AUTUMN PARTY.

"We must give a party for the Autumn Paint club," said Jack Frost.

"We must indeed," said Master Chilly.

"Let us have one," said all of the Frost Brothers together.

"Ah, yes, let us have one," said Master Heavy Frost, and Master Very Cool said:

"By all means, let us have a party."

"We will decorate all the windows and nip the flowers and dance over the lawns and bushes," said Jack Frost.

"For we want plenty of decorations for our party. And we will all give the party and come to the party and enjoy the party, for we are the Autumn Paint club members."

They agreed to have the party that very night.

"You take the lead, Jack Frost," they said, "and as soon as you tell us what we must do, we will off and do it."

"We will go wherever you say. And we will gladly do our work, for our work is our play."

"They call a day that is not far off," said Master Heavy Frost. "Thanksgiving day. It seems they're all thankful that day, or rather they stop that day and think of all they have to be thankful for."

"They think of all sorts of things, such as how nice it is they live in beautiful places, where they have such good times and where there are many things to do.

"Our Magic Paint Brushes."

"And they're thankful they're warm and have lots to eat, and they're thankful that when it is summer time they often have ice cream."

"They're thankful, too, that they have people to love them—mothers and fathers, and so forth."

"And turkeys do not mind being eaten on Thanksgiving day, for they consider it quite an honor to be taken as the special food of such a fine and special occasion."

"But I say," Master Heavy Frost continued, "that we, too, celebrate our Thanksgiving day."

"We, too, should celebrate it, for we can. Listen to my plan."

"Let us hear it," said Master Very Cool.

"I'd like to hear it," said Master Chilly.

"And so would I," said the other Frost Brothers.

"Do tell it to us at once," said Jack Frost. "I am eager to hear."

"Well," said Master Heavy Frost. "It doesn't matter if we celebrate Thanksgiving day a little before or a little after the day, as long as we celebrate it."

"We should celebrate it, for we have a great deal to be thankful for."

"In the first place, we come around every autumn and have a great many fine parties. This is just one of many, many fine parties."

"And we enjoy life so much!"

"We paint beautiful pictures, and enjoy it so. We nip the flowers and dance over the lawns and bushes and enjoy doing that."

"Ah, we have beautiful times, and we should be thankful for them."

"And then I believe the squirrels and the chipmunks would come to our Thanksgiving party, and the boys and girls agree that we do a good work, for we see that the nuts are right for them to gather in the autumn."

"Yes, Chippy Chippy and Bright Eyes and Nutty Chum will all enjoy the nuts, and that will be their Thanksgiving party."

"Let's call our Autumn party a Thanksgiving party and let us all be thankful that we come in the autumn on the still, cool nights."

"And, too, that we are allowed to play and work with our magic paint brushes and that no one stops us, but that we, too, can have a little season of the year all of our own."

"What does everyone else say who is a member of the Autumn Paint club?"

"We all agree that it's a fine, a marvelous, a wonderful idea," they shouted.

"Then for our party, our party of joy and work and play, where we tell how thankful we are for our time of the year, for the time of dear old Jack Frost and his brothers and his workers!"

Terrible.

"Tell me, Mr. Wombat, of your early struggles."

"Well, my mother says they were terrible when she wanted to scrub my ears."—American Boy.

Berkshires are a splendid type because they are a large and healthy pig.

Crude oil, applied on the back of the hogs with a brush will kill the lice.

Save the best gilts and breed them to a good boar. This is the best method of building up a good producing herd.
