BARGAIN DAY

Once a year the merchants of Grants Pass will hold their annual Bargain Day and Spring Opening. This year the date is March 24, next Saturday. Invitations have been sent to every resident in the Grants Pass trade area, residing outside the city limits. The day is to be given over to a fostering of better relationships between the merchant and his patron and also to showing the visitors that there is no need to patronize mail order houses to find goods at bargain prices.
Bargain Day is not a day for the country people only. In the spring opening, the merchants will show their latest goods and their displays will all be new, for the windows will be dressed on Friday night. A chance is given to see the latest styles and to get really bargains. The merchants deserve all the cooperation possible in the furthering of their plans for it is on the outside trade that the city must depend.
All stores taking part in the bargain day will be distinguished by their red tags. The merchants displaying these have shown their enterprise in inaugurating the bargain day and spring opening. A red tag means a real bargain.
The railing on the Sixth street bridge which was damaged when a car went through the side is still missing. This makes the approach to the bridge extremely dangerous for there is absolutely nothing to prevent a small child from walking through. The railing is gone for quite a distance on this side of bridge and should be made safe.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL
Mrs. Andrew Butts was a Murphy caller in the city today.
Mr. and Mrs. E. Conson were here today from Kerby, shopping and attending to business matters.

Has Toe Removed—
L. F. Nicholson, of Glendale, is at the Good Samaritan hospital following an operation performed by Dr. Loughridge, requiring the amputation of the second toe of the left foot. Mr. Nicholson will be able to use his foot soon.

Rogue River to Clean Up—
Real community spirit is to become evident in Rogue River tomorrow afternoon when the citizens of that town put on a cleanup campaign. The business houses are closing and the school children are to be dismissed in the afternoon to allow all to participate in the drive against unsightly places within the city. In the evening at 6 o'clock a dinner will be served to those taking part at the community hall. An excellent program has been arranged for the evening.

Makes Home Here—
John Bennet, a very prominent and highly respected citizen of Canton, Ill., has recently arrived in Grants Pass and expects to remain. Mr. Bennet was a candidate for mayor of Canton at the election last spring, and was a member of a prominent business house of that city. Friends of Mr. Bennet, the Chas. Gordon and Stralace families of this city, were instrumental in winning him for the west, and he is at present the manager of Oaklake farms several miles west of the city, the property of A. H. Gunnell. Mrs. Bennet and three children, Maxine, Jack and Stanley are in the city and are charmed with their new home in the west. The Bennets are people well worth knowing, and are the kind of citizens Grants Pass wants more of.

Daily News Letter
Gossip of Staff Correspondents at World Centers of Population

Washington, Mar. 21.—(I. N. S.)—These are quiet days in the national capital.

After nearly two years of continuous activity at both ends of Pennsylvania avenue, the capitol and the White House are deserted and their occupants are scattered to the four corners of the earth.

In the chambers of the senate and the house of representatives, mahogany desks are gathering dust while the big corridors echo to occasional footsteps as some legislator wanders through the familiar halls trying to work up enough courage to go back home and tell his constituents why he did this or why he failed to do something else.

Only a few servants occupy the executive mansion itself, but at the White House offices a clerk or two is on duty to handle the correspondence that comes to the president in a daily flood, despite the absence of himself and his congress.

While President Harding is golfing in Florida (and incidentally lending a score of Washington newspaper correspondents a merry chase through the marshes bordering the Indian River), Secretary of State Hughes is sitting on the lid in the capital.

Officially and technically, he is in supreme command of all the government that remains in Washington, but the government has a happy faculty of being able to almost run itself, so the secretary of state has little to do outside of his own department.

The suggestion was made just before the president left he said that Hughes would have authority to call a cabinet meeting, but the secretary lost no time in backing out, reminding his colleagues that Robert Lansing tried that once when Woodrow Wilson was out of town and that the venture was one of the things leading up to Lansing's resignation. So there is likely to be no cabinet meetings until the president gets back.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon is also on the job and has been occupied chiefly with putting the finishing touches on the contract under which the United States is going to collect nearly five billion dollars from Great Britain.

There has been very little activity at the department of justice for many weeks, as Attorney General Daugherty has been so seriously ill that he could not leave his apartment. But with the attorney-general actually out of town, the government's judicial machinery has slowed down more than ever. The war frauds division, however, which operates almost as an independent agency, is still continuing its investigation and prosecutions.

