“The Crown”

Season 4 advances the story to the late 1970s, when Queen Elizabeth (Olivia Colman) and the Royal Family are preoccupied with finding an appropriate bride for Prince Charles (Josh O’Connor), who is still unmarried at age 30. At the same time, divisiveness builds in Britain thanks to the policies of Margaret Thatcher (Gillian Anderson) and war with the Falkland Islands. (ORIGINAL)

“We Are the Champions”

If you have a thing for unusual competitions, then this is the series for you. Each episode of this offering from executive producer Rainn Wilson (Dwight from “The Office”) follows a unique competition and provides a window into determination, passion and skill of those who take part in sports such as cheese rolling, dog dancing and frog jumping. (ORIGINAL)

“Holiday Home Makeover With Mr. Christmas”

Design industry veteran Benjamin Bradley, aka “Mr. Christmas,” puts his skills and vast Christmas collection to good use in this unscripted series, to bring holiday cheer to families and communities deserving of a home makeover. In the process, he hopes to inspire viewers to take their own home holiday decorating to the next level. (ORIGINAL)

“Sarah Cooper: Everything’s Fine”

Author and comedian Sarah Cooper is the host of this hourlong variety special that uses vignettes to deal with politics, race, gender, class and other subjects. Special guests Fred Armisen, Marisa Tomei and Jon Hamm participate in short interviews, sketches and other mischief. (ORIGINAL)
