“Movie: Laura Pausini: Pleased to Meet You”

From director Ivan Controneo (“One Kiss,” “Kryptonite!”) comes this documentary that retraces the life of the Queen of Italian Pop and attempts to answer the question of what would have happened if Laura had not won the Sanremo Music Festival (Italian song contest) in 1993. Never-before-seen glimpses of her personal and professional lives augment the story. (ORIGINAL)

“The Unsolved Murder of Beverly Lynn Smith”

From Canada and the creative forces behind “The Walrus and the Whistleblower” comes this four-part true-crime documentary series that examines the cold case and controversial investigation of the murder of Beverly Lynn Smith, a 22-year-old Ontario woman who was slain in her rustic home in December 1974. “The Wilds”

The thriller series about girls trapped on a deserted island as part of an elaborate social experiment ratchets up the tension in Season 2, revealing that the girls aren't the only ones being studied. There's also an island of teenage boys, who must fight for survival under the watchful eye of the experiment's puppet master. (ORIGINAL)

“Bosch: Legacy”

There is life after the LAPD for detective Harry Bosch (Titus Welliver) as his story continues in this crime drama that finds him working with former enemy and top notch attorney, Honey “Money” Chandler (Mimi Rogers, “Mad Men”). The common goal of these one-time adversaries? Finding justice. Madison Lintz (“The Walking Dead”) stars as Bosch's daughter Maddie, a rookie patrolwoman. (ORIGINAL)
