Baker has league's top player, coach

Baker City Herald

The top honors for the Greater Öregon League girls basketball season belong to a single school.

A single family, come to that.

Baker junior Jozie Ramos was named the GOL's player of the year by a vote of league coaches on Tuesday, March 1.

And her dad, Baker coach Jason Ramos, was picked as the league's top coach.

Two other Baker juniors were named to the GOL first team — Rylee Elms and Macey Moore.

Another junior, Brooklyn

Jaca, was a second-team pick. The Bulldogs, who won the GOL regular season title with a 6-0 record and then beat La Grande in the league championship game on Feb. 19, will play host to Marshfield, of Coos Bay, in a Class 4A playoff game on Saturday, March 5, at 4 p.m. in the Baker gym.

The winner advances to the eightteam state tournament March 10-12 at Coos Bay.

Tickets for the playoff game are sold online only. To buy tickets, go to www. osaa.org/tickets.

Other members of the first team are MaKenna Shorts, junior, La Grande; Emma Weber, senior, Mac-Hi; Grace Near, senior, La Grande.

Joining Jaca on the second team are: Darby Rhoads, senior, Mac-Hi; Madi Perkins, sophomore, Mac-Hi; Kayla Collman, freshman, La Grande; Kira Evans, sophomore, Ontario.

Lisa Britton/Baker City Herald

Baker's Jozie Ramos led all scorers with 14 points in the Bulldogs' 43-25 win over La Grande on Tuesday, Feb. 8, 2022, in the Baker gym.

Rylee Elms, shown here against Burns on Dec. 29, 2021, scored a teamhigh 13 points on Tuesday, Jan. 4, 2022, as the Bulldogs beat Fruitland, Idaho, 37-35. Jozie Ramos (background), added eight points.

Lisa Britton/Baker City

Macey Moore goes to the basket against Vale on Tuesday, Jan. 18,

Lisa Britton/Baker City Herald

Whirlpool

2022, in the Baker gym. Moore led Baker with 15 points in a 57-21 win. Baker's Brooklyn Jaca shoots against La Grande on Tuesday, Feb. 8, 2022, in the Baker gym.

MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL LABOR DISPUTE

MLB cancels its opening day, sides fail to reach lockout deal

BY RONALD BLUM AP Baseball Writer

JUPITER, Fla. — Major League Baseball has canceled opening day, with Commissioner Rob Manfred announcing Tuesday, March 1, that the sport will lose regular-season games over a labor dispute for the first time in 27 years after acrimonious lockout talks collapsed in the hours before management's deadline. Manfred said he is canceling the first two series of the season that was set to begin March 31, dropping the schedule from 162 games to likely 156 games at most. Manfred said the league and union have not made plans for future negotiations. Players won't be paid for missed games. "My deepest hope is we get an agreement quickly," Manfred said. "I'm really disappointed

we didn't make an agreement." After the sides made progress during 13 negotiating sessions over 16 ½ hours Monday, the league sent the players' association a "best and final offer" Tuesday on the ninth straight day of negotiations.

Players rejected that offer, setting the stage for MLB to follow through on its threat to cancel opening day.

"Not a particularly productive day today," Manfred said. At 5:10 p.m., Manfred issued a statement that many fans had been dreading: Nothing to look forward to on opening day, normally a spring standard of renewal for fans throughout the nation and some in Canada, too. The ninth work stoppage in baseball history will be the fourth that causes regular season games to be canceled, leaving Fenway Park and Dodger Stadium as quiet in next month as Joker Marchant Stadium and Camelback Park have been during the third straight disrupted spring training.

The concerns of our fans are at the very top of our consideration list," Manfred said.

The lockout, in its 90th day, will plunge a sport staggered by the coronavirus pandemic and afflicted by numerous onfield issues into a self-inflicted hiatus over the inability of players and owners to divide a $10 billion industry. By losing regular-season games, scrutiny will fall even more intensely on Manfred, the commissioner since January 2015, and Tony Clark, the former All-Star first baseman who became union leader when Michael Weiner died in November 2013.

Past stoppages were based on issues such as a salary cap, freeagent compensation and pensions. This one is pretty much solely over money.

This fight was years in the making, with players angered that payrolls decreased by 4% from 2015 through last year, many teams jettisoned a portion of high-priced veteran journeymen in favor of lowerpriced youth, and some clubs gave up on competing in the short term to better position themselves for future years.

The sport will be upended by its second shortened season in three years. The 2020 schedule was cut from 162 games to 60 because of the pandemic, a decision players filed a grievance over and still are litigating. The disruption will create another issue if 15 days of the season are wiped out: stars such as Shohei Ohtani, Pete Alonso, Jake Cronenworth and Jonathan India would be delayed an extra year from free agency. Players would lose $20.5 million in salary for each day of the season that is canceled, according to a study by The Associated Press, and the 30 teams would lose large sums that are harder to pin down. Members of the union's executive subcommittee stand to lose the most, with Max Scherzer forfeited $232,975 for each regular-season day lost, and Gerrit Cole $193,548.

Reed & Associates for excellent service LOCALLY!

Medicare, Auto, Home Insurance and Annuities