Home Keepers Program

Home makers week means three big days for the women of this county. Farmers and Home Makers Week will be held in Coquille in connection with the Corn Show, November 16th to 19th inclusive. Splendid programs furnishing pleasurable instruction will be given Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, while Saturday will be grand show day, without programs in order that everyone may fully enjoy the exhibits and festivities. For the women the program arranged is as follows:

Wednesday: Nutrition and Clothing
Thursday: Poultry.
Friday: Home Improvement.
The first morning will be of greatest interest to mothers of little children. Oregon's nutrition specialist, Miss Margery Smith, will talk to the mothers on food for the school child, emphasizing particularly the eight-year old as here is the one found to be the greatest per cent under weight.

Miss Esther B. Cooley, new clothing specialist in the Extension Department, will have some splendid things to tell the women in regard to selecting and buying their clothing. She will emphasize not so much line, color, and texture but quality and appropriateness in relation to price, wearing qualities and health, particularly as applied to certain articles of clothing as shoes, hose, corsets, etc.

For Friday, home improvement day, a special program has been arranged in compliance with numerous requests from various communities. For this program two instructors from Oregon Agricultural College have been secured, Miss McFaul, who will give most valuable assistance in problems of interior decoration and Miss Johnson, who will tell the women how to lighten their work and save steps and backache by having a well planned and equipped kitchen.

Thursday is Poultry day. Everyone who is interested in poultry will find this a most profitable day.

On each of these three days there will be a social get-acquainted hour from 3:30 to 5:00 P. M. when the women from one community may meet those from other parts of the county. Tea and cakes or cookies, made only from Corn Products will be served each day.

To Hang Friday, the 13th

In court at Roseburg last Monday morning Judge Bingham sentenced Richard Melvin Brumfield to hang Friday, January 13, for the murder of Dennis Russell.

Brumfield walked to court with heavy bandages about the wounds on his neck recently inflicted in a suicide attempt.

A crowd filled the court room for the drama. The prisoner was taken to Salem that afternoon. A motion to set aside the verdict and for a retrial was overruled. Brumfield stood alone to receive his sentence.

When asked if he had anything to say, he replied: "Only this, your honor, as God is my judge, I know nothing of how Dennis Russell came to his death."

He turned deathly pale when the sentence was pronounced. Mrs. Brumfield slumped down in a chair, but did not collapse.

School Notes

Meryle Endicott, a senior, fell on the schoolhouse stairs Monday, injuring her back. The doctor believes that she will be able to return to school in about a week.

Mrs. Chase and Mrs. Lorenz opened their rooms for work Monday. They had been closed for several days on account of scarlet fever cases.

November 11th, Armistice Day, is a school holiday.

The luncheon served by the D. S. department of the local high school during the Institute was a success in every way. A great deal of the credit is due to the excellent management of Miss Ahlson and Mrs. Parr.

The Coquille high school girls expect to organize a strong basketball team this fall. They have some excellent material to choose from. The team will be coached by Miss Mary O'Farrell. Mr. Parr has limited the team strictly to girls' rules.

The Coos County Debate League decided to hold the annual debates on February 10, 1922. Each school will have two teams of two members each. One of Coquille's team will debate at home with Bandon, and the other will go to Marshfield.

Hattie Stanford, a freshman, registered in high school Wednesday. Miss Stanford moved here from Curry county.

All visits by patrons of the schools are appreciated. We are glad to have people come out and see what is being done in the study hall, class rooms and laboratories.

The football game with Marshfield tomorrow has been cancelled.

The Basis of White Security

The following article on "The Basis of White Security" is republished from the Oregonian of October 10, because it deals with matters of intense and vital interest, not only to the people of the Pacific Coast but also to the entire white race on this planet.

When President Roosevelt raised his voice in warning against the increase of race suicide by the white people of this country, we minimized the peril by saying that as the people who practised race suicide would leave no descendants to continue its practice, we need not worry about them.

But the world war opened our eyes to the perils of race suicide when Germany came so near crushing France. At the time of the Franco-German war in 1870, France and Germany were about equal in population. In the 44 years from 1870 to 1914, Germany's population increased from 40 millions to 65 millions, while France all the while stood stationary. The 25,000,000 preponderance which Germany had attained pretty nearly enabled her not only to conquer France but the whole world.

If France continues for another 44 years to practise race suicide and Germany continues to obey the primal commandment to increase and multiply, it requires no prophet to foretell what the outcome of the next war between those nations will be.

But the Oregonian article below raises the much larger question whether the white races of the world can long maintain the supremacy they have so long enjoyed, unless they fill up the countries and continents they have so long controlled with a population sufficient to prevent the colored races, with a vastly greater percentage of increase, from submerging them.

