Reports Threatening Letter

A Bandon press dispatch dated Tuesday says: Quite a sensation has been caused here by threatening letters sent to Mrs. Ottilie K. Kronenberg, one of the best known residents of Bandon and Southwestern Oregon.

The threat is in connection with the Covell murder case and resulted from the efforts of Mrs. Kronenberg to assist the family who had long been friends.

An investigation of the matter is being made. This may result in some light being shed on the mysterious death of Mrs. Covell as well as punishing the perpetrator of the threatening letters.

Mrs. Kronenberg is the widow of the late John Kronenberg and mother of Jack and George Kronenberg. She has been foremost in philanthropic work in this section and the Kronenberg family has done more to advance the Bandon section than any others.

In discussing the matter, Mrs. Kronenberg said: "I received an anonymous letter that flavors of the Ku Klux. It was mailed at Bandon, September 9th and dated September 6th. It says in part that I am 'to have a rope around my neck' and 'hung to the nearest tree' if I even speak of the Covell case.

"Dr. Covell was our friend and he sent for me when he was put in jail, but the officers refused to let me see him.

"I also went to Coquille and was refused there."

"I saved the price of a new tire this week. I had the Coquille Service Station fix that blow out and now she's jake." Better take your old tires to them and have them vulcanized.

Sam Was Good Samaritan

Frank Bellrose, the man who was driving the car when L. W. Sprague was killed near Norway a month ago, when their fell over the bluff and on to the railroad track, took French leave from the Richmond hospital some time Saturday night. He had been there with broken ribs and collar bone since the accident. He had also been served with papers charging him with involuntary manslaughter, as he was drunk when the accident occurred. He had been worrying a good deal lately, and after the doctor had taken the barrel stove, which held his shoulder in place, off on Friday, he planned to escape, although he could not get his coat on alone.

Sunday afternoon Deputy Sheriff Malehorn was driving to Bridge and overtook a man with his arm in a sling.

"Want a ride, friend?" asked Malehorn without a thought of who it might be.

"You bet," answered the pedestrian. He climbed in and then Malehorn, who had seen him but once before, recognized his passenger as the escaped Bellrose.

Needless to say Sam had company back to Coquille and Bellrose is now in the county jail.

Paasch Gets $450 and 100 Days

The trial of I. A. Paasch, of North Bend, held here last Saturday, resulted in his conviction on three counts—that of driving while intoxicated, for reckless driving and for driving on the wrong side of the highway and for having liquor in his possession. Justice Stanley held court in the city hall and the trial lasted for several hours. Although a general denial of all the charges was made by Paasch, the evidence of ladies of the Bridge section, of Mr. Deasler, whose car was wrecked, of Traffic Officer Williams, and others, convinced the judge that he was guilty.

He fined him $300 and sentenced him to 90 days in jail for reckless driving; $100 and 100 days for driving while intoxicated and $50 for having liquor in his possession. The two jail sentences run concurrently. His driver's license was also suspended for a year.

As Paasch was taking the two girls on a charter trip to Portland, and he was driving for Joe Emery, of the Bay, District Attorney Fisher says he will start proceedings to confiscate the Hudson which Paasch was driving.

Pacific Highway Accident

A Tuesday's dispatch from Roseburg in Wednesday's Portland Journal says: Miss Gertrude Smith, of Glendale, died there Tuesday from injuries suffered in an automobile accident a few miles south of Roseburg Saturday. She was cut about the face and it was thought she would lose the sight of one eye, although when she was dismissed from the Roseburg hospital and taken to her home Monday, conditions looked very favorable for the saving of the eye. Early Tuesday morning her breathing became difficult and while a physician was administered a stimulant she passed away. Medical opinion is that she was injured internally in a way not discovered in the medical examination made after the accident.

The car in which she was riding was occupied by the girl, her mother and several friends. The car which collided with it was driven by Chas. Watson, of Myrtle Creek.

Had Booze in Their Possession

Gene and Alfred Mecum, two Bularda young men, were taken into custody Wednesday evening by Night Officer Oakes when the latter found a jug of moonshine in their car. They were driving a new Chevrolet belonging to their mother. The shine was to have been taken up the river to a party of fishermen.

