Car show returns after 2-year stall

icrawford@bakercityherald.com

lassic cars filled nearly every available space in Geiser-Pollman Park Saturday, Aug. 20, as the Baker City Memory Cruise made a resounding return after a two-year hiatus.

Throngs of young and old were in attendance, though several parents had to be especially watchful of their kids amid the oh-so-very expensive exhibits, brought in from all around the state (and, from some manufacturers, the world).

"It turned out great, we had close to 160 cars," said organizer Jeron Simmons. "Everyone enjoyed

The event featured live music, food and drink, poker runs, raffles and prizes throughout the day, and concluded with some car owners driving to Quail Ridge Golf Course to join the Durkee Steak

The Memory Cruise puts in context Baker City's

From the time the city was founded in 1864 until the first Ford Model T's rolled out of Henry Ford's factories in 1908, was a window of only about 40 years, an era nobody living today was witness to. During that period automobiles were exceedingly

Yet within a couple short decades they were everywhere, and before standardization and regulation that came in the second half of the 20th century, cars were as varied as trilobites in the ancient

Those antiques, some more than a century old, were represented in the Memory Cruise, including Model T's and the later Ford Model A's.

One of the latter Fords was driven by Joan Sherman of Baker City.

Baker County's community services deputy gives update about new job

BY SAMANTHA O'CONNER soconner@bakercityherald.com

Gabe Maldonado, the Baker County Sheriff's Office's community service deputy, gave county commissioners an overview of his myriad duties during their Aug. 17 meeting.

Maldonado, a longtime deputy with the sheriff's office, started the newly created position in January of this year. "There's many different hats to this position but the goals are pretty simple — it's to promote positive community relationships," Maldonado said. "I'm to be a liaison for the sheriff's office, especially for our rural and remote communities in Baker County."

He said his role is to also provide aid to individuals by educating the public about social services that are available from various community

"I personally contacted and became familiar with about 18 community service partners and civic groups in our area," Maldonado told commissioners.

Fires keep crews busy over weekend

BY JAYSON JACOBY

jjacoby@bakercityherald.com Wildland firefighters had a hectic weekend in Northeastern Oregon as a human-caused blaze burned near Halfway on Friday afternoon, Aug. 19, followed by a rash of lightning-sparked fires Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Fire crews doused all of the blazes relatively quickly. Most of the lightning fires burned less than 1 acre.

Fortunately, most of the thunderstorms have spawned at least light rain as well as lightning bolts, said Steve Meyer, wildland fire supervisor at the Oregon Department of Forestry's Baker City office.

Although the weekend rain wasn't enough to extinguish the fires, Meyer said the showers have caused blazes to smolder for an hour or two, giving firefighters time to respond before the flames can gain momentum.

"Generally that's enough time for us to get on scene," he said.

Meyer said fire crews have also benefited from the absence of sustained strong winds to propel the flames. Although storms bring brief periods of gusty winds, once the cell passes the winds have subsided, eliminating one of the biggest challenges that fire crews face, Meyer said. He said the generally benign weather is welcome because forests and rangelands are dry after several weeks of hotter-than-average temperatures.

"Fuels are ready to burn," Meyer said. According to an index that measures the potential for fires to spread, conditions are near to slightly above normal in the six regions that comprise Northeastern Oregon.

Charts are available online at bmidc.org/erc.shtml.

Joel McCraw, deputy fire staff officer for the Wallowa-Whitman National Forest, said on Monday morning that many of the weekend fires, on the Wallowa-Whitman and the adjacent Umatilla National Forest, involved single trees struck by lightning.

8 turn in signatures for City Council election

Baker City Herald

As many as eight candidates, including three incumbents, will vie for the four Baker City Council slots that will be on the Nov. 8 ballot.

City Recorder Dallas Brockett said eight people turned in petitions with signatures before the deadline of 5 p.m.

on Friday, Aug. 19.

The county clerk's office has already verified signatures for two candidates — Katie LaFavor and incumbent Dean Guyer.

Brockett is waiting for verification for six others who could join those two on the ballot — incumbents Johnny Waggoner Sr. and Kenyon Damschen, along with Matt Diaz, Bev Calder, Donald Cody and Joe Johnson.

Four of the seven positions on the city council will be filled in the Nov. 8

To qualify, candidates had to submit at least 46 signatures from registered voters who live within the city limits. The four positions up for election are those held by Joanna Dixon, Waggoner, Guyer and Damschen.

The three other Baker City councilors — Kerry McQuisten, Shane Alderson and Jason Spriet — are serving terms that continue through the end of 2024. All three were elected to four-year terms in November 2020.
