Lorenz, in the dry goods and clothing business here and will have an interest in it.

Fred has made rapid advancement with the company in Portland, but the need of his father for a younger man to assist him in the conduct of the business here, decided him to forego all thought of future promotion in the city.

Looking ahead a year or so the local firm visualizes a larger and better store, in a fireproof building in a new location, but Mr. Lorenz says they will not consider such a move this year.

Wants Old Road Vacated

Cody Carlson was up here from his Randolph ranch Tuesday morning. He now owns the old Perabaker ranch and says that there are 28 roads across his place. He was attempting to get the county court to vacate the old county road, which is not used enough to keep the brush down. He wants to fence the ranch and it would cost him several hundred dollars additional to build alongside the road instead of across it. He would place gates in the fence for the accommodation of the travelling public if allowed to build it.

This debate is considered one of the hardest meets since the Pennsylvania State college debate two years ago. This will be the first time that an O. A. C. debating team has met a Southern California team.

Oil Activity in Coos

There is more or less oil activity in Coos county at the present time with indications pointing to considerable more. A party of Wyoming oil men is said to have been in Bandon within the last few days.

Dan Conlogue was running the engine, together with a fireman. The latter jumped. Conlogue stayed on the engine until it was derailed and wrecked but escaped injury, which seemed almost a miracle.—Times.

"Putting It Over" Soon

The date for its presentation has not been set, but Coquille's troupe of high class performers are rehearsing a comedy, "Putting It Over," which is to be staged at the Liberty Theatre within a few weeks. It is to be given for the benefit of the Woman's Club.

Hello Is an Old and Respectable Word

A need of the time is some plain and serious salutation, like "Hall, fellow," or "Good morning, neighbor." Men of spirit are rebelling at the demure monotony of "Good morning, Mr. Jenkins." On the other hand, a professor of English takes us to task for using "Hello" as a term of greeting. On top of which Miss Megan Lloyd George confesses that in America the never-falling "Pleased to meet you" left her at a loss for a response conformable to the local rubric.

She might have said, "Oh, are you?" Or she might have contented herself with "Really?" Or she might have been more loquacious and babbled, "So good of you to mention it." Or, had British reserve permitted, she might have taken the wind out of the other person's sails by retorting, "As for me, I'm simply transported at such an auspicious encounter."

But, not venturing to invent a formula, she stuck to her mild "How d'you do?" and wondered if she were transgressing American etiquette by not making verbal acknowledgment of the other person's profession of pleasure at the meeting.

An easy way to greet everybody is with a "Hello." But some persons consider that too informal. Despite professional condemnation, "hello" is a word of old and respectable lineage.—New York Sun and Globe.

Human Bridge Game

Bridge, rivaling in interest the game of human chess played recently at a military carnival, near Paris, was the feature of a festival held this year at one of the gathering places frequented by London holiday crowds. A broad platform served as card table. Youngsters of fourteen or fifteen, dressed in paper suits, each painted to represent a card were grouped on the platform in a miscellaneous sort of shuffle formation. At a given signal a card was called, the one following going into another corner and so on until the deck was distributed to the four players, who then played their "hands" by calling out a card to the middle of the platform.

Fact About the Moon.

The popular impression that the full moon has the power to clear away clouds disappears slowly, notwithstanding the almost unanimous pronouncement of scientists against it. That may be largely due to the fact that so great an authority in his day as Sir John Herschel regarded the idea as probably correct. After a study of the Greenwich observations it was suggested that the impression may be due to the fact that a change from the cloudy to the clear state is much more likely to attract attention when there is a full moon in the sky, and many meteorologists agree with this.

Erase the marks of Winter!

Old winter leaves its mark on the inside of the house as well as on the outside. Look for the proof on floors that have been scuffed and worn and now are dull and just a bit shabby. Spring is a time of new things—a time to brighten up. Why not go over the floors and woodwork with a transforming coat of

Flour Is Manufactured From the Sugar Beet

An important additional use for the sugar beet is found in the manufacture of flour therefrom. Indeed, it is reported that this kind of flour is turned out in considerable quantities at Suresnes, in France, where an enterprising person has built a large drier for the purpose. The first part of the process consists in chopping up the beets and drying the water from them. They contain, to start with, about 72 per cent of water, nearly all of which is removed by evaporation. By this means 105 pounds of dry material are obtained from 357 pounds of beets. The dry material contains more than 70 per cent of sugar—that is to say, there will be more than 70 pounds of sugar in every 100 pounds of the evaporated product. Accordingly, the latter, on being ground to a fine meal, is exceedingly sweet and well adapted for the making of cakes and puddings. It is estimated to contain something like 82 per cent of pure nutriment. The expectation is that this sort of flour will eventually come into extensive use, particularly in the manufacture of cakes and sweet bread. It is said to be not only very nutritious, but guaranteed to be germ free by reason of the high temperature to which the raw material is exposed in the process of evaporation.

Notice to Water Consumers

Beginning April 1, 1924, the water superintendent will begin making an investigation of faucets and those responsible for leaking faucets can expect that they will be taken before the recorder and fined according to the provisions of the city ordinance covering the case.

Water Superintendent.
