Log Jam on North Fork

Strenuous efforts were being put forth Thursday morning to keep the great log jam at the mouth of the north fork of the Coquille within the banks of the stream. Between 25,000,000 and 30,000,000 feet of logs have been held inside the mouth until the boom room in the lower river could be secured, says yesterday's Coos Bay Times.

Last week's drives in the upper parts of the stream added to the jam until it reached seven or eight miles up stream from the mouth.

The logs had started Wednesday afternoon to go over the banks and the fields were expected to be filled Thursday in spite of the fact that several thousand feet of cable was strung along the banks to make an improvised boom to hold them in the stream.

There is said to little danger of the boom across the mouth of the stream breaking and releasing the logs into the main stream because the river enters at such an angle that dead water is caused.

The logs in the stream are owned by Baxter & Barker, George H. Chaney, the Steel Creek Logging company, Moon brothers, Dennis McCarthy, Mast brothers and E. E. Johnson.

Two Fined by Judge Stanley

W. W. Mast paid a fine of $20 in Justice Stanley's court Wednesday evening for failure to stop and render aid after he had struck Art Berg's coupe on the highway at Davis Slough. Both cars had dimmed but Mast could not see Berg's car, which had driven two wheels three feet off the pavement to avoid the collision. Mast did not stop but the telephone was used and Traffic Officer Williams stopped him when he arrived in Coquille. A tire and tube were ruined on the coupe and both cars lost a hub cap.

Lewis Donaldson was fined $15 and his driver's license suspended for 90 days by Justice Stanley Tuesday. He ran into Roy Roberts' car near Hayden and damaged it to the extent of $107. His own car suffered a $50 damage.

Roberts' Narrow Escape

Ed Roberts narrowly escaped death Saturday evening when his car plunged from the highway just below Bridge and sank in the middle fork of the Coquille river. Roberts pushed the car door and jumped as the car left the road.

Steering gear of the car is believed to have broken as it became unmanageable and left the road before brakes could be applied. The middle fork is deep at that section and the car was completely immersed. Recovery of the car is doubtful as it may shift with the current.—News.

The proceeds of the sale will go towards the erection of a playshed on the school ground.

The pies were sold under the hammer with F. L. Horeny as auctioneer.

She Was Glen Ditto's Sister

There was a story in last Saturday's Oregonian from Eugene about a young lady who frightened a burglar away from her home in Springfield, as he was endeavoring to get her watch and chain. He had already secured money, and valuables worth $20 in another part of the house. The young lady was Miss Dorothy Ditto, a sister of Glen Ditto, of the Taylor-Ditto Battery station here.

What $2.25 Will Do

The DAIRY

IT IS POSSIBLE TO REDUCE FEED BILLS

The high price of commercial feeds indicates that farmers can well afford to give more attention to more and better home-grown feeds.

This statement comes from the New York State College of Agriculture with the suggestion that the dairy farmer might well turn toward the production of those roughages which will reduce feed costs.

Proteins in the form of high protein feeds, they say, is extremely expensive. The amount of gluten feed, cottonseed meal, and linseed oil meal ordinarily purchased can be reduced by the production of roughage rich in protein, such as alfalfa and clover. Heavy grain feeding is also expensive, and the quantity of grain fed can be lowered by growing roughages of high feeding value.

Alfalfa and clover will produce more protein and more total digestible nutrients to the acre—that is, more milk or meat to the acre, for example—than will timothy.

Experiments show that lack of mineral matter may frequently be the limiting factor in growing young stock, and in milk production. This applies especially to lime and phosphorus which are essential elements of both bone and milk. Phosphorus can be obtained in large quantities from wheat feeds, cottonseed meal, and linseed oil meal. Lime, however, must be obtained from roughages, and here again roughages rich in lime-usable live stock to make more efficient use of all the grain fed. Timothy has 2.5 pounds of lime in 1,000 pounds, red clover has 16 pounds, and alfalfa has 19.5 pounds.

The production of legumes means an increase in the feeding value of home-grown feeds, and where feed is given to the greater content of digestible nutrients in rations, reduction in feed costs results.

Lime in fairly large amounts is usually required to produce legumes successfully, but the cost and trouble of applying lime is more than counter-balanced by the increased fertility the legumes add to the soil.

Alfalfa Valuable Feed in Production of Milk

The value of alfalfa hay in dairy feeding was had a substantial demonstration in Cortland county, according to a report from the Cornell University at Ithaca, N. Y.

The college says that if more dairymen realized how the feeding of alfalfa decreases the cost of milk production, there would be an even more noticeable increase in the acreage of alfalfa. As it is, the growth of alfalfa increased in this state from 85,843 acres in 1909 to 119,733 in 1919.

The Cortland county test to which the college refers was made unwittingly by a dairyman. During the early part of the winter, his cows were being fed good alfalfa hay and a 20 per cent protein grain mixture. He had no silage.

The middle of January, the alfalfa in the mow from which he was feeding gave out and he started feeding timothy. Immediately milk production per cow began to decline at the rate of three pounds a day. Then the dairyman began feeding more grain, but even this did not check the decline. Not until the alfalfa was again reached in the mow did he succeed in getting his herd back to normal production.

Ancient Candlestick

Unique in appearance is an iron candlestick owned by a Los Angeles girl. This was given her ancestors by Henri II of France. It was used in the doughty monarch's hunting lodge, and is made of sturdy iron spirals set upon a round base on three bent legs. The candle fits down in the spiral, and there is an ingenious iron knob or handle which, when twisted, raises the diminishing candle a spiral at a time, so that the light may be kept even as the wax melts down.

The program will begin at 9 a. m. and continue throughout the day.
