Grand Matron Visits

Reames Chapter No. 56, of Medford, and from Ashland chapter, were present among whom was Sister Nellie McGowan from Reames chapter, a past worthy grand matron of the state of Oregon.

Josephine chapter was pleased to have neighboring chapter members present on this happy occasion.

Brother Cass, in behalf of Josephine chapter, presented Sister Letson with a beautiful hanging basket filled with the season's flowers and her most gracious response given was appreciated.

After regular work the members led by Worthy Grand Matron Mrs. Letson and Patron of Josephine Chapter, Clyde E. Niles, and the visiting sisters and brothers, marched to the banquet room, the large company grouped about a charmingly decorated table, prepared in honor of the distinguished guest.

During the social hours around the tables, a committee served delicious ice cream and angel food cake.

"How happy Grandma would be" to see these so beautifully white! Since we've used Citrus all that grayish tinge has been taken out of them."

IN homes where the family linens are cherished not alone for their intrinsic value but for their history and associations, too, they are kept at their best with Citrus.

Citrus whitens as well as cleans. As an experienced housekeeper puts it, "it takes the dead, gray look from white clothes and makes them seem newer." The lemon content of Citrus contributes to this quality, serving as a harmless bleach.

Citrus is mild, though exceptionally effective. And there is nothing better for delicate laces, lingerie, silk stockings, and other dainty, fragile things. It really adds to the life of fine fabrics because of the ease with which they are cleaned. And the blandness and purity of Citrus insure them against the wear and tear of harsh laundering soaps and powders.

If you have not been using Citrus in the laundry for all washing you have been overlooking its most useful qualities.

Put Citrus to the test the very next washday and you'll be most pleasantly surprised at the results achieved and with its economy.
