THE CHAMPION OF THE RING

When Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier face each other in the ring tomorrow, the people of two continents will await with interest the outcome of the encounter. It is France pitted against the United States, not in a hostile manner, but in a friendly way, in which the lovers of the sport in each country are strong behind the representative of their nation. In each case, the fighter represents the best in brawn and the science of the ring that has been produced in his respective country. The interest exhibited of late years in boxing is not an interest that has sprung up suddenly, but is one that has been created by the love of clean sportsmanship. Years ago the first boxing matches were of a brutal type, which could not possibly appeal to the sporting instinct. Years of careful supervision and regulation have made the sport as clean as is conceivable. Yet there are a few, as in any sport, who would prostitute their sport for a few dollars. It is true that the fixing of contests has been practiced. Whenever it has been shown that a man did not play square he has fallen into disapproval in the public eye. Few men, with a title in view, will take a chance of having the public turn against them. A champion is a favorite only as long as he plays the game squarely. Tomorrow when the representatives of two of the most powerful nations on earth answer the gong, it is to be hoped that they give all they have and more. One or the other will be hailed as the premier fighter of the world. They should earn the right to bear the title by their own prowess and not by the fixing of a contest.

Coon to Direct Singing

Leland A. Coon, of the school of music of the University of Oregon, has been engaged to direct the singing tomorrow at the annual Farm Bureau picnic. Mr. Coon was engaged after an accident had happened to Dr. Polling which prevents his appearance here. He is at present engaged in Chautauqua work in Ashland. A large crowd is expected to be present at the picnic, more having stated their intention of attending this year than last, when over 500 were in attendance. The picnic will start at 10 in the morning and continue throughout the day. The picnic dinner at noon will be the big event of the day.

Many Bids Will Be Made

It is expected that a large number of bids will be made for the contract for the construction of the caves highway. A message this morning from Portland states that 15 firms have signified their intention of entering bids, while there are still others here who will seek the work. The bids will be opened next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock in Portland.

Road Widening Progresses

The work of widening the Pacific highway from the Jackson county line to the city limits is progressing in good shape, says C. J. Seymour, of the firm of Grieves and Seymour, which has the contract for the work. Mr. Seymour states that they expect to have the work done by July 15. They will also enter a bid for the work on the highway to the caves.

Steelheads Take Fly

The steelheads are beginning to take a little interest now in the offerings of the fishermen, according to Bob Moser, who managed to catch one and hooked two others last night. The one he caught weighed about 2 1/2 pounds. He was fishing at the mouth of the Applegate, using a Governor fly. Fishermen who plan spending the Fourth on the river can probably catch some cutthroats in the deeper holes on crawfish, provided the big fellows do not fall for the lure of the fly.

The lowest temperature for the month was recorded on the night of June 11, when the mercury fell to 43 degrees.

How Eskimos Trap Wolves.

Wolves make deadly ravages among the dogs and reindeer of the Eskimo. But the Eskimo now captures wolves in large numbers by means of big hut-like traps made of ice. The front of the hut, which is of ice, slides up and down. Inside the hut is a joint of raw meat, suspended by a piece of rope to the sliding front, and when a wolf tears down the meat the front drops into place and he is caught.