Harry E. New, of Indiana, left the capital almost as soon as the ink began to get dry on the commission which made him a member of President Harding's cabinet. Within 36 hours after he took the oath as postmaster general he was on his way to his home in Indianapolis to attend a big reception in his honor.

Dr. Hubert Work, who was moved from the postoffice to the interior department to make way for Senator New, is so busy learning all about his new job that he hasn't time to get away.
Theodore Roosevelt is running the navy department while Secretary Denby attends the war games in Panama. The trip to Panama was made on the Henderson, Denby taking along a big party of senators, congressmen and newspapermen as his guests.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Secretary of Labor Davis are still in Washington, as is Secretary of Commerce Hoover, though Hoover plans to make a trip to the West as soon as possible to check up on the development of the Colorado River basin.

This is the open season for congressional junkets. Besides the navy trip to Panama, which includes stops at a number of cities in the West Indies, there are a number of government tours which offer entertainment for senators and congressmen who want to see the world.

When he returns from Florida Secretary of War Weeks will take members of the military affairs committees of the senate and the house through the Panama Canal to San Francisco, Alaska and Honolulu. The only objection to this trip is that Weeks will turn his guests loose on the Pacific coast and let them get home any way they can.

A senate committee, headed by Senator McCormick, of Illinois, will tour the Mississippi river from its source to New Orleans. The object of the McCormick investigation is to collect data so that congress may proceed intelligently with legislation to make more of the river navigable.

Senator McNary, of Oregon, as chairman of a committee on reforestation, will visit most of the forest lands in the United States from Florida to Oregon.

LONG-HANDLED NET IS HANDY

Matter of Capturing Chicken for Family Dinner Made Easy With Device Illustrated.

Who has not seen the farmer, his wife, the hired man and one or more children engaged in the exciting chase for the chicken which is to be served for the family dinner. All around the yard, over the fence, under the barn, through the garden, until somebody luckily falls upon it. An easier way is to make a long-handled net, using a sound, well-made barrel hoop. An old hammock makes a fine net for this purpose. The net should be about two feet deep. Lay it down, mouth up, put a few grains of corn on top, pretend you are looking the other way, and when a chicken steps on the net to pick out the corn, lift up suddenly, tip it slightly to one side, and you have the fowl safe. If you are particularly expert the net may be dropped down over the bird.

HEAD LICE INJURE TURKEYS

Grayish White Louse is Most Serious of All Parasites—Matted Lard Kills Parasites.

Turkeys, ducks and geese are more easily killed by the head lice than are other kinds of farm fowls. The lice are only one of the six or eight forms which bother poultry, but a single head louse has been known to kill a turkey. It is a grayish white louse, and the most serious of them all.
For treatment, dip the tip of the finger in melted lard and rub this well around the comb. Dip again and rub back of the ear, repeating for the other ear, the bill and jaw. This does not give the head a greasy appearance, but is enough to destroy the lice. A few drops of kerosene, carbolic acid or stock dip may be added to the lard, to make it more effective. The bird should be kept in a warm place for a couple of hours after this treatment has been given.

LIME SUPPLY FOR CHICKENS

Experiments Have Demonstrated That Other Minerals Will Not Take Its Place.

Feeding experiments with poultry conducted over a number of years in which an effort was made to substitute other mineral elements for lime in the ration are said to have demonstrated that other minerals will not take the place of lime and that if this element is lacking in the food the demands of the body will be met by drawing on the lime stored up in the bones and muscles of the fowl. It was also found that both lime and phosphorus are more easily taken from the bones of the living animal than from dead bone ash fed to the animal.

TANK HEATERS ARE FAVORED

When Milk Cows Are Watered Infrequently It Is Poor Policy to Supply Ice Water.

When a cow drinks water, her body at once sets to work raising it, if necessary, to the same temperature as exists normally in the body. In order to warm the water taken in, heat is just as necessary as it is to warm a kettle of water on the stove.

To provide the heat necessary, the blood and internal organs give up a portion of their supply until more is supplied from food previously consumed. As the milk cow is a heavy consumer of water, much heat is required to warm it. Consequently when cows are allowed to drink water that
