LEGENDS OF THE UNICORN

Interesting Stories Concerning the Fabulous Monster That Once Was Implicitly Believed.

The unicorn is a fabulous beast, usually having the head and body of a horse, the hind legs of an antelope, the tail of a lion (sometimes a horse's tail), sometimes the beard of a goat, its chief feature being a long, sharp, twisted horn, set in the middle of its forehead. Great strength was attributed to the unicorn in medieval times, and early commentators tell how it had been known to worst the elephant in combat. Though as a rule savage and quarrelsome, even with females, the unicorn at mating-time was said to become very gentle to his mate, which is supposed to have given rise to the medieval idea that the unicorn was subdued to gentleness at the sight of a virgin, and would come and lay his head in her lap, which was the only means by which he could be caught, because of his swiftness and ferocity. The picture of a unicorn on a drinking cup symbolized an ancient belief of the efficacy of the unicorn's horn (sometimes used as a drinking cup) against poison.

Another medieval legend about the unicorn is that when it stopped to drink from a pool, its horn, dipping into the water, purified and rendered it sweet.

There are many other interesting phases of the work, but this partial report may give the average reader an idea that the position of a County Nurse is hardly a sinecure.

HARM DONE BY LEAFHOPPERS

Small insects inflict immense damage on Vineyards, Greatly Lessening Quality of the Fruit.

Grape leafhoppers, tiny, greenish insects always present in greater or less numbers in vineyards, occasionally do considerable damage to foliage and reduce the quality of the fruit, according to entomologists at the New York agricultural experiment station at Geneva. Most of the damage is done by overwintering adult insects which in the early spring feed largely on strawberry and raspberry leaves, although they are also found on blackberry, currant, gooseberry, catnip, Virginia creeper, burdock, beech and sugar maple, declare the station specialists. Neglected fence rows, brush, weeds, tall grass, etc., furnish ideal winter protection for the pests, and vineyards in the neighborhood of such places usually suffer most from leafhopper injury. The adults lay their eggs on the grapevines and the young hoppers hatch out in large numbers, usually about the beginning of summer.

Cleaning up the hibernating places is one effective step toward combating leafhoppers, while very good results have been obtained from spraying over the young hoppers with nicotine sulphate in water or in bordeaux mixture.

FORTUNE-TELLING OLD "ART"

Delving into the Future by the Aid of Tea-Leaves Survival of Ancient Superstition.

To tell a fortune by tea-leaves, you turn your cup upside down in the saucer and whirl it around three times after drinking your tea. Turn the cup again and examine the leaf-fragments clinging to bottom and sides. Then you can read your future in what the leaves look like. Of course you can't count on it being true, but you can get some harmless fun out of it. There were many other old superstitions. In Egypt, a bowl or cup was filled with water and a boy gazed into it until he became hypnotized and "saw things." The magician interpreted what the boy thought he saw. The strolling magicians of North Africa perform the same trick today by means of a drop of ink in a boy's hand. When Joseph sent his messengers to find his silver cup in Benjamin's sack, he instructed them to say: "Is not this my lord's cup in which my lord drinketh and wherein he divineth?" Hence the mystic qualities of the cup. Ceromancy consisted of dropping melted wax into water and divining by the forms the wax assumed in cooling. It is a very old art, but tea was only introduced into Europe in the seventeenth century; yet the primitive mind still subsisting in man at once seized upon the tea-grounds as a means of foretelling the future, as that same mind had seized upon the melted wax thousands of years before.

How Sea Horses converse.

An observer named Kent, wishing to make some colored sketches of sea horses, placed two of them in separate glass dishes, a few yards apart. Shortly afterward he was surprised to hear a sharp little snapping or chirping noise coming at brief, regular intervals from one of the dishes. Almost immediately these signals were answered from the other fish. On examination Kent found that the little sea horses were signaling or talking to each other in this manner. The noise was found to be made by the muscular closing and sudden expansion of the lower jaw. These sounds are produced by both sexes and they are both more frequent and louder than usual in the spawning season.—Exchange.

Puretest RUBBING ALCOHOL

A reliable rubbing alcohol compound is vitally necessary in the home, the sickroom, the hospital, and the athletic training quarters.

PURETEST RUBBING ALCOHOL is selling faster today than any other rubbing alcohol compound on the market. Leading hospitals, gymnasiums, and athletic teams throughout the country are using it exclusively. Campers, trappers, and all people who work hard with the muscles and body should use it to relieve soreness, lameness, stiffness, bruises and sprains.

The medication, by which this preparation has been made fit for external use only, does not render it unpleasant in smell.

Fine for reducing fever and excessive perspiration, and for relieving inflamed skin and headaches.
