LOCAL BRIEFING

Learn about historic North Powder Ice Plant Sunday at E. Oregon Museum

HAINES — Jim Peters of Colorado will talk about the Pacific Fruit Express Company's ice house, which operated in North Powder from 1910 to 1937, during a free event Sunday, Sept. 15, at 4 p.m. at the Eastern Oregon Museum, 610 Third St. in Haines.

Cowboy action shoot set for Saturday at Virtue Flat range near Baker City

A cowboy action shoot event is set for Saturday, Sept. 14 from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Powder River Sportsman's Club's Virtue Flat Range about a mile east of the Interpretive Center north of Highway 86.

Entry fee is $10 per person. The course of fire includes five or six stages of 25 to 30 rounds. Competitors are encouraged to dress in period western wear or B movie dress. Targets are steel and clay birds.

In cowboy action shooting competitors use single-action revolvers, lever-action rifles from before 1896, or replicas, as well as double-barrel or Winchester Model 97 shotguns.

City seeking art for public display

The Baker City Public Art Commission is taking applications for its Art on Loan program. Artists are invited to lend their work to the city for one year for display at a public location. More information is available by calling Robin Nudd at 541-524-2036, and applications are available at bakercity.com. First review of applications will take place Oct. 9.

Agencies end some restrictions on fires, activities

Widespread rain on Sunday and the coolest weather in more than two months prompted state and federal agencies to ease some restrictions on campfires and other activities imposed earlier this summer due to high fire danger.

U.S. Forest Service

- Both the Wallowa-Whitman and Umatilla National Forest have ended public use restrictions including those affecting chain saw use, smoking, campfires and off-road vehicle travel.
- The Blue Mountain and Prairie City ranger districts on the north part of the Malheur National Forest have also lifted all public use restrictions. Those restrictions remain in effect, however, on the Malheur's Emigrant Creek Ranger District.

Oregon Department of Forestry

The state agency has ended public use restrictions on state and private lands it protects in Northeastern Oregon.

Campfires are now allowed, with landowner permission.

Although public use restrictions have been eased, fire season is still in effect. That means burn permits are required for all open fires (except campfires), debris burns and burn barrels. The Northeast Oregon District includes lands in the following counties: Union, Baker, Umatilla, Wallowa and small portions of Grant, Morrow and Malheur counties.

To obtain a burn permit from ODF, call the Baker City office, 541-523-5831.

PORTRAITS

Friends of hers who have a child with cystic fibrosis were moving, and she gave them a portrait of their child as a way to send them off with an endearing farewell gift. Seeing how much joy that portrait brought them, Eisenbraun wanted to do that for other families. Now the program runs out of Bend but is reaching across the country to other areas of Oregon, Arizona, South Carolina, Kentucky and Minnesota, with hopes of going to even more states.

"We saw two different situations," Eisenbraun said. "Families who are struggling to find peace in their lives while they're dealing with all this upheaval of medical challenges. And artists who are struggling to engage their careers and get recognition. Sometimes you put two divergent things together and you get something good."

To have a portrait done of a child, the parents, or someone who thinks the family would benefit from the portrait can fill out a form on the Portrait Connection website. According to the website, "Portrait Connection serves children who have a medical condition that is considered progressive, degenerative, or malignant and are within two years of their most recent treatment. The child must be between the ages of 1 and 18 years old at the time of application."

Portrait Connection receives funding through organizations and private donations. The artists are paid for their work, though Eisenbraun wishes she could give them more. Her hope is that with the growth of the organization, it will gain more funding and be able to bring joy to more children and their families, and also support participating artists more substantially.

Portrait Connection assigns a child to an artist, sending photos for reference. These artists live all over the nation, so they don't often meet the children in person, according to Eisenbraun.

The portraits were presented as a surprise to each family with a sheet being withdrawn to reveal the images.

"It is just a bright spot in our life and a happy memory of a time he was celebrated," Karla Macy, from Baker City, mother of Gus Macy, a 3-year-old with spina bifida, said of the painting of her son. "It just looks like his personality."

When shown his portrait, Gus said, "It's very cute."
