Uncomplimentary Wit

Like the Scotch, the English can relish a joke on their native peculiarities. A recent book of British reminiscences includes this little-known story of the old duchesse de Duras and Montrond, the French wit. The duchesse asked the famous wit, "In your opinion, what animal the most closely resembles man?" Montrond reflected for a minute and then replied, gravely, "L'Anglais, duchess."

NOTICE OF SALE OF GOVERNMENT TIMBER

Oct 27, 1924.

General Land Office, Washington, D. C., Notice is hereby given that subject to the conditions and limitations of the acts of June 9, 1916 (39 Stat., 218), February 26, 1919 (40 Stat., 1179), and departmental regulations of April 11, 1924 (50 L. D., 316), the timber on the following lands will be sold Dec. 15, 1924, at 10 o'clock A. M., at public auction at the United States land office at Roseburg, Oregon, to the highest bidder at not less than the appraised value as shown by this notice, sale to be subject to the approval of the secretary of the interior. The purchase price, with an additional sum of one-fifth of 1 per cent, thereof, being commissions allowed, must be deposited at time of sale, money to be returned if sale is not approved, otherwise patent will issue for the timber which must be removed within ten years. Bids will be received from citizens of the United States, associations of such citizens and corporations organized under the laws of the United States, or any State, Territory or District thereof only. Upon application of a qualified purchaser, the timber on any legal subdivision will be offered separately before being included in any offer of a larger unit. Odd Epitaphs Seen in Old Graveyards

In accordance with his wishes the grave of Henry Long in Massachusetts is marked by a stone on which is inscribed, "Henry Long. I still live." A hard-headed, matter-of-fact friend who questioned this statement left directions that his monument be inscribed with this: "James Maguire, dead, and owns up to it."

On the stone marking the spot where reposes all that is mortal of Doctor Walker, author of "Walker's British Particles," is inscribed, "Here lies Walker's Particles." A similar punning effect is exhibited by the epitaph of one Doctor Fuller, "Fuller's earth." Equally brief and withal touched by a bit of grim humor is the inscription over the grave of Thomas Maginnis, "Finis, Maginnis."

Bill Nye, the humorist, once ran across a monument on which this inscription was neatly lettered: "Here we have a widow bereft; Richard on the right and Tom on the left." He suggested that the couplet might have been improved by the addition of the following: "And if she had outlived a couple of more she could have had one behind and another before."

One cannot be quite certain what the bereaved husband had in mind when he composed this epitaph for his departed spouse: "This dear little spot is the joy of my life—it raises my flowers and covers my wife." Somewhat more pointed is this posthumous gibe: "Here lies in silent clay Miss Arabella Young, who on the 21st of May began to hold her tongue."

On a stone under which sleeps Jonathan Oakes is this terse, matter-of-fact inscription: "Here lies the body of Jonathan Oakes, who lived and died like other folks." The son of a deceased tavern keeper brought down two birds with one stone when he set the stone over his parent's grave and had cut into it these lines: "Beneath this stone in hope of Zion is laid the landlord of the Lion. Resigned unto the heavenly will his son keeps on the business still."—Kansas City Star.

Expert testimony

Five of the best-known cooking authorities in the country conducted the tests—with ten different kinds of foods.

Each dish was cooked twice, from exactly the same recipe, except that plain milk was used in one batch and Borden's Evaporated in the other. The two samples of each dish were served to groups of men and women who knew nothing about the purpose of the test. Each person was asked whether he could tell the difference, or which he preferred. Here are a few of the results:

Soups: seven out of eight preferred the soup made with Borden's Evaporated.

Creamed Carrots: five out of seven favored Borden's.

Creamed Potatoes: everybody voted for the Borden dish.

Muffins and Creamed Chipped Beef: six out of ten preferred Borden's; three of the others couldn't tell the difference.

They proved beyond question that Borden's Evaporated Milk is exactly as good as plain milk for all cooking—while for many dishes it is better.
