

3 Simple Operations

and in a jiffy the Gregory "Jiffy-Dine" is changed from a living room table to a roomy dining table. With the improved new top-lifting device, an exclusive feature of the Gregory "Jiffy-Dine," its operation is so easy—so simple. Just pull the knob at the end of the table, draw out the leaves, push the knob back again. Could anything be simpler, easier more quickly done? The leaves are right under the top—instantly available.

Come in and let us demonstrate these tables to you.

EAST FORK NOTES

Ernest and Chester Krewson were telling me about their father's place at Drain, which their brother, Tom, bought. Their grandfather Krewson, who was a civil war veteran, came to Oregon soon after the close of the war and brought a bunch of mules with him. That was in 1866 or 1867. He gave a span of mules and $80 for the 160 acres, which became part of the town site of Drain. The farm now contains 87 acres, the house and 7 acres of land being in the town limits. Mr. Drain owned 160 acres and Krewson and Drain gave the right of way to the railroad through their land and agreed that on whichever side of their line the railroad placed the depot the "town" should be named in honor of the owner of that land. The better location for the depot was just across the Krewson line on the Drain land, hence, the town of Drain is on the map and a little station called "Krewson" is north of Drain. Tom having possession of the place puts the ownership in the third generation. Grandmother Krewson, who is now 87 years old, is living with a daughter at Terrebonne, Deschutes Co.

Mrs. McLean is successor to Edith Weekly as teacher in the Dora School. Edith has not recovered her physical strength since the doctors operated on her for appendicitis.

When Theodore and Mildred were over to father and mother Neely's at Fairview, they called at Mr. Sunneland's and saw his orphan cub bear. He was coming home from work on Sumner mountain and heard the creature walling in a gulch and no mother bear in sight or hearing, so he took the little cub home with him, its weight being 4 1-2 pounds. Mr. Sunneland had had the bear two weeks and it then weighed 5 1-2 pounds, the pound gained being made the second week. Its food is goat's milk taken from a nipple-topped bottle. The bear has already been taught tricks and to see it perform is a funny circus.

Milk goats and purebred Shropshire sheep are Mr. Sunneland's line. This, Tuesday, morning the first swallows of the season were looking for nesting places in the barn.

If the Harbor had printed the item referring to Tillamook and Coos and then the criticism, then the readers of the Harbor could have judged the item and the criticism on their merits.

I am glad the Coos Bay Times appeals the celebrated Peck libel suit. What does a man do when he tries to collect money to run a newspaper to suit the Roman Catholics. The testimony of Dr. Bunch of Coquille and the man from Myrtle Point did not seem to be guessing or hearsay evidence. If the Times has to pay the $1500 judgment, I will be glad to be one of 1500 people in Coos county to chip in $1 each to pay the judgment. The supreme court will settle it—as to whether it was libel.

The calamity in Illinois, Indiana and other states was told in big head lines. Yet there are nearly twice as many people killed by automobiles every month and a much greater number wounded and it seems to be considered of little consequence. I would like to see a suit brought against the state for wounds or loss of life in an automobile "accident." Then we would find out whether the state was in anyway responsible for its licenses.

I wonder how those taxpayers who are paying taxes until it hurts feel about the tower of babel that is on the program for the forks of the road in Douglas county.

I vote for the $280,000 bonds so the county may pay its debt and against the rest of the junk.

R. A. Easton.
