

Broadbent Notes

On Thursday evening of Feb. 27, a program was given by the Seventh and Eighth grades, after which everyone took part in an old time spelling match. The spellers were divided into two divisions; Dorothy Hartley won the prize for school children and Mrs. Lulu True for the grown ups. A large crowd was in attendance and everyone enjoyed a good old time.

The ladies of the community are giving a play entitled, "The Old Maids' Club," Mar. 15th and a basket social. Everyone is invited to come. The proceeds are for the benefit of the school.

Naomi Roselle is able to be out in the sunshine. She was at school one day last week.

Wanda and Mabel Wilcox spent the week end at their home in Coquille.

Frank La Branche's sister, Mrs. Watson, is here from Seattle for a visit.

Mrs. Newhouse and Andy are visiting her daughter in Coquille.

Bert Bundell and family have moved to Camp 8 to take charge of F. C. Tru's new store.

Mrs. Finney, of Portland, is here visiting her daughter, Mrs. Ridings.

Delos Hermann, who broke his collar bone, came home from Myrtle Point Monday and is now able to be up.

Bernice Owens, from Marshfield, and Stanley Tucker, from Bandon, entered the Seventh grade Monday.

Grant and Margaret Wilcox with Grant Harry were callers in Broadbent Sunday.

The winners in the Spelling contest this month are: Wanda Brown, Pansy Nelson, Truman Wagner, Lloyd and Basil Smith, Mary Ellen and Dorothy Hartley, Dorothy and Auldron Warner, Agnes Emery, Thekla Moll, Leah Grant, Lucy Gibbs, Andy Newhouse, Everett Davenport, Val Lee.

Mrs. Glick is visiting her sister, Mrs. True.

Mrs. H. Lukens and son are visiting friends here.

EAST FORK NOTES

A reliable report is that wages at the logging camps have been cut 12 1/2 per cent.

When other folks are getting less the lawmakers raise the wages at the court house. I want to see that hoist in wages go to a referendum vote of the voters of Coos county.

When Jeff Thrift was in the legislature the same game was tried but it would not go into effect until the office had served out their terms of office. You did not hear anything more from those office holders about "increase of salary." Jeff Thrift was right on that job.

I have said that we never had a bell sheep caught by a wild animal. We lost a sheep a few weeks ago from which we have found scattered wool but no part of the carcass. We found the animal's card containing hair, looked like deer, a piece of bone and either the toe or declaw of deer or lamb; so I am inclined to think a coyote may have caught the sheep. Yet it was only a few rods from the barn, 10 or 15, and not being able to find any part of the carcass, it may have been a larger animal than a coyote.

Independence must feel happy that the state legislature made her a present of $145,000 for a so-called "training school." In other words the state of Oregon gives independence money to build a school house. For the Oregonian says Feb. 25, page 6, Senator Staple said: "The legislature should provide funds with which to erect a training school at Independence." Senator Taylor opposed the Beal's bill "for the reason that such a move would tend to injure the chances of eastern Oregon obtaining a normal school when the legislature meets two years hence." Not on the merits of the bill but for plum duff. That seems to be the way the normal school proposition was voted, as it has been in the past, according to trade and traffic rules. The newspaper report was that the supporters of the Ashland scheme were accused of trading votes.

The defeat of the fake game under the guise of "high school supervisors" is something for which to be truly thankful to the members of the state senate; for parasitic educators are a curse to the state, and a useless expense to the taxpayers.

Washington county, N. Y., had some winter in January, judging from weather reports in Whitehall, N. Y. Times: On the 19th 20 degrees below; 24th, 38 degrees; 25th, 25 degrees; 29th, 25 degrees; on the 21st, 12 inches snow fell; 30th 24 inches, a total for the month of 44 inches.

Section 1 of the Oregon Dairy Bull registration law reads as follows:

"No person, firm or corporation shall sell, give away, buy or accept, for dairy breeding use, any dairy bull that is not of registered pure blooded breeding and licensed to be sold within the state of Oregon." Further, "No person, firm or corporation shall use or offer for use for public service in this state any dairy bull that is not of registered pure blooded breeding."

The term "public service" is defined in this law as meaning "the breeding of any cow or cows in herds, consisting of more than five cows not owned by the owner or owners of said bull or bulls."

Section 2 says: "That a dairy bull registration board be established."

Section 3, That "The Dairy Husbandry Department of the Oregon Agriculture College shall act as ex-officio dairy bull registration board."

The law goes on to give rules, regulations, fines, imprisonments, etc. and this bull law cost me a good deal of unnecessary expense last year.

This year we shall sell our cows down to four, for I have not money to pay a fine or time to go to jail.

As soon as I can get money enough to stand the expense I shall fight that law through all the courts of the state, if necessary, for if that law will stick the legislators may make a law that you must keep a grey goose instead of a white one or a white goose instead of a grey goose; or that no hens shall be kept in Oregon except that mongrel breed of chickens hatched out by the Oregon Agricultural college and called "Oregonians."

I have just as much respect for the infallibility of the Oregon Agricultural College as I have for the infallibility of the Pope in Rome. And I have absolute contempt for the miserable infallibility pretenses of both outfits.

I wrote to S. P. Peirce about the bull law and his letter of Feb. 2 gives interesting information. He says: "Regarding those bull laws, I have fought them at every session of the legislature where that kind of legislation came up. At the last session I succeeded in defeating one of these bills, which was sponsored by Mr. Carrey, the pure bred Jersey cattle raiser, but he skinned around and got enough strength to have a vote by which it was defeated reconsidered, and then the law was passed." There you have the whole story of the object and purpose of the Oregon Bull law, which is a law to aid the bull raisers and give the Oregon Agricultural College a chance to look wise.

My brother-in-law, E. W. Hyde, of Oakland, Calif., visited us last summer, and he told me of a poofing concern in San Francisco, the president of which, being a member of the California legislature, got a law passed, which prohibited the use of shingles in the state of California for roofing purposes. The law was enacted by a referendum vote.

Then what did that fellow do—his home is in Berkeley—he got an ordinance passed in Berkeley that not a shingle could be used in Berkeley unless it is twice as thick as the regular shingle. And Mr. Hyde said—he is a carpenter, architect and builder—the ordinance is ignored, people don't pay any attention to it.

A man gets a law passed in Oregon to help sell bulls. A man in California gets a law passed to help him sell roofing paper. Twins.

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Moore, J. R. Benham and Mrs. Ernest Krewson went to Coquille Wednesday to see Mrs. Benham. They all returned the same day, with the exception of Mr. Benham, who is going to stay down for a while.

Julius Benham took Mrs. Tom Krewson and Mrs. Ernest Krewson down Sunday to visit with their mother.

Elmer Wilson took Jessie Laird to Fairview Sunday to bring out a team he had bought.

Mr. and Mrs. Hally Laird, Phyllis and Halletta were Coquille visitors Wednesday.

W. A. Nickason, while digging some potatoes this week, found a large smooth one that weighed a few ounces over four pounds and it was a perfectly solid, sound potato.

Myrtle Christensen went with her brother, Elvin Alfred, to Coquille Friday. Took Christina to see the doctor again. They returned Sunday.

Elmer Wilson and Arthur Jenkins made a business trip to Coquille Monday.

Mrs. Walter Laird is improving right along now, is quite weak, but can be up out of bed again.

Alice Jenkins has the full use of her arm again.
