Ten Divorces in One Day

Ten divorces granted out of eleven cases heard, was the record made by Judge Kendall in Circuit court here on Tuesday, and it is thought to be a record for the county. The case of Henry Bumgardner against Sarah L. Bumgardner, was postponed until a future session of the court, for the testimony of the couple's children, who are all grown, was that they had heard nothing from their mother for some time.

Zenith Slife was granted a divorce from Joseph Slife, but decision was reserved as to the disposition of their minor child.

Hattie B. Cochran was divorced from Lemuel Cochran, part of her testimony being that she had heard he was in the Washington state penitentiary at Walla Walla.

Oiga P. Weekly was granted a divorce from Glenn M. Weekly and given the custody of their minor child, for the support and education of which the defendant must pay $25 a month to the county clerk, beginning Oct. 10.

Nelson J. Brown was divorced from Leona M. Brown and the judge decreed he was the owner of their real property as set for in the complaint.

The other divorces granted were cases where the couples had no children:

Gladys Wilber vs. Corbett Wilber.

Edna E. Dulaney vs. Jack T. Dulaney.

Roland A. Brecada vs. Edna Mae Brecada.

Minnie M. Scofield vs. Eugene Scofield.

Ethel Miller vs. Harry Miller.

Archibald Germond vs. Ramona W. Germond.

Curry County Case Heard

Lasting from Tuesday until nine o'clock Wednesday evening, some of it being conducted by lamp light, and even one of them going out, the case of Elbert Dyer, of Bandon, against Geo. P. Laird, of Bandon, and the Thrift heirs, was heard by Judge Kendall this week. The case was transferred here from Curry county and is one in which Mr. Dyer is suing for $4,000 claimed to be due him by Mr. Laird. The suit is against the owners of the property for improvement work done on the ranch, and that is the reason the Thrifts were made a party to the suit. There is still documentary evidence to be submitted to the court so no decision was rendered Wednesday.

Futuristic Musical Program

Something quite new and extremely entertaining is the "Futuristic Musical Program" that will be given on Tuesday evening, Oct. 2, at the Liberty Theatre by the Patton Brothers as the second number of the local High-School Lyceum course.

These three brothers, Lowell, Donald and Gault, come from a highly respected and cultured Christian home in Portland, Oregon. They all possess fine voices and Lowell is an unusually gifted pianist. He is the manager and director of the company, and is a well known musician on the western coast. He was organist of the Pilgrim's Congregational Church in Portland, when but fifteen years of age, and began at that early date to teach piano and organ. Since then he has held positions as organist and chorister in some of the largest churches of that city.

Lowell Patton was chosen pianist with the famous Flying Squadron a few years ago and appeared in every principal city in the United States. As a "gob" during the war he was song leader at Bremerton Navy Yard. He has since appeared with various organizations and was for one season accompanist to Frances Soule, harpist, on tour with Frances Ingram. In December, 1922, he went to Europe and spent three months in study and in getting new ideas and material for the Trio.

The Patton Brothers' program consists of a musical prologue, six episodes and an epilogue. The episodes are Russian, Old-fashioned, Religious, Popular, Oriental and Patriotic, giving opportunity for a fascinating combination of costumes, character songs, dances, piano solos—all produced in an artistic manner, by these three versatile brothers. The entertainment will be one of the most novel and delightful of the season.

Will Enforce Traffic Rules

By C. C. Williams

Traffic Officer C. C. Williams has issued a set of rules for signalling before turning or stopping motor vehicles which he says must be enforced. The regulations describe the signals to be given.

Many drivers do not understand what arm motions are to be made before a machine is turned or stopped and a result signals are not uniform and there is danger of accidents, according to Mr. Williams. A careless wave of the arm outside the car may indicate a stop, a turn to the right or to the left. When drivers are lax in signalling those behind are left in ignorance of their intentions and trouble may easily result.

Drivers who do not follow the rules as set forth will be punished, Mr. Williams said. The regulations follow:

"Operators operating automobiles must observe the hand signal rule as follows:

"The driver of any vehicle about to turn, either from a standstill or while in motion, or about to stop, shall give timely signal, visible to operators of other vehicles to the rear, of his intention to turn or stop or change course. Such signal shall be given either by the use of an approved mechanical or electrical device.

"(A) An operator intending to turn his vehicle to the left shall extend his arm in a horizontal position for a reasonable length of time and slow down.

"(B) An operator intending to turn his vehicle to the right shall extend his arm with the forearm raised at right angles, for a reasonable length of time, and slow down.

"(C) An operator intending to stop his vehicle shall extend his arm and move it up and down in a vertical direction for a reasonable length of time.

Signed C. C. Williams, "Traffic Officer"
