BUTTONS FROM OUR RIVERS

Pearl Mussel Fisheries Are a Flourishing and Very Interesting Industry.

It should be remembered that in addition to their food value fishes are necessary in our rivers if we are to perpetuate the pearl button industry of the country, which employs some twenty thousand people and yields a product valued at more than $5,000,000.

When the young mussels, which are of microscopic size, are thrown off from the brood patches of their parents at the proper season, the larval mussels slowly drift to the bottom and perish in a few days' time unless they come in contact with a passing fish of suitable kind and succeed in making attachment. Once this attachment is made, the tissue of the fish grows over the little mussel, until it has undergone a remarkable change of form and structure; then it drops from the fish to commence its independent life at the bottom of the stream or lake.

It is a further fact that the young of particular kinds of mussels require the gills of particular kinds of fishes as nurseries. The black bass is host for several sorts of mussels, while the kippick, a kind of herring, is the only known host for the best of all mussels. As this last mentioned fish is far from being abundant in American rivers, it is plain that much care should be exercised in its maintenance.

The mussel fishery that supplies the fresh water pearl button industry is actively conducted in at least twenty states in the Mississippi river basin. The raw production of shells now has a value of about $1,000,000. The fresh water pearl button is now recognized as among the cheapest durable buttons that can be procured. The mussel beds have been rapidly depleted, chiefly because the fishermen in past years would retain only the very best shells and discard as culls all shells that were of an inferior grade.

Necessary action in the way of government legislation to protect the mussel fisheries has been so long delayed that this unique and rather important industry is now sure to experience considerable difficulty in perpetuating itself.—Floyd W. Parsons, in the Saturday Evening Post.

WHERE BOARD IS NOW CHEAP

Girls in the Mission Schools in China Pay Only $18 Year for Their Meals.

It is refreshing in these days of high prices to learn that somewhere it is possible to get one's daily bread and its accompaniments at a low figure. The place is China—Tengchow, in the province of Shantung. There, in the mission school, a girl may have three meals a day for $18 a year.

The menu sounds strange to the school girl of the western world, but to the Chinese student it is highly satisfactory. Steamed corn bread and raw turnips that have been kept in brine and then chopped quite fine compose the regulation breakfast almost all the year. For dinner there is usually millet cooked dry like rice, and some hot vegetable. Twice a week the vegetable is cooked with fat pork instead of in bean oil as usual. Supper is the same as breakfast. Perhaps half a dozen times a year, however, they celebrate with more luxurious fare.—Christian Science Monitor.

REMEMBER to ask your grocer for Calumet Baking Powder and be sure that you get it—the Indian Head on the orange label.

Then forget about bake day failures. For you will never have any. Calumet always produces the sweetest and most palatable foods.

It never varies in quality—And now remember, you always use less than of most other brands because it possesses greater leavening strength.

Now Remember—Always Use

CALUMET BAKING POWDER

There is no waste. If a recipe calls for one egg—two cups of flour—half a cup of milk—that's all you use. You never have to re-bake.

Calumet is absolutely sure. In any baking—any time, whether the can has just been opened or whether it is the last spoonful.

Contains only such ingredients as have been officially approved by U. S. Food Authorities—and is the product of the largest, most modern and sanitary Baking Powder Factories in existence.

A pound can of Calumet contains full 16 oz. Some baking powders come in 12 oz. cans instead of 16 oz. cans. Be sure you get a pound when you want it.
