GOALS OF BULL ASSOCIATIONS

Animals Are of Better Quality Than Ordinary Run of Cows Yet Totally Owned.

Stated by the United States Department of Agriculture.

A survey recently made in connection with the "better cow-better milk" campaign carried on by the United States Department of Agriculture shows a general ratio of 1 bull to every 12.5 cows. Experience, however, in Pennsylvania, the state which leads in the number of bull associations, shows that 25 bulls are sufficient for the 5,000 cows belonging to members of the bull associations, or an average of about 1 bull for every 200 cows. These figures are taken from the bull-association directory recently issued by the dairy division, United States Department of Agriculture.

If the members of these associations owned their bulls individually, at the usual ratio of 1 bull for every 12.5 cows, they would need 200 bulls instead of 25. Yet the 25 bulls give the required service as effectively as 200 would do, and in fact better, because the resulting offspring are better. The association bulls are of better quality than the ordinary run of cows privately owned, and their daughters are apt to be better-producing cows.

Even this does not tell the whole story. After an individually owned cow has been used for about two years it is usually necessary to get a new one. In eight years, therefore, those Pennsylvania farmers, if they owned their bulls separately, would have to provide themselves with four times 200 bulls, or 1,100; whereas in the bull associations at the end of two years their steady move each bull to another care. The original 25 bulls, if they all live and do well, can be used for the whole eight years. There is quite a difference between the cost of 25 bulls and that of 1,100, in any getting of the difference in their usefulness.

The members of bull associations sometimes pay less and always receive more for their money than cow owners who go it alone.

PROMOTE FRIENDLY RIVALRY
Milk and Cream Content Are Important Factors in Improvement of Supplies.

Friendly rivalry among milk producers and among dealers is an important feature in the improvement of the milk supplies of cities. United States Department of Agriculture experts assert. Any factor which encourages this rivalry must be given careful consideration by municipalities and all milk authorities. Since the inauguration of milk and cream contests in 1908, this method of promoting friendly rivalry has been successful. At this time, besides State and National contests, a number of cities use such means for grading milk supplies.

and cream contests promote competition among the dairymen, lead to the grading of milk supplies, and through publicity encourage the efforts of producers as well as educate the consumers regarding the value of good milk and where the best can be obtained.

UNDERSTAND NEEDS OF COWS

Animal Possesses Individually and Feeder Must Know Her Capabilities and Needs.

No dairy cow has ever produced her maximum unless her feeder knew her. Knowing her means more than simply calling her by name and feeding the same of her rations. It means understanding her every need, habit and condition. For after all, the dairy cow is an individual, and no path goes to her individuality.

NOT MUCH OF A DISGUISE

School Starts Not Liberty to Pass as a Widow Next Time She Takes a Woman.

A rather prominent teacher school teacher has by one of her ambitious moves to lead her profession so that people can guess it when they see her. So whenever she goes on a vacation she goes as a housekeeper, a clerk or a member of some other profession than her own. When she left at home then she said that this time she "was going to be a widow for a week."

She succeeded in carrying off her pass successfully, too, until the day before she started home. Then on that day she overheard the colored elevator boy talking to a man who had met. "So she ain't a widow!" he said.

"Yes," the man nodded his head. "I ain't surprised," the boy retorted with conviction. "I told that day she come. I say that woman either a widow or a school teacher. Both of 'em always have such a part, 'I have bossed the world' way."

Good Pictures and Music will always be found at the Liberty Theatre. See the program for next week on page three.

"Going Fishing"

Now's the time for everyone with the bug to go fishing. The game bug goes for fish—the real sport goes for fishing. The one chap would clean the streams and pickle the product for personal use if he could. The other would stock the streams with the gamiest fish to increase the joys of fishing.

There is more than one way of showing you have been fishing. The increased health, vigor and tan give evidence of the out of doors. Fish for fish! put your pay into your thinking and punch into your performance. Fish in the pan and the edge of drying calling loud enough to call the cat from the barn or your friend from the next block in the evidence of fishing—Grit.

Get Your Check Book Ahead

The mental twin of the man who sets his watch 15 minutes ahead to make sure of catching his train has been found in a large business house in the financial district. He sets his check book ahead. Each Saturday he takes his check book, tears therefrom a check which he destroys, and then enters $10 on the stub. When Dec. 1 arrives he finds himself in possession of $500 more than his checking balance shows. He then cuts his own little Christmas notes and has enough to do his Christmas shopping without endangering his solvency.

I ought to know
I grow tobacco

You can't beat a Camel, because you can't beat the tobacco that goes into Camels.

That's why Camels are the choice of men who know and love fine tobacco. They know what makes Camels so smooth, so fragrant and mellow-mild.

They'll tell you that the expert Camel blend of choice Turkish and Domestic tobaccos makes a cigarette smoke you can't equal—no matter what you pay.

But it doesn't take an expert to tell Camel quality. You'll spot it the very first puff. Try Camels yourself.
