Koon's Report on Dam

The following is a portion of the written report submitted by A. A. Koon on the Rink creek dam, which has just been finished by A. A. Gidley, the contractor. He gives unqualified approval of the construction of the dam, and is confident Coquille will have sufficient water for all purposes for years to come. He says:

The Project, covered by Mr. Gidley's contract, has been completed in a very creditable manner. We made several inspections of the work while in progress, and are satisfied that the internal and sub-structure of the dam is as secure and well constructed as exterior appearances indicate.

So far as this project is concerned, we believe it will be all that those advocating its construction have anticipated; viz. a storage of pure water of a volume sufficient to meet dry season demands.

The only work in connection with the dam remaining to complete the project, in accordance with our original plans, is the facing of the upstream surface. From present indications it appears that such facing may be wholly unnecessary, and in any event we recommend that the dam be watched closely for a year before any paving is done. This facing has been contemplated only in the event of attack on the structure by gophers or other small animals and in case the upper face of the dam is seriously affected by wave action.

The material of which the fill is made was exceptionally good, and gives a very hard, compact mass. We do not believe it will be attacked by animals or seriously so by wave action. In any event, we recommend that the facing be not placed before next year.

Referring to the broader subject of water supply in Coquille, the City is urged not to neglect to maintain a continuous supply from Walker Creek. It must be remembered that the Rink Creek Storage was only intended to augment the existing supply from the natural season flow of the two creeks. Those operating the pipe line inform me that the existing pipe from Walker Creek is giving much trouble on account of leakage, and it is apparent to those who have a thorough knowledge of the water supply situation that a failure of the Walker Creek supply would be a serious matter, and if occurring at a critical time might result in a shortage in water supply. We, therefore, urge most strongly that this supply from Walker Creek be permanently maintained and to secure the greatest service from the flow it should be diverted into the new reservoir or connected to the supply main by a new pipe. We believe that this new pipe line should be built this summer, both because the existing pipe is worn out and because the head on the present pipe is so low as to make proper operation of the new reservoir impossible when used in connection with the Walker Creek supply. Care should be taken in the layout of the new pipe line, and we will be glad to have plan and profile submitted to us before installation is begun.

Handsaker Speaks Twice

Good audiences greeted Rev. J. J. Handsaker, state director of Near East Relief for his addresses in Coquille last Sunday at the Christian church in the morning and the Methodist church at night.

Mr. Handsaker reminded his audiences that his first pastorate began in Coquille twenty years ago, that his first child was born here and he referred most feelingly to the many friendships shown him during his pastorate by people both in and out of his church.

"The best news I have to give you is that our children are out of Turkey. Under unspeakable hardships, we have brought them out this winter. Five thousand marched a distance of from two hundred to four hundred miles through a hostile country in the dead of winter, but we did not lose a single child. Four Americans died from exposure, overwork and by assassination, however."

"The significance of the fact that the children are out of Turkey cannot be over-estimated. They are today under the friendly flags of Russia, France, Britain and Greece and are safe from the danger of slaughter. All their lives they have been in fear. Now reports tell us that they go about their daily tasks singing and happy as children have a right to be."

"Grave responsibility rests upon us now to supply new homes for these children. Five hundred boys of the age of twelve are being trained at Nazareth, the home of Jesus, the carpenter, to become carpenters. A great orphanage is being equipped in Bethlehem, the birthplace of Jesus, for these children. The Kaiser's palace on the west coast of Greece is sheltering more than a thousand of our children."

"While the children are safe from laughter, we are redoubling our efforts to provide homes for the 115,000 and for the thousands of others who were made orphans by the enforced flight of the million people from Asia Minor this last winter."

"Because we were able to divert several shiploads of food to the care of thousands made homeless last winter, hundreds of thousands of people owe their lives to our emergency efforts. Three millions of dollars were spent in the emergency and this must be secured or the children will go hungry."

The speaker declared there is an interesting parallel between the lives of Moses and Jesus and that of the children of the Near East today.

"Just as God called the mother of Moses and the daughter of Pharaoh and the sister of Moses to save the life of that baby, and as the Wise Men brought gold, which may have been used to preserve the life of the infant Jesus as they went into Egypt, so God has called America to save the lives of 115,000 children, of whom it is reasonable to expect that He will find many who will be the leaders of the New Near East."

