TURNING BACK THE PAGES

50 YEARS AGO from the Democrat-Herald August 29, 1969

Baker College will hold two work days within the next two weeks to try to complete the work needed to make it ready for the opening day of school and dedication.

25 YEARS AGO from the Baker City Herald August 29, 1994

A late-season lightning storm that crossed Northeastern Oregon early Sunday morning sparked 82 fires on the Wallowa-Whitman and Malheur national forests.

Seven had burned at least 1,000 acres as of this morning and state and federal agencies were scrambling to find firefighters.

Rick Forrester takes his job seriously, even if it doesn't come with a paycheck.

As the trainer and mentor for the Baker City Police Department's Citizen on Patrol program, Forrester sets an example he hopes his volunteer recruits will follow.

ONE YEAR AGO from the Baker City Herald August 29, 2018

Grocery Outlet will unveil its Baker City store with a grand opening on Oct. 11, just less than a year after local officials announced the project.

The 19,000-square-foot building stands on the south side of Campbell Street, just east of the Interstate 84 interchange. The address is 295 Campbell St.

An official for Grocery Outlet, which is based in Emeryville, California, said this spring that the Baker City store likely would open in December or early in 2019, but construction has gone faster than expected.

Eugene Salazar worked as the construction superintendent on the project. In his 47 years of working in construction, this is his first time working on a project in Baker City.

"I should have retired a long time ago but it's kind of tough," Salazar said on Monday. He works for ELS Construction, a commercial general contractor based in Houston.

Salazar said ELS Construction will finish its work by Sept. 16, after which Grocery Outlet will take over and start preparing the store for opening.

S. John Collins / Baker City Herald Kent Nelson found his usual seat hasn't changed. He shares a table with a group that gathers routinely for coffee.

INLAND

Food deliveries are slated for late this week, and Hensley said it will take several days for the staff to prepare for a return to business as usual.

Among those attending the open house was John Chandler, an Inland regular who has also done handyman jobs at the cafe in the past.

"I think they did a really nice job," Chandler said as he took in the decor, which includes all new walls, floors, ceiling and booths.

"I missed this place." So did other longtime customers including Suzen Fors and Vickie Kirkwood.

Kirkwood said she has dined at the Inland since she was a child.

Her parents, Doug and Shurley Benton, worked down the street from the Inland as "a mobile gas distributor and then he worked on cars, fixed them up" when he returned from World War

"It was the closest diner where you could go and get a cup of coffee," Kirkwood said. "I have good memories of coming here."

Before the fire, Kirkwood would go to the cafe with friends and fellow church members.

"It's really been missed while they've been closed," Kirkwood said.

kitchen exhaust hood. "The hood is what has been our nightmare," she said.

The hood sucks the grease and smoke from the kitchen and has a section that keeps the temperature stable.

"You couldn't even possibly turn anything on without the hood system going," Hensley said.

Issues with the freezer have also forced Hensley to push back the opening, which she initially hoped would be in June or July.

The freezer problems were resolved Aug. 22, according to a post on the Inland's Facebook page.

"It's all going now. We're getting closer. It's only down to 25 degrees and needs to be about minus 10," Hensley said.