Those old lines of Byron's, "First freedom, then glory; when that fails, wealth, vice, corruption; barbarism at last," seem to outline the course of all the nations that have enjoyed world power since the dawn of history. From the standpoint, say, of an impartial observer on some other planet, there is nothing else to expect but that the race which cannot or will not people the lands it holds must eventually give way to some other which lives nearer the ground and has vitality enough to increase in numbers.

Here is the article we have referred to: If you have interest enough in the questions it discusses to read it, tell us what you think of it:

"After all, the question as to which race shall control the land on this side of the Pacific ocean will be decided in favor of that race which follows the scriptural injunction to 'be fruitful and multiply and replenish the earth.' Although white settlement of North America began with fugitives from religious and political persecution, that of South America with men moved by greed for gold and military conquest, it attained its greatest proportions when hosts of people were crowded out of Europe in search of new land to occupy, and by the same rule they crowded out the Indians, who had failed to multiply and replenish the earth. The countries of Asia are now overcrowded, and unless the white nations of America and Australia fully occupy the land with a steadily growing population, laws against Asiatic immigration may soon prove to be feeble dams which a flood will burst.

"That is in substance the warning which Lord Northcliffe has given to Australia and it applies in equal measure to Canada and South America and in only less measure to the United States. Australia is a rich continent weakly held by about 5,000,000 white people. Its wealth is known to the hundreds of millions of Asiatics to the north and 'a moral right to territory is in itself no right at all,' for 'moral right must be based on capacity in arms among people of relatively equal individual fighting strength' and that is 'measured by numbers.' He tells the Australians:

"You must increase your slender garrison by the multiplication of your people. Only numbers will save you. The world will not tolerate an empty and idle Australia. This continent must, like other continents, carry its full quota of people and do its full share of production. You must take immigrants, the right kind of immigrants—immigrants not for towns but for the empty spaces.

"Ten million more people, coming to begin with at the rate of at least 100,000 a year, are the least that can keep Australia white, and the annual immigration should rapidly increase to 250,000, in Lord Northcliffe's opinion. The Australian government is already considering practical means to send hosts of people from crowded Britain.

"When we compare the densely peopled Asiatic side of the Pacific ocean with its thinly peopled American and Australian sides, the wonder is that Chinese, Japanese, Malays and Hindus did not long ago swarm across and occupy the vacant land.

The Aztec empire, the ruins of an extinct race in Central America, the Inca empire and the legends of our own Indians, indicates that Asiatics must have come in great numbers long before the discovery by Columbus, but for more than two centuries after that event they left the field clear for the white race. Asia had the same facility for crossing the ocean in days of sailing ships as had the whites, and during the last three-quarters of a century the white race has placed steam transportation at the service of Asia. But Asiatic migration across the Pacific has been insignificant in proportion to the vast hordes that barely subsist on the other side of the ocean. Chinese immigration to America was instigated by Americans and when exclusion was enacted it practically stopped almost without protest. Though there is much agitation about Japanese immigration and though that agitation must have stimulated desire to migrate to this continent, also though the militarists have exploited that sentiment, the numbers which have come are insignificant. Conquest and military occupation have opened Manchuria, Corea, Formosa, and Shantung to the Japanese, but they are mere handfuls in those countries. Hindus have gone to East and South Africa, provoking opposition, but not in such numbers that whites could not control the movement.

The white race has had the opportunity to occupy the vacant spaces of America, Australia, and Africa, through the neglect of the Asiatics to make use of their opportunity. If the latter had moved bodily by entire nations in such vast hordes as wrecked the Roman empire, they would either have made the Atlantic ocean a permanent barrier to the advance of the Caucasians or each race would have occupied half of this hemisphere and the two races would have warred for supremacy in the whole of it.

"The rumblings of rebellion against white supremacy which are heard all over Asia, the demands for racial equality, for equal opportunity and for unrestricted immigration are notice that the long respite from Asiatic competition for the undeveloped regions of the earth is near its end. The whites must fully occupy and develop the territory they hold with rapidly increasing numbers. They cannot do this with families which have shrunk from eight or ten to 4.3 persons, nor with couples which make a mockery of marriage by being childless. While establishing their claim to the land they hold by producing all its wealth for the service of all mankind, they must help the Asiatics to develop their own continent to the point where its huge population can live in comfort, free from the ever-present menace of famine. The trouble with Asia is as much underdevelopment as over-population. The far eastern problems really is to form a plan by which the whole race can help the Asiatics in starting this work of development, that all may live well and thrive on their own continent, retaining full possession and control. Binding them to their own soil by the bond of self-interest added to that hereditary custom and institutions would far surpass the artificial dams of laws and treaties as a safeguard against the yellow peril."
