Editor Gets On a Vacation

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Young left by Wednesday morning's train on a three month's trip back to their former homes in New York, Illinois and Kansas. They intend stopping at Portland, Seattle, Vancouver, B. C., and various other points in Canada, Albany, N. Y., and reach the editor's old home near Riverhead, Long Island, in a couple of weeks. After a month there they will start west by way of Washington, D. C., Chicago, Independence, Kansas, Naligh, Nebraska, and various points of interest along the way, returning to Coquille about the middle of October. This is the first time the editor of the Sentinel has visited his boyhood home in fifteen years and he will undoubtedly find that many changes have occurred during that time.

We hope to receive letters for publication after they have reached their various destinations, giving the high lights of that journey across the Canadian country from Vancouver to Montreal.

The Nail hammer that makes hard work easy

Can you find all these things in the hammer you are using? The head forged from special steel which will not mushroom or chip—A hammer carefully designed and perfectly balanced for a hard, true blow—The handle of a second growth hickory with just the right springiness—Claws that will pull a headless nail in any position—An "interlocking wedge" that absolutely prevents the head working loose. Every Winchester hammer has all these points of superiority. The most exacting workman could not ask for a better hammer.
