What would you think of a man who repeatedly solicits a favor, and never acknowledges it even by a simple "thank you." Of course, it is his upbringing—his parents and teachers—that are most to blame.

County Court in Session

County Judge Wade and Commissioner Yeaman have constituted the county court this week, Commissioner Kern being confined to his home in North Bend.

Minor road matters, the settling of rights of way and the construction of fences on the Myrtle Point-Bridge section of the highway, occupying considerable of the court's time.

Among other matters attended to the court denied the petition of Horace Maynard to conduct a dance hall at Coaledo, where a new structure for this purpose is just being completed.

Upon the recommendation of the Bandon G. A. R. post the court increased the allowance from the Indigent Soldiers' Relief Fund to Mrs. Mary E. Campbell, of Bandon, from $15 to $25 a month until the close of the present school year.

R. R. Davis was ordered paid $25 for two head of cattle, which were ordered slaughtered by the herd and meat inspector. A similar payment is requested from the state.

The report to the county court shows that during the month of February a total of $390 was paid as bounty on four coyotes, seven panthers and 39 cats. The bounty by the county has now been discontinued, the year's budget for this purpose being already exhausted.

The report of the superintendent of the poor farm shows that there were 15 inmates out there during the month of February, whose ages range between 46 and 86. At least four of them are over 80 years of age.

Another was a three pound Rainbow trout while the rest of the catch were from ten to fourteen inches.

Louis Moreau Gottschalk. Louis Moreau Gottschalk, a famous American pianist and composer, was born in New Orleans May 8, 1829.

When 12 years old he took up the study of music under Halle and Maletien, in Paris, and from 1845 to 1852 made successful tours of Continental Europe. In 1853 he returned to America and repeated his foreign successes. He visited most of the important cities and towns of the United States, playing or conducting his own compositions. He traveled extensively in Mexico, the West Indies and South America, and was taken fatally ill, while playing at Rio de Janeiro his work, "La Mortie." He died at Rio de Janeiro December 18, 1859.

Croesus First Rainmaker?

There were rainmakers in ancient days. So says the historian Herodotus. Cyrus decreed that Croesus, whom he had defeated in battle, should be burned to death, but repenting of his purpose after Croesus had mounted the pyre and the fire had begun to burn, tried in vain to extinguish the flames. Meanwhile Croesus, learning that Cyrus had changed his mind, but was unable to put out the fire, entreated the god with tears. Whereupon, it is said, "suddenly after a clear sky and calm weather, clouds gathered, a storm burst and it rained a very violent shower, so that the pyre was extinguished."

Coos Banks in Best Shape

Clarence D. Porter, manager of the Portland branch of the Fidelity and Deposit company of Baltimore, was in Coquille yesterday. He says he finds the banks of Coos county in a better condition than those of any other section of Oregon, reporting increasing deposits during the season of business depression and poor collections through which we are passing. The company he represents makes a business of furnishing fidelity bonds to officials of banks and trust companies and he says it has been called upon this year to make good more losses on the part of young men in such positions than for any previous year in the past ten. These were chiefly such as began their business life during the silk shirt era at the close of the world war, and acquired such extravagant tastes as no ordinary income will gratify and so became embezzlers and defaulters. The crime wave now so prevalent among the younger generation, he says, makes one wonder what sort of a one will follow when these gilded youths become fathers. It is to be hoped we have passed the peak of financial irresponsibility, though, and a return to the old standards of honesty, economy and stability may soon begin.

Hollow Tile Not Yet Decided On

The Sentinel was slightly in error last week in stating that the Coquille Masons had decided to erect a hollow tile temple this summer. The committee's report, made ten days ago, favored the plan as we outlined it but definite action has not been taken by the lodge, nor will it be until the stated communication to be held Saturday, March 11. It is hoped and expected that all Masons will be present on this occasion. Lunch will be served.

Bandon Schools Closed

So many people in Bandon were sick the past week that on Tuesday the schools were closed for the balance of the week. The same condition as to flu prevails in Marshfield, and to a lesser extent in the other towns of the county. Coquille, although there are a great many sick here now, appears to be the least affected of any of the towns.
