FINISH OFF FEEDERS EARLY

No Class of Cattle Yet Produced More Suitable for Market Demands Than Baby Beef.

Feeders show an increasing tendency toward finishing off their beef cattle at younger ages. In general this tendency is created by two causes: First, consumers are demanding small, high-quality cuts of meat; second, the cost of producing beef, due to advance in land values, feeds, labor and taxes, has increased to such an extent that feeders and breeders can seldom hold their cattle to advanced ages at a profit. General conditions in the past few years have indicated that no class of beef yet produced more nearly fulfills the requirements of both producer and consumer than baby beef, and the feeding of baby beef has been increasing in popularity.

In the early days of the cattle industry steers were kept on the range until from three to five years of age. The use of better bulls with consequent improvement in quality and early maturity of cattle, together with heavier grain feeding, has made it possible to put just as much flesh on the animals by the time they are from 10 to 20 months of age. With improvements in breeding and in feed-lot methods heavier cattle with more quality may in time be put on the market at even a younger age. The precise age at which steers should be marketed depends upon several conditions which must be determined by the individual feeder.

CUT OFF PIGS' SHARP TUSKS

Quite Often These Teeth Lacerate Sow's Teats and She Won't Let Youngsters Suck.

Pigs are born with four sharp hard tusks, two above and two below. Take a pair of nippers—you can find them at almost any hardware store—and cut the four sharp tusks off, not too near the gums. Quite often these tusks cut the sow's teats, make them sore and she will not let the pigs suck. Then, also, the pigs cut themselves with these tusks, and sometimes stick them through their tongue and cannot suck, and starve. They often cause sore mouth. Be sure to cut them off. They are soft and easily removed. A pair of sharp scissors will do. Do not try to pull them out, but cut them off.

If you see a pig that is getting too fat, you will know it is robbing its milks. To prevent this, take a sharp knife and cut its rooster in two or three places, deep enough to make it sore, and it will stop it.

CARING FOR WEANING LAMBS

If to Be Kept for Breeding Purposes They Should Be Put in Good, Fresh Pasture.

If lambs are sold from three to five months of age they may run with their dams until that time. The lambs to be kept for breeding purposes should be weaned at the same time and put on fresh pastures where there is no danger of stomach worms. When the weaning is done at this time the ewes can be put in better condition for the fall breeding. Ram lambs left in the flock worry the ewes and may get some of them in lamb. When lambs are to be kept on the farm the best method of weaning is to leave them on the old pasture for three or four days and remove the ewes to a scanty pasture to check their milk flow. As soon as the lambs cease fretting for their dams they may be moved to fresh pastures where the ewes have not been. Ewes with large udders should be partially milked once every three days until they go dry.

ADVICE FOR GOOD BREEDERS

Interest in Nation-Wide Effort to Improve Domestic Animals is Quite Noticeable.

Bulletins on breeding, feeding and farm management are requested to a noticeable extent by persons enrolling in the "Better Sires—Better Stock" movement. The interest in the nationwide effort to improve the quality of domestic animals and the evident desire of live-stock owners to obtain dependable information has caused experts of the United States department of agriculture to conclude that good breeders are good readers, and vice versa.
