THE REDWOOD ROUTE

The Redwood highway is again brought to the forefront by the silence of the state highway commission regarding their plans for this project. The local delegation appeared before the body and presented their request for work on the road this spring so that the incoming tourist will be greeted with good roads.

Although no promise was given that work would be undertaken on the highway the local delegation feels that the situation is hopeful. Some interest was shown in the matter of building a new bridge over the Illinois river. This is taken as an indication that the commission does not intend to forget the Redwood route.

The highway is too near completed now for the highway commission to disregard it. The increasing popularity, especially around the bay region, of the loop trip up the coast, over to this city, and then back over the Pacific highway, will bring a large number of tourists here via that route. California and Oregon have both signified their intention of putting the finishing touches on the road but one seems to be waiting for the other to make the first move.

The completing of the road is certain. It is only a matter of when it shall be done. This community is interested in as early a realization of their hopes as possible. It means much to the southern part of the state as a means of easy transportation of the products of the vicinity to the coast. It will benefit the entire state through the increased prosperity of this section and through the aiding of tourist travel into Oregon.

The commission should realize the necessity for rushing this work. But it can be borne in mind that Josephine county is not going to lay down on the job until a first class highway connects Southern Oregon and the coast.

Real Music "As You Like It"

Do your own playing! It's so much more fun than to have others do it for you. To go to your Gul-bransen—and actually play—gives you a real sense of accomplishment!
It interests—satisfies! It is one of the most delightful experiences imaginable!

Delightful because Gulbransen music is so expressive! So full of feeling—so full of life—you take a personal pride in producing it!

Accented, for instance. That's important! For in any piece you play there's a strain of "melody" you must pick out and accent properly, to give it a pleasing rendition.

But, where are the melody notes?
In what part of the keyboard do they occur? With the ordinary player-piano that's a real problem. But by observing the Melody Indicator—a simple and convenient little patented guide—you know where the melody notes are, and just where to accent them, on the Gulbransen!

JOURNALISTIC FAIRNESS

The good newspaper seeks to be the friend of the whole city in which it is published, and to give fair treatment to all interests. But it will often happen in any newspaper office, that some person representing some organization or other interest, will complain because his society has not been given as much space as some other. Such people who feel thus disappointed might ask a few questions about the nature of the matter that they seek to have published. Some organizations take more pains than others to present real news and have it come in a form which will be interesting to the general public. One church, for instance, may offer a lot of notices that have little news value. There is the report that a certain society will meet on a certain day, another society on another day, and so on.
Those notices are not likely to have much news value except to the members of those societies, and those members may know when such meetings take place. Another church will take pains to have its notices written out so that they are readable.
There are reports of the definite things that societies are doing, the names of the people who are doing the things, and so on. Some societies wait until just before time of publication to get their notices in, others get them in promptly. Naturally some get more space than others.
Newspapers are issued for the publication of news, events, and opinions. Unless an item or article comes under one of these three heads, it is not as a rule adapted for newspaper use, except for advertising. Almost any human activity can be written up in a way to come under these three classes of copy, and those who seek newspaper space should study how to make their stuff such as to interest the general public.—Rooseburg

LOCAL MAN IS FIFTH IN POULTRY RAISING

The flock of White Leghorn chickens owned by Alva Hammond, just below town, stood fifth in the state wide poultry farm plan for the month of November. These demonstration farms are conducted by H.
E. Cosby, poultry specialist of the extension service, O. A. C., through the county agents in the various counties, and includes some 40 flocks over the state. Mr. Hammond's flock of 206 averaged 12 eggs per bird during the month of November, while the 18,326 hens over the state averaged 7.57 eggs.
The 20 highest flocks had an average of 10.16 eggs. The highest flock is owned by a farmer in Deschutes county and had an average of 17.23 eggs.

Some interesting figures are brought out by Mr. Cosby in his monthly summary, which shows that the average production of the 20 highest flocks in November 1923 was 33.9 and in November, 1922, 27.9.
The average production of all flocks in the demonstration plan in November, 1923, was 25.2 and in 1922, 21.
These figures go to show something of the general improvement being carried through this demonstration farm plan. The average flock contains 455 birds and requires 3 1/2 hours of daily labor during the month.

A new poultry house bulletin has been prepared which gives building plans and bill of materials for the O. A. C. 400 hen house. This bulletin includes pictures and chart of interior and exterior and should be of great deal of assistance to those contemplating a new poultry house.
Copies may be obtained at the county agent's office. This is particularly timely with Mr. Cosby's statements regarding vigor and its relation to housing.

housing.

"One of the most difficult problems in poultry keeping is that of maintaining the health and vigor of laying fowls. There are many factors that are constantly at work, which will wreck the vitality of the flock, unless the owner counteracts their efforts through a foresighted system of good management. Improper feeding of growing stock; crowding growing chicks into stuffy brooder and range houses; roosting pullets on contaminated soil; houses and fowls becoming infested with parasites; are a few factors that sooner or later show up in a loss of vigor. Breeding hens forced under lights for heavy production; eggs of all grades set to supply a volume demand; crowding breeders; denying them free range; use of immature and low vitality males, are factors which will be met in some future generation in the form of lower vitality and vigor. When vigor is lost all is lost."

"Housing has considerable to do with the health and vigor of poultry.
Houses for poultry are artificial conditions and each poultryman should protect the health and vigor of his flock by constructing houses that have been tried out and proven satisfactory in meeting the needs of poultry. It is folly for every poultry keeper to experiment with some notion relative to a poultry house. The poultry house is indeed the home of the hen. There are too many unsatisfactory poultry houses in Oregon today—too many that do not meet conditions."
