Ashleigh Murray and Luke James

6 p.m. on FX Movie: Goosebumps

While there have been other projects based on R.L. Stine's popular book series of thrillers for young readers, this fanciful tale makes Stine himself a character, as played by Jack Black. He becomes involved in the effort to contain monstrous characters he created when they're accidentally released into the world by a town newcomer (Dylan Minnette) who has befriended Stine's daughter (Odeya Rush).

8 p.m. on HALL Movie: Christmas in Harmony

After losing her record company job in a corporate merger, Harmony Matthews (Ashleigh Murray) retreats to her hometown to review her options in this 2021 holiday romance. Her mother (Loretta Devine) is sympathetic, but also thrilled that Harmony is back home in time to help her with their church's annual Holiday Hallelujah Concert. When plans to showcase one of Harmony's celebrity clients go south, Harmony auditions for the choral lead herself, directed by her old flame (Luke James) from high school, with whom she ended things badly.

8 p.m. on LMN Movie: Deadly Due Date

After a childless couple runs into a pregnant former classmate at a reunion, they're stunned but happy when the woman promises to let them adopt her baby once it is born. What they don't know is that the mother-to-be is completely unhinged and has her own plans for creating her perfect little family.

10 p.m. on AMC Eli Roth's History of Horror

He's probably best known for helming the perennial yuletide favorite "A Christmas Story," but earlier in his career, filmmaker Bob Clark "went there" and smashed some taboos with his 1974 slasher flick "Black Christmas," in which sorority girls are stalked by a maniac during the holiday season. In the new episode "Holiday Horror," host Eli Roth examines why horror films set against a happy holiday backdrop have become popular.
