Made Use of Physical Deformity for Profit

There is at Ripon, in Yorkshire, England, an old hostelry, the Unicorn, at which is preserved an etching of a character who once was "boots" there. "Old Boots," as he was familiarly known to many who never knew him by any other title, flourished from about the middle of the eighteenth century, and now lies somewhere in the yard of Ripon minister. He was endowed by nature with a nose and chin so inordinately long and so tending to embrace each other that at length he acquired the power of holding a piece of money between them. Thus he was able to turn his deformity to commercial account.

It was a part of his duty to wait upon travelers arriving at the inn, to assist them in removing their boots; and he usually introduced himself carrying a pair of slippers in one hand and a bootjack in the other, and we are told that the company generally were so diverted by his appearance that frequently they would give him a piece of money on condition that he held it between his nose and chin.

Other times, other tastes, and it seems hardly possible that modern travelers would lend themselves to such an exhibition.

Along the Highway

The C. F. Club met with Mrs. Chas. Oerding last Friday afternoon. Mrs. L. F. Rice was presented with a beautiful myrtlewood tray by the members. After the short business session and social hour, Mrs. Oerding, assisted by her mother, Mrs. W. S. Smith, served delicious refreshments.

Glen Minard and Miss Irene Swartz were married Wednesday evening at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Minard. The young people have the best wishes of the community for a long and happy married life.

Lively Old Men

The "Old Men's Team" stepped out at the ball park Tuesday evening and held the "Youngsters" to an even score, 8 to 8 in eight innings. They say it was called on account of darkness but the real reason is that they wanted an excuse for playing another game. The tie will be played off next Tuesday evening at six o'clock.

Some of the has-beens were stepping around as spry as a yearling colt. There were errors galore, enough hitting to make the game interesting, and a lot of really good plays.

Jim Stevens captained the team from the old men's home, and Levi Wilson performed in that capacity for the kids.

"Hobble" Stairway

In a certain building in Skowhegan, Maine, is an unusual flight of stairs, which have a rise of 5 inches and a correspondingly narrow tread, looking as if they were made for the convenience of small children. This stairway was built according to the idea of Dr. Henry Leavitt, a dentist in the building. It was the day of the hobble skirt. Clad in a hobble skirt, any woman ascended a flight of ordinary stairs with difficulty and Doctor Leavitt planned the stairs with this style in mind. About the time they were finished, the style passed to await its resurrection, but the stairs will remain—a memorial to a forgotten freak of fashion.

Louisiana Purchase

Payment for the Louisiana purchase was not made in actual gold coin or bullion. The exact cost of the purchase was 64,000,000 francs in the form of United States 6 per cent bonds, representing a capital of $11,250,000. The ultimate cost would include not only the par value of the bonds, but also ten years' interest, the cost of surveying, of government exploration and of settling the lands. In addition, the American government agreed to assume and pay the obligations of France to American citizens for French attacks on American shipping. These obligations were estimated at $3,750,000, making a total payment of $15,000,000.

That Was the Trouble

A stranger on the main street of Hornesville, Ark., came upon a battered individual with both eyes blackened and face swollen with bruises, lying in a heap against the curb at the principal corner. "What happened to you?" asked the stranger with some agitation. "A feller beat me up," was the reply. "For not payin' a bill." "Why don't you send for a doctor?" "The doctor was here about a minute ago, pardner." "Oh, you're all right, then?" "Why, pardner," said the wounded citizen, "it was the doctor's bill I didn't pay."—Hygeia.

Beech for Fuel

Beeches are beautiful throughout the year. From the ground to their polished slender twigs the gray to brown bark is clean and smooth, and both bark and twigs are so distinctive that they are not to be confused with other trees of the forest. These trees are famed not only for their beauty but for their many useful products as well, says "Tree Habits" by the American Nature association. Their wood is valuable for lumber and is made into floorings, furniture, tool handles, brush backs and kitchen utensils. As fuel it has no superior.

POULTRY

CHECK BLACKHEAD IN TURKEY FLOCK

Every year blackhead in turkey flocks becomes a little more common, and every year the losses from the dread disease are a little larger. And while no positive treatment has ever been discovered, a remedy is being used by hundreds of successful turkey growers that proves very satisfactory if used before the fowls are in the last stages of the disease, says a writer in Successful Farming.

A slight lameness is usually discernible in a turkey coming down with blackhead. The bird gradually grows weaker, refuses to eat, but drinks an unusual amount. Diarrhea is usually present, and when the disease is in an advanced stage, the droppings are usually a bright yellow. The wings and tail are not held up. The head is drawn close to the body.

