Letter From T. T. Bennett

In a letter published yesterday Representative T. T. Bennett, of this county, who is a candidate for re-election, tells of the general efforts that are being made to line up the legislative candidates for Representative K. K. Kubli, of Portland, for speaker of the house when the legislature meets in January next. This move is, of course, in the interest of liberal appropriations for the 1927 fair in Portland. In discussing the matter of Mr. Kubli's candidacy Mr. Bennett says:

"In attempting to make a choice for speaker, I felt that Coos county's interests were absolutely opposed to its representative joining Multnomah's organization and forwarding the candidacy of the man who had been so powerful a fighter in trying to finance the Portland 1925 fair at the expense of the up-state taxpayer.

"Again it is a fact that Multnomah county and some of the close by counties have their road programs practically completed and now there are many persons in those parts of the state who would, under the cry of retrenchment, stop the state aid to the road program, whereas I am firmly convinced that it is to Coos county's interest to see that the road building program, now that we have assisted others to get their roads, is not strangled, until Coos county has received her just share of state aid. Although Coos county is the ninth in rank in the amount of taxes paid the state, twenty counties of Oregon to January 1, 1922, have received more state assistance than Coos county and twenty-four counties have received a larger proportion of state aid as compared with the amount of taxes contributed. Again it was the representatives of eastern Oregon who stood with me in the fight in the special session to prevent Portland from putting over its fair program, and I felt and still feel that Coos county's interests lie not with supporting Mr. Kubli, the fair program and its organization, but on the contrary, our interests lie with the up-state representatives and for that reason, I had determined to support eastern Oregon's candidate, Mr. Burdick, for speaker."

After referring to the fight he and other members made at the special session to prevent a big state appropriation for the Portland fair Mr. Bennett continues:

"The Oregonian under date of December 22, 1921, in a front page article stated that Speaker Bean of Eugene and Representative Bennett of Coos county were the principal opposition, and went on to state:

"Mr. Bennett took the position that if Portland wanted to hold a party, it should not ask others to pay for it. Mr. Bennett has been the most determined opponent of the exposition in the lower house."

"While I have no idea that the article was in any sense intended as a compliment to me, I am glad to accept the responsibility and be considered of the sixty members 'the most determined opponent of the exposition.' With this brief history, I think that Coos county voters will agree with me that refusing to support Mr. Kubli for speaker and put in his hands the powerful influence which that position would give him in forming an organization for the Portland 1925 (1927) fair, is certainly not a stand against Coos county's interests.

"On numerous of my recent visits to Portland, I have been requested to 'sit in' on the organization which I have refused; I have been led to understand that I would have some very flattering committee appointments, still I have refused, and then I was advised that if I would not support Mr. Kubli, an independent candidate would be brought out against me.

"I cannot affirmatively say, and do not say, that the independent candidate for the legislature was induced to run against me because, like Andy Gump, I do not wear Portland's collar, but if this influence is not used, it is indeed a remarkable coincidence. * * *

"It is not a question as to whether or not some other candidate may vote against a similar resolution to that of Mr. Kubli at the 1923 session of the legislature, but whether or not that representative will join that organization, promote Portland's interests, or make the same strenuous efforts that I have made to prevent Portland's efforts to commit this state to its now 1927 fair program with a large appropriation of state aid.

"It is true that the house of representatives in the special session killed the direct tax for financing the Portland exposition and the senate very nobly did its work in killing the gasoline tax, and I am glad to be considered as 'the most determined opponent' of sixty members in the lower house to the two schemes heretofore proposed for financing this exposition and also to what I understand will be the fair program at the 1923 legislative session.

"If the lash is to be cracked over my back because I have been too much in the way of previous attempts of Multnomah county to control the house of representatives, I would sooner receive it upon that ground than any other."

Sermon by Radio

It was with a good deal of pleasure the large audience at the Presbyterian church last Sunday evening listened to the music and a portion of the sermon preached at Sacramento, California, that evening. The text of the sermon, which was very distinctly heard was from Philipians IV:8, as follows:

"Whatever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue and if there be any praise, think on these things."

Although there were some interruptions and some of the sermon was not distinctly heard, the general drift of the Sacramento talk was comprehended; and it certainly was an epochal event in the lives of most of the people present to hear distinctly words spoken 700 miles away.

Mr. Chas. Oerding has installed his radio apparatus at this church and with the amplifier loaned by Mr. Geo. A. Robinson it was possible to hear some part of the services at Sacramento very distinctly. It is proposed to have a program at the church some week day evening soon to raise funds to continue the radio services at this church.

Accident on Highway

Ira Gerber and Alexander Givano had a narrow escape Friday night while driving over from Marshfield to Coquille. It was real foggy and they were unable to see the road good. At the China camp bridge they missed the approach, struck a post and the car turned turtle and, rolled down about twenty feet under the end of the bridge. Neither of the men were injured.
