ODFW plans to stock trout in lakes, ponds around region

LA GRANDE — The Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife plans to stock thousands of rainbow trout, including trophy fish, which are 15 inches or longer, over the next month or so in lakes, ponds and rivers across Northeastern Oregon.

The majority of the trout released are "legals" — at least 8 inches long, and thus legal for anglers to keep.

Fishing forecast

stocking-schedule.

Wolf Creek Reservoir

Reservoir is slowly filling, and the boat ramp is now useable. However, the reservoir is still very low. Without a substantial increase in water, the reservoir may drop quickly throughout the year so fishing may be best over the next couple months.

Thief Valley Reservoir

Reservoir is full. Thief Valley drained significantly last year, and there may not be many fish that survived through the fall and winter. However, the reservoir has recently been stocked with rainbow trout. Fishing will probably be best over the next couple months before the reservoir drops again due to increasing water releases in the spring and summer.

Unity Reservoir

Reservoir is about 86% full, and anglers have been successful catching 16to 17-inch rainbow trout. Fishing from shore with bait has been a good technique, and fishing from a boat will probably also be a good way to fish the reservoir. Fishing will likely be best at Unity Reservoir over the next couple of months while the reservoir has a good amount of water in it.

Grande Ronde River

Steelhead fishing is closed until Sept. 1, 2022. Variable flows may make fishing difficult during spring runoff. As the water warms, bass fishing will become better in the lower Grande Ronde. Anglers are reminded that bull trout and Chinook salmon may be encountered in the Grande Ronde River and must be released unharmed.

Imnaha River

Steelhead fishing is closed until Sept. 1, 2022. Trout fishing may be good when water conditions allow. When the water temperature increases, bass fishing may be good in the lower portions of the river. Anglers are reminded that bull trout and chinook salmon may be encountered in the Imnaha River and must be released unharmed.

Magone Lake

The lake is accessible, and fishing should be good for holdover trout. Trout stocking is planned for the week of May 9-13.

Umatilla River

Summer steelhead fishing is closed. The spring chinook approximately 3,000 spring chinook returning to the Umatilla River. Fishing has been slow, but there have been anglers out trying to take advantage of the early bright fish and the fish are starting to show up in the past week. The flows in the Umatilla came up in the past week from recent rain, but flows are starting to drop slightly and this is when anglers should really concentrate their efforts as the increase in flows tends to move fish into the system. Anglers should start to find success as the clarity of the river improves and the river starts to drop. Most anglers use egg set up with a slinky weight bounced off the bottom or some have found success with spinners with water temperatures being relatively cold. Trout fishing on the Umatilla River, and its tributaries, is closed until May 22. Bass and other warmwater species remain open all year.

Wallowa Lake

Fishing has been good for rainbow trout near the south end of the lake. Anglers have had success using both flies and lures. Anglers can have good success wading out from shore and casting lures or flies near where fish are rising. Boat anglers will have better access to more of the lake and may find fish near areas where the depth drops off. There are some nice kokanee available this year with some fish around 16 to 18 inches. Jigging and trolling for kokanee can both be productive ways of fishing for them.

Brownlee Reservoir

feet below full, and all boat ramps are usable. Anglers in the Powder River arm have recently had good catches of perch, and bass have frequently been caught. Some crappie have been caught, but cooler weather has probably slowed the crappie fishing. Bass fishing in the upper reservoir has been good when water temperatures have warmed. However, during cooler weather, bass fishing has been more difficult. Anglers have had some success trolling for trout near the Burnt River.
