EAST FORK NOTES

Saturday the funeral of Mrs. Queen V. Krantz Weekly was held at the Dora Cemetery, the services being conducted by Tom Barklow, of Myrtle Point. A number of years ago in answer to the question of how much of a clearing was on the ranch when she went with Mr. Weekly to their new home, she said just a little hole in the brush. Together they enlarged that hole in the brush until they had a good ranch and always remembered to lend a hand to the neighbor in need. There was a large attendance at the funeral, for Queen Weekly had the faculty of making friends and keeping them.

Madge Harry, near Coquille, was visiting relatives and friends in Brewster Valley and on the East Fork last week.

Alden Bright, of Gravel Ford, with his father's team, is putting logs into the river for William Culbertson. Judging from the report in the Oregonian of his mouthings that Knight of Columbus, Joe Scott, of Los Angeles, must be a regular I. W. W. Let me tell that bleacherskite this: He may be real pretty but he talks like a fool. I voted against the law that set his mouth going and when the Roman Catholic Welfare Society passes the collection box to raise $100,000 to take the case to the United States Supreme Court, I have two bits ready to drop into the box, so that we may know if a freak law of that kind holds water.

If the case before the U. S. Supreme court now is to determine whether the children of the foreigners in the United States must be taught the English language, then every United States of America American is for the rule that the children of this country must be taught in the English language.

To read the account of John P. Wolfe, of Richard county, North Dakota, saving his family from becoming dead victims of the blizzard causes our abiding faith in the greatness and endurance of man to strike roots into the depths of soil that give growth to a faith which withers not.

The sled box with the few wraps and blankets was the shelter nest for the mother, the baby girl of two years and the boy aged 7, while he, John P. Wolfe, husband and father, stood sentinel against the storm for 32 hours.

The faith in a mother's love is unquenchable, as we read how she nestled and protected the children with her body, so that the baby girl was unharmed and the feet of the boy only slightly frozen. When people see that woman now without hands and with only one foot, she is a living witness that she saved her children. Of John P. Wolfe it is written that he saved his family, himself he could not save.

It is not the male and female divorcees of the movies who thrill one to catch the vision of the inspirations and the aspirations for the big things of life. R. A. Easton.
