PENDLETON — Fresh butter and pancakes are just one of the treats awaiting visitors to the Heritage Station Museum's Pioneer Day on Saturday, Aug. 7.

It's been awhile since the museum had a Pioneer Day, said Shannon Gruenhagen, marketing and tour coordinator.

"We're bringing it back and reimagining it," she said.

The one-day event also falls on Free First Saturday, with free admission for everyone. From noon to 3 p.m., visitors can pan for gold, try candle dipping with beeswax, learn how to clean clothes on a washboard, and shake cream into butter.

"And we'll make pancakes," Gruenhagen said.

The pancakes tie into the new wheat exhibit, "Umatilla Gold: History of Wheat in Umatilla County." The display features photographs, drone footage of local wheat farms and interactive elements.

"You can even smell what a wheat field smells like," Gruenhagen said.

Pioneer Day is supported by a grant from the Umatilla County Cultural Coalition.

Aug. 7 also brings back Artisan Alley, with vendors located both inside and outside the museum.

Gruenhagen has planned a monthly special event since the museum reopened in June. The first gathering focused on old-fashioned games. In July, visitors

Other elements include a railroad display, a newspaper printing press, and signs from local businesses. Outside exhibits include the Byrd Schoolhouse relocated from near Pilot Rock, and the Fix family cabin and barn.

"It looks like an old homestead," Gruenhagen said.

The museum's regular hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday. With the exception of Free First Saturday, admission is $5 adults, $4 seniors, $2 students, or $10 for a family.

An event for Sept. 25 will feature fall crafts and apple butter, and the "Heritage Haunt" is planned for Oct. 30. For the holiday season, "Heritage Lights" will happen on the first three Fridays and Saturdays in December.

"Our programming is really ramping back up," Gruenhagen said. "We're happy to have people coming through again."
