Funeral Services Tuesday

Funeral services for Mrs. Nannie F. Clements, mother of Mrs. E. H. Wise, will be held at the Presbyterian church on Tuesday afternoon, April 22, at 2 o'clock. Interment will be in the I. O. O. F. cemetery.

Couple Married Sunday

James Norman Wade and Mrs. Georgia Mansfield were married yesterday at the home of the bride's daughter, Mrs. C. A. Williams, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Both are well known local people. Mr. Wade being a veteran of the Civil War and an active worker in the G. A. R. The ceremony was performed by Rev. O. J. Law. Members of the family were seated at a wedding dinner following the ceremony.

Wine Essay Contest

Miss Marian Hood, a freshman at the high school, won the Golden Rule essay contest, on "Why I Like to Buy My Shoes at the Golden Rule." A large number of essays were submitted to the contest head, each being limited to 150 words. Miss Hood received a pair of shoes for her prize. The contest was open to all high school students. Her essay will be printed in the next issue of the Golden Rule store news.

Lecture Place Changed

The lecture on fire protection and prevention given by Albert Welschinger, of Portland, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Rivoli theatre instead of Tuesday night at the high school as originally planned. All school children will be especially requested to be present at the talk as it is a matter of education. Everybody is invited to attend the meeting which will be illustrated. "Dad" Danlop, Rivoli manager, has donated the use of the theatre for the occasion in order to cooperate in the fire prevention week which starts today.

EASTER OBSERVANCE GOOD

All Churches of the City Are Filled For Special Services

Large crowds were attracted Sunday by the Easter services at the various city churches, each reporting that its capacity was taxed to the utmost to care for those who went there to worship. It was probably the best Easter observance ever known in Grants Pass. Sunrise services at the Presbyterian, Christian and Methodist churches by the young people drew forth large crowds, the Christian church reporting an especially large attendance. At the morning services the attendance of all of the churches was declared highly gratifying to the pastors who view the increased interest in church affairs with much satisfaction. The vesper services at the Presbyterian church drew a large attendance as did the musical program at the Newman M. E. church. The Baptist church reports a big day. Eight new members received their hand of fellowship at the morning service and 10 more were baptised in the evening. A substantial East or missionary offering was raised at the Presbyterian church, 35 new members were received into the church. The Knights Templar attended the Methodist church in a body for the morning services. The Catholic church and other denominations held attractive special services with record attendance at all.

Bar Association Meets

The Jackson and Josephine County Bar Association will hold another big banquet and academic meeting at the Hotel Medford, on the evening of April 26th. This gathering is at the invitation and expense of the Medford attorneys, and promises to be one of the best get-together meetings the bar has ever had. Don Newbury, of Medford, is chairman of the committee on program and arrangements. John McCourt, member of the Oregon supreme court has agreed to be present, and Robert Kuykendall also. The evening will be started off with a big banquet, and after this will be the holding of a mock court, which promises a laugh for all. Then will come the business meeting.—Medford Sun.

Get Deer Meat

Inmates of the county farm were treated to a feast of deer meat yesterday when a yearling deer was killed by the engine on train No. 14 near Jackson's Hot Springs. Deputy Game Warden Roy Parr was called to the accident by J. T. Sawyer, an S. P. brakeman, who was deadheading his way home to Talent on the northbound passenger. Parr skinned the animal, which he declared was in good condition, gave Sawyer a portion and took the remainder to the county farm. This is the second deer to have been killed within two weeks near Ashland under the same circumstances, though unfortunately the first accident was not reported to authorities and the meat was wasted.—Ashland Tidings.

Community Building

Building Your Home Starts Thrift Habit

Home building is an ideal plan for saving and earning money. Financial obligations, like insurance premiums and home building payment, must be met, and consequently a determined effort will be made to meet them once they are incurred.

Plainly speaking, home building is a business. It is a business of saving and investing money for safe, sure returns. It does not involve risks if you go at it in a businesslike way. And home building will net you a profit just as any other business should, depending upon the good judgment and sound management you use in conducting your home building operation.

Once you satisfy yourself that home building and owning is the logical and economical thing to do, you should not hesitate to take the step because of the financial obligations home building requires.

It is wrong to believe that home financing is a yoke of everlasting indebtedness. It is really the beginning of a savings and thrift campaign. Home building has started thousands of people with limited incomes on the road to independence—people who under ordinary circumstances might never have built a bank account or accumulated enough savings to make any substantial investment.

Aside from the real joy and satisfaction that come from building and owning a home of your own, there is the added profit which comes through acquiring the thrift habit—a money-saving habit to meet home financing payments.

Few people are infallible when it comes to habits. Suppose you start a bank account with no stated obligation to meet; you grow careless and use your money for other and immediate purposes. On the other hand, payments on a home must be met at a stipulated time, and the home owner takes every means to meet them.

Study School Health

Parents and teachers are beginning to realize the importance of attending to health needs of children before they are old enough to go to school. They are learning that if the foundations of physical and mental health are laid during the preschool period, much of the remedial work that now constitutes the major part of school health work in many localities will be unnecessary, says the United States bureau of education, announcing a reading course for parents, entitled "Pathways to Health." This course suggests about 40 recent books covering a few of the fundamentals of child health in a form easily understood. Among the topics treated are: "How to Judge the Child's Physical Condition," "The School Lunch," "The Preschool Child," "Sex and Health" and "Community Responsibility." Applications for this course should be addressed to the United States Bureau of Education, Washington, D. C.

Dental Clinic in School

Pupils of the public schools of Montclair, N. J., may receive dental treatment at a clinic which is open every school day from 9 to 11:30 a. m. To pay the running expenses of the clinic, a flat rate of 25 cents is collected from each child. The dentist, who has his own city practice outside of clinic hours, receives a salary of $1,800 a year for his work at the clinic. In the course of a survey of 2,710 children it was found that more than half of them required no dental work. Of the 1,034 who needed treatment, 496 were sent to the clinic. Most of the others were taken by their parents to their own dentists. The school nurses, principals and room teachers follow up the work closely to see that the children take care of their teeth.

The Communal Spirit

Edward Penfield, the famous artist, has rid Pelham village of mosquitoes, and a lady congratulated him on his feat at a recent dinner party. "How did you do it?" she asked. "By awaking a communal spirit," said Mr. Penfield. "Most people act towards the community as Smith acted towards Jones. "Smith and Jones, you know, had a talk over the telephone. It went like this: "Hello! That you, Smith? "Sure thing." "Well, this is Jones." "Hello, Jones! How's the boy? "Fine. Say, Smith—" "Well? "Say, Smith, can you lend me—" "I'll call you up again, sir, as soon as he comes in."

City Has Natural Sewers

Bowling Green, Ky., which is built on a limestone formation that includes countless connected subterranean passages, has no trouble or expense in the upkeep of sewers. When a man with a new house wishes to connect with a sewer he merely digs down a few feet until he finds a fissure, turns a stream of water into the opening to clear it of obstructions, and then joins his waste pipe to it. The sewage finds an outlet in the river.—Youth's Companion.
