To Plant 40 Acres Walnuts

Dr. and Mrs. Boyd returned last night from Hillsboro, where she has been for a month or two while he was taking treatments in Portland. He returns very much improved in health. He has much to say about the damage done in the Willamette valley by the extreme cold weather three years ago and again this winter. Those fine walnut trees of improved variety on his place at Hillsboro were nearly all killed by the below zero weather of 1919, and many other trees suffered there and in the vicinity of Portland. He observed the effects of the recent silver thaw on the highway between Silverton and Portland, where cars by the score were left in the ditch because they could not be navigated on the ice-coated roads. The doctor says there seems to be even more difference between the temperature here and up in Washington county than the thermometer would indicate, and found it wonderfully mild here compared with the Willamette valley. He had not abandoned the walnut business on account of his bad luck farther north but says his son is coming down here to set out 40 acres of that improved variety on his place near this city.

National Guard Profits

Oregon derived a net profit of $119,077 in the operation of its National Guard during the past year, according to an annual financial statement issued by George A. White, adjutant general of the state. This was accomplished under the joint army partnership with the federal government through which the "United States National Guard" distributed in armory payrolls and camp pay among 2,400 Oregonians located in twenty Oregon cities the sum of $199,052.50, the total cost to the state of administration and upkeep being $79,975. In addition to the $199,052 received in cash, the state secured the award of federal property amounting to $257,217.29.

Towns receiving bundles of U. S. Treasury checks for drill and camp pay of citizens include Ashland, Medford, Marshfield, Newport, Toledo, Roseburg, Eugene, Albany, Salem, Portland, Independence, Corvallis, Dallas, McMinnville, Silverton, Woodburn and Lebanon.

Four Cars Attached

Sheriff Ellingsen in the past few days has attached four automobiles in the Coquille valley and here on executions obtained by creditors of the owners. Some bills were for repairs, some for groceries, some for oils and another for other debts. There are several similar attachments in sight, the sheriff said.—News.

United Brethren Attention

Owing to the fact that the Pastor is engaged in Revival Meetings at North Bend there will be no preaching service at Gravel Ford on Sunday, Jan. 22, 1922.
Elmer A. Shumard, Pastor.

Robbers Caught

The robbery of a lot of woman's clothing and other fixings from the home of Attorney Derbyshire at North Bend, which we noted last week, has been solved. Two young men, who recently came down here from the north were the guilty parties. One of them is Lawrence Bartlett, a youth of 19, who had a 17-year old wife who was scantily clad, and the other Roy Thorpe, who went by the name of Roy Beck. Thorpe is thought to be a lad, who had been sentenced to the penitentiary in Washington for stealing an automobile and released on parole.

The two young men were bound over to the grand jury in the sum of $1,000 each. In Justice Maybee's court, Bartlett's girl wife was weeping into a handkerchief, which Mrs. Derbyshire recognized as one that had been stolen from her. An effort is being made to find this girl's former home and send her back there. She was not arrested at the time but later when she came over to visit her husband in the county jail she was. They were all three having a crying spell up in the cell when Deputy Sheriff Malehorn, who had previously telephoned District Attorney Fisher, walked in and told her she could stay there too. He asked the three about a diamond from an Elks' pin which was among the articles stolen, and also about a brown silk dress which had not been recovered. They all disclaimed knowledge of the two items, but when Malehorn told of the diamond being recovered from a jewelry store where they had sold it for $2.50, they acknowledged the theft of the dress also and told where it could be found in the shack where they were living. It was found there by Bert Smith.

The girl is really better off in jail than running loose over at the Bay with no one to look after her.

Tozier-Strang

Harry B. Tozier surprised his friends in Coquille last Saturday by coming up from California accompanied by a bride. She was Della Mildred Strang, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Strang, who left Coquille a couple of years ago to make their home on a ranch near Montague, California. The young people were married at Yreka on the eleventh inst., and came north on their wedding trip, stopping a couple of days to visit the groom's sister at Harriaburg, Ore. They will visit here for a few weeks and then return to Montague, Mr. Tozier being associated with Mr. Strang in the ranch there.

Both these young people have a host of friends in and around Coquille who are heartily congratulating them and extending best wishes and the Sentinel joins in wishing a long and prosperous life together for these popular young people.

County Pomona Grange will hold its annual meeting at the Woodman hall in Coquille Thursday, January 26 at 10 o'clock a. m. for the purpose of electing and installing officers. All Fourth degree members are invited to be present. P. S. Robinson, Master.

Tall Men.

The tallest man about whom the actual facts are known, other than those recorded in Biblical history, was one John Middleton. He lived in the sixteenth century and was commonly called the child of Hale. It is said that his hand from the wrist to the end of the middle finger, was seventeen inches long. His whole height was nine feet and three inches. Pliny, the Roman writer, however, mentions one Gabora as "the tallest man that hath been seen in our age." He measured nine feet nine inches in height. Patrick Cotter, who died in 1808, was probably the tallest Irishman; he measured eight feet seven inches, beating his countryman Charles O'Brien whose skeleton in the museum of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, measures eight feet four inches only.

Woman Slavery in China.

Until recent years slavery, mainly amongst girls, was firmly established in China. In 1912 a law was passed that no girl need remain a slave who desired her freedom. While very many girls availed themselves of their legal freedom, many others remained in bondage, probably willing slaves, inasmuch as their liberty would have left them stranded and without any means of earning a livelihood. Although the law still stands, it is a dead letter. Women and girls are more or less openly sold every day, some as wives or concubines, some as servants, others, frankly, to prostitution.

The Limit.

"Augh—waugh—gr-r!" It was the baby, and he had made similar remarks steady, for the last hour. Mr. Newpop's hair—what was left of it—stood on end. "Gnow shwb wondgon, gour-r-r," remarked the baby, justly, while the people living across the way rose from their beds and closed their windows ostentatiously. Mr. Newpop ground his teeth. "To think," he murmured wearily, "that I should live to become the father of a train announcer!"