Mr. Handsaker states that from his own personal observation, the children of the Near East are as attractive and promising as American children. He stated that the relief work would continue only until the children were able to take care of themselves and that they were being trained to become self-supporting as early as possible. Pressure is being brought to bear upon the governments of the world for the million adults who were driven into Greece this last winter. Liberal contributions were made at both services and any not present may send their contributions through the Sentinel office.

EAST FORK NOTES

A little road work is being done in this section, most of it in Brewster Valley so far. It is needed all along the route.

Mr. Walker, of Myrtle Point, was up this way last week on his way back to Brewster Valley. On his way back he visited the Union Sunday School at Dora Cemetery Chapel, where Children's Day exercises were held last Sunday.

Two little stranger girls have moved into this vicinity, one into the King family at McKinley, the other into the Moore family of Brewster Valley. That is the kind of immigration we want, and Uncle Sam places no ban on it.

Everett Howe is engaged in butchering. It is quite a convenience to the people in this part of the county to have some one at hand to market their stock for them.

A number of families in this vicinity are suffering from severe colds. This is good weather for making the weeds grow.

Ersa Watson and family moved above Bridge Monday, where he has a job for the summer.

The three Howe boys went to Roseburg Saturday in Frank's car. He says there is one stretch of road that is rough.

The Rollie Alford and Carl Grove children made a visit to Brewster Valley.

MCKINLEY NOTES

Miss Grace Hockema visited friends in McKinley this week. She left for her home at Alsea Wednesday.

A ten and a half pound baby girl named Belva Mae was born to Mr. and Mrs. Lyman King Monday, May 4.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brown and son, Robert, left Saturday evening for Tillamook to attend the state Grange there.

George Glenn made a business trip to Roseburg Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lans Lapeve visited home folks at Coquille Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

Mrs. Wanda Wilcox and brother, Ralph Harry, of Coquille, visited at the Wilcox home Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Emma Ingram is visiting at the Lee Mast home this week.

Lynn Snow, who is employed at a Cedar Camp near Bridge is visiting McKinley friends this week. He had the misfortune of cutting his arm quite badly which is keeping him from work.

Memorial Day Services

Memorial Sunday has once more passed and was fittingly observed in Coquille by union services in Liberty Theatre. Rev. H. E. Rossell delivered the sermon and too much cannot be said of the broad-minded way he handled the subject. Surely there was not one in the audience but would carry home with him a better idea and truer meaning of the day. The musical program was good and well selected. That a larger number attend these observances of Memorial Sunday each year, shows a growing interest in patriotism and reverence to our Soldier Dead.

The Woman's Relief Corps wish to especially thank Mr. Rossell and those who helped to make this service a success.—Press Correspondent.

Boy Said to be Feeble-Minded

The hearing in the case of Ivan Joy, the 14-year-old lad held for assault on the person of Myrtle Stennett, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Stennett, which was to have been held before Juvenile Judge Mast in Bandon, did not materialize. The hearing was obviated by the finding of Drs. Houston and Gale that the boy is feeble-minded.

It was shown that the lad had been in ill health most of his life and that he is subject to epileptic attacks during which periods he is irresponsible for his conduct. Judge Mast assigned the boy to the state hospital for feeble-minded where he is to receive treatment and attend school.—Bandon World.

Old Building Torn Down

The old building at the corner of Bandon avenue, Wall street and Oregon avenue hill, occupied by the Capps garage, is no more. Upon the completion of the new garage building it was sold to T. T. Hill who has torn it down and burned up the remaining rubbish. The building was one of the old landmarks. The triangle in front of the new garage is to be paved. It will be used for the service station.—Bandon World.

Death of Old Settler

Mrs. Jane Hughes, widow of the late Patrick Hughes and one of the old settlers of northern Curry county, died Saturday night at the old Hughes homestead near Cape Blanco. Her maiden name was Jane O'Neil. Mr. Hughes came to Curry county in 1869 and died many years ago. She left seven children, one of whom, James Hughes, is now keeper of the Cape Blanco lighthouse.

Payne Gets School Building

M. W. Payne, Marshfield contractor, secured the contract for constructing the new Marshfield school building of 16 rooms at a price of $59,940, which, although higher than two other bids on its face, was considered better by the school board because Mr. Payne included in his offer, to do the grading and excavating, a piece of work that the board expected would cost considerable more than the difference of something like $1100.—Times.
