9 p.m. on PBS NOVA

"NOVA Universe Revealed: Milky Way" explores the galaxy that is Earth's celestial home, an ethereal city of stars so vast that it would take about 100,000 light years to cross it. This episode reveals the wonders of galactic archaeology charted by Gaia, a spacecraft that is creating a precise 3-D map and measuring the movements of more than a billion stars in our galaxy. The results are unlocking a turbulent history of our cosmic neighborhood, from its birth to massive collisions with other galaxies.

9 p.m. on CW Batwoman

When Ryan (Javicia Leslie) lands on Gotham's "30 Under 30" list, Luke (Camrus Johnson) frets about how Jada (Robin Givens) will react to the role Marquis (Nick Creegan) has played in boosting Ryan's popularity as the acting CEO of Wayne Enterprises in the new episode "Antifreeze." Meanwhile, Mary (Nicole Kang) isn't quite feeling like herself as she returns from a late night out, and Alice's (Rachel Skarsten) hallucinations grow stronger. Keeya King guest stars; Meagan Tandy also stars.

10 p.m. on PBS Secrets of the Dead

In "The First Circle of Stonehenge," an archaeological quest spanning 10 years reveals that the oldest stones in the mysterious circle at Stonehenge originally were part of a much earlier sacred site, a stone circle that was built on a rugged and remote hillside far away in West Wales. Using some of the latest tools in geotechnology, Professor Mike Parker Pearson of University College London leads his team of archaeologists in a painstaking and determined search for evidence that would fill in a 400-year gap in our knowledge.

10 p.m. on CBS CSI: Vegas

As Grissom and Sara (William Petersen, Jorja Fox) close in on an answer to the riddle of who framed Hodges, Maxine (Paula Newsome) and her CSI team investigate a baffling "locked-room" murder that took place at an altitude of 30,000 feet. The latter case opens when a cargo plane lands on automatic pilot at McCarran Airport bearing the lifeless bodies of everyone on board. Matt Lauria and Mel Rodriguez also star.