The boys admitted before Judge Mast that they purchased it from a man on the street but refused to divulge his identity. Gene was fined $75 and given a sentence of 30 days in jail, the sentence to be suspended during good behavior. Alfred, who is under age, was placed under $100 bail to appear in the juvenile court at Coquille on September 25th.

The car is being held. Under the law it is subject to confiscation although the owner in all probability had no knowledge that it carried liquor.—Bandon World.

It Was Not Dean Straub

Rev. W. L. Straub sends the Sentinel a communication from Eugene asking that we make a statement that it was not Dean John Straub, of the University of Oregon, who gave the Ku Klux Klan lecture in the Myrtle Grove a couple of weeks ago. The Rev. Mr. Straub is not connected with the university but is a minister of the Christian church.

Lyceum at Liberty Tonight

Toward the end of school last spring a Student Body meeting was held in which plans were discussed for bringing what is known as an Artist's Course to Coquille.

After much discussion it was decided that the Coquille High School co-operate with the Marshfield High School in bringing such a course to Coos county. The course decided upon consists of three separate numbers, each of which is to be offered both in Marshfield and Coquille some time during the winter.

It was not without much deliberation that the High School decided to undertake this enterprise and the Student Body is greatly pleased with the hearty co-operation and backing given it by the business men of this town in its decision to bring these three splendid entertainments here.

The first number, to be offered Friday, Sept. 21, consists of Emory Farnell, called "the One Man Band," whose smiling face may be seen on the posters about town.

A committee of students is now busy formulating plans for a definite system for selling season tickets, covering all three numbers, throughout the town. The ticket sale will probably be put on early next week. Strict attention will be given to management and system, and measures taken to avoid duplicate calls both in the residence and business sections.

This Artist's Course is an instructive, worth-while entertainment, sponsored by your high school and the student body feels that it must have the hearty support of all the citizens of this town to carry this enterprise through to a successful completion.

Rogue River Indian Dead

Seventy-seven years after he was snatched from impending death by torture at the hands of Rogue River Indians, old "Doc" Hill, Digger Indian and well known character of the Wilbur vicinity in Douglas county, has died. "Doc," as he was called by the whites because they found his Indian name unpronounceable, was about 91 years old at the time of his death.

It was early in the year 1846 when Fleming Hill, one of the pioneers of Douglas county, came upon the band of Rogue river Indians preparing for the torture and death of one of their captives. This tribe and the Digger Indians were at war at the time. Hill saw that the victim was a mere slip of a boy, apparently about 14 years old, and in his compassion he drove a bargain with the captors to let him have the boy in exchange for a horse.

Never forgetting his gratitude, the lad always remained with the Hill family, adopting its name and serving it throughout his life, which has just closed.

Accidentally Shot Himself

The following Roseburg dispatch was published under a Tuesday's date line in Wednesday morning's Portland Journal: Searching parties late Tuesday found the body of John Russell, aged 52 years, Myrtle Creek rancher, who fell from a log and accidentally shot himself late Sunday evening. Russell left his brother's home at Myrtle Creek about 5 o'clock Sunday evening. About a mile from the house he crossed a ditch by means of a broken log and it is believed that he slipped, his gun hit the log and was discharged, the bullet going through his nose and tearing off the upper part of his head.

A bullet hole was found in his hat, which hung on a projection a short distance away, and the theory is that a twig forced the man's hat down over his face, the bullet going through in this manner. Russell is survived by two brothers and one sister. He will be buried at Dillard Tuesday.

Presbytery Met at Bandon

The annual session of the Coos Bay Presbytery was held in Bandon Tuesday. The session opened at the church at 2 p. m. Rev. J. C. Whitsett, moderator, preached the opening sermon. After the reading of the minutes of last year the election of moderator was taken up. Rev. Elmer E. McVieker, of Bandon, was chosen. Rev. R. W. Smith, of Marshfield, was named temporary clerk and Rev. J. E. Snyder, of North Bend, was stated clerk. Various matters of business including reports of committees were taken up and adopted. The business session continued until 5:45 when it adjourned for recess to reconvene at eight for the popular meeting.—Bandon World.
