Gloria Swanson Now Playing In "Manhandled" at Rivoli

The title of Gloria Swanson's latest Paramount picture, that is having its first local showing at the Rivoli Theatre, itself intrigues the imagination and arouses an all-consuming desire to see what it's all about. "Manhandled" is the dynamic name of Gloria's brand new starring vehicle and the ever-gorgeous Miss Swanson proves conclusively that she is one of the most versatile stars of the picture world.

In the story, which is by Arthur Stringer and adapted by Frank Tuttle, Gloria has the role of a shop girl in a New York department store, who climbs the social ladder, getting furs, expensive jewelry, and everything, but after reaching dangerous heights finds out that honest love is best in the long run.

Tom Moore heads an all-star supporting cast, having the role of John Hogan, garage mechanic by day and taxi cab driver by night. The picture was directed by Allan Dwan, who injected several unique touches that will delight and amaze the most blasé movie fan.

MONUMENT TO FIRST PREACHER

Towns of Black Hills Honor "Preacher Smith."

Stour Falls, S. D.—Elaborate exercises marked the dedication of a monument to Rev. Henry Weston Smith, known as "Preacher" Smith, who was the first "sky pilot" to enter the Black Hills after the discovery of gold. The monument, which was erected with funds contributed by the people of the different cities and towns in the Black Hills, stands near the exact spot, three miles from Deadwood, where "Preacher" Smith was killed by Indians on August 20, 1876.

At the time of being killed he was on his way from Deadwood to Crook City, a town of the district, to preach. It was a curious coincidence that "Preacher" Smith and "Wild Bill" Hickok—men representing the two extremes of society—should die violent deaths in the same month, "Wild Bill" having been assassinated by John McCall on August 2, 1876, while seated with other men in a Deadwood saloon playing cards.

"Preacher" Smith lived in a log cabin in Deadwood, and before departing for his ill-fated trip to Crook City he had written the following words on a card, which he fastened to his cabin door: "Gone to Crook City to preach, and if God is willing, will be back at three o'clock."

Killed by Indians.

He never returned alive, for at about 10 o'clock that morning he was killed by Sioux Indians on the top of what was known as Big Hill, over which the crude road to Crook City wended its way. Information of the killing of the "sky pilot" created intense excitement among the rough-and-ready element then making up the population of the young Deadwood, which at the time was termed the wildest mining camp in the world.

A posse was quickly formed by heavily armed men, who started out to punish the Indians. Members of the posse had several skirmishes with the Sioux raiders that same afternoon, killing several of them, but themselves losing five of their men. When members of the posse made their way back to Deadwood, where the body of the slain "sky pilot" had been taken, they found "Calamity Jane," a noted frontier woman, and "Kitty" Arnold, a familiar character in Deadwood in the early days, laying out the body of the dead clergyman in his cabin for burial. "Calamity Jane" said, with tears streaming down her face: "It too bad that the only man who came here to tell us how to live had to be killed by the Indians?"

Preached in Saloon.

On one occasion "Preacher" Smith, on invitation of the proprietor, held religious services in the saloon and gambling den of "Nutsell Bill," an early Deadwood character. "Nutsell Bill" had shoved back his tables for the occasion. All was orderly and quiet during the time "Preacher" Smith was preaching his sermon to the assembled roughs and others, who contributed liberally to him in cash at the conclusion of his remarks.

Some men entering the Black Hills had permitted "Preacher" Smith to accompany them, and one evening one of them found him reading a Bible. Then the stranger informed the man that he was a Methodist minister. He was told that he was up against a hard proposition, to which he replied: "Possibly so, but I will do the best I can." His only baggage when he entered the Black Hills was a small valise. He was a man about six feet tall and of fine physique. His age at the time he reached Deadwood was about forty. He came West from the New England states to preach the gospel among the rough men of that day.

Light Lights, When Litted

One of the most utilitarian night lights yet offered by the electrical manufacturers is one in the shape of a candlestick which when it is standing remains unlighted but immediately it is litted the tiny bulb glows. It is a bedroom night light and works on a battery. Its own weight pushes the off button so that it remains unlighted when not in use.

Admission of Value

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.
