one thing wrong with him—he was sanctified. You know one of dese here holiness men. Us hadn't been married no time before he told me I warn't as good as him. Said I was onegenerate. Den he stopped me fum drinking coffee—wouldn't let me wear my wedding clothes and said he'd quit me if I ever went near one of dese picture shows. And you know, honey, I loves my coffee, my clothes, and when I comes to town my picture shows. So I up and quits him." "You don't look sad about it," the girl said. "Ain't sad, honey; ain't sad. I got me a lawyer and tuk half dat nigger's plantation way fum him. Guess he wish-ed when I done dat he hadn't been so sanctified."

Young Author Falls Down.

A young author sends me the manuscript of a story. He claims he has a new idea. His "new idea" is this: A young man and woman are married in the usual way, and, during their honeymoon, love each other with great devotion.

But in a year the young man finds he has tired of his wife, from seeing her so much; from too close association. He supposes, of course, that she has not tired of him; such a possibility does not enter his mind. However, he resolves to be a square man and confess to his wife just how he feels. She also talks frankly, and it develops that the wife is as tired of the husband as the husband is of the wife.

I am compelled to report to the young author that this is no development of a new fact in life. E. W. Howe's Monthly.

From Flying to Flying.

Aviation is occupying a great deal of attention in Canada these days. It is highly probable that the helium gas rising out of the ground in Alberta and other parts of western Canada and used in parts of the country for family cooking will one day be carrying the English lighter-than-air flying machines, says Motor Life. It has been reported that there is enough of this gas to supply the entire British empire for many years. It takes only 10 per cent of the weight-supporting ability of the highly inflammable hydrogen and is equally satisfactory.

Many seas and many lands contribute their best food stuffs to make ours the leading grocery store in this city.

French waters supply us with sardines, Spanish seas give us mackerel, the Columbia river offers salmon; California donates her luscious fruits; Indian gives her teas, Japan and Ceylon their teas, Brazil her coffees and Arabia dates—the whole world helps to make ours the leading grocery.