Sometimes the flesh parts of the head turn a bluish-black. If you are not sure whether it is blackhead or some other ailment that is affecting the bird, it will be wise to make a post-mortem examination. If the liver is covered with black or gangrene spots it will not be necessary to look further for the trouble. You may be sure blackhead is the trouble, and begin treatment accordingly.

Powdered ipecac may be used either as a remedy for blackhead or as a preventive. We prefer to use it as a preventive, as any disease is better prevented than cured. When blackhead enters your flock it usually causes the greatest losses before the pouls are six weeks of age. For this reason we begin feeding the ipecac to the pouls as soon as we begin feeding mash. It is fed in a wet mash—one teaspoonful of powdered ipecac to enough mash for 20 turkeys—twice a week. The same amount is given to the young birds and the mature fowls. This treatment will prevent blackhead entering your flock, though the youngsters are allowed to range with the older birds, and on infected ground.

If blackhead has entered your flock before treatment is begun, the sick birds should be fed half a teaspoonful of powdered ipecac in wet mash (for each bird) for three successive days. If the disease is not in the advanced stage it will not be difficult to remedy, but if the fowls are nearly dead when the treatment is begun, you cannot expect a large percentage of cures.

Heretofore, the only cure for blackhead has been to move to new, uninfected land, and this is usually only effective for the first season.

Do You Remember?

The following questions which are put to the record flock keepers of Iowa by the Iowa State college are pertinent suggestions to all poultry keepers. "Do You Remember?" they say: When milk ever spoiled the fertility or hatchability of an egg? When a chick didn't make good growth when it has milk in its ration? What a time you used to have getting a lot of early chicks hatched with hens? When you had a mongrel chick and wished some one would come along and get you started with a good breed? The time you had raising chicks on the old ground that had been used for 25 years without a change? How your chicks acted when they were affected by worms and coccidiosis? How you tried to fight internal parasites without new ground?

Poultry Facts

Milk in some form should be kept before chicks during the first month. One of the things that our culling should do is to weed out the persistent sitters. The heavy layers do not waste time in broodiness. Many chicks are not getting enough green feed. If they are not on range carry sod to them or fix up a feeder and give them cut alfalfa or clover hay. You'll be surprised how they will eat it. Wheat treated with copper carbonate to prevent stinking smut is not harmful to chickens, at least if fed for only a short time. Neither is it harmful to hogs, when fed in small amounts. Sunlight and cod liver oil are said to prevent leg weakness. So will getting the chicks onto the ground, either outside the brooder house or on chunks of sod placed on the brooder floor. Remember that heavy, sudden rains and floods do great damage to young poultry which are not given brooder housing under the right conditions. A house set low and open to rats and vermin is a menace to the profits of the flock.

Trees With Latin Names

Latin has always been the language of scholars. It is now a dead language and consequently not being subject to change—is helpful in giving to trees accurate names that can be used in all parts of the world, regardless of the language spoken locally. The Romans called the oak Quercus. We still use this word as the first part of the scientific name. Our native white oak is known by the scientific name—Quercus alba. The word "alba" is appropriate, for it means white, and refers to the white bark. The red oak is known by the scientific name Quercus rubra. The word "rubra" is also appropriate, for it means red and describes the distinctive feature of the tree.—Joseph S. Illick, in Tree Habits.

Identifying the Twins

Sir Henry Wood, the famous musician, is responsible for a delightful little story concerning baby twins who were so much alike that even their mother had difficulty in telling them apart. Not so their father, a piano tuner, who had his own professional way of identifying his offspring. He explained to the friend who was admiring them he told the difference by pinching them.

"Good heavens! You must not do that. You'll make them cry." "Precisely," replied the father. "That's the whole secret. Listen. This one"—nip—"is evidently William. He cries on the high C. The other, James"—nip—"is half a tone lower."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Seek Prevention of Rust

In discussing advancements made in the direction of rust control, the Iron Age declares that the imagination readily pictures the large possibilities of life extension in the substitution of such material for that which crumbles and disappears under common conditions of service. Two advance steps in the fight against rust are the direct and indirect method of supplying chromium. Patent complications which involve all rustless iron processes are said to be holding up their development on a commercial scale.

where will you go—when your home burns?

GRANTED that you have your home insured against fire, but how about the rent you will have to pay until you rebuild? Here is the proposition: you pay a small amount now and we'll pay you rent from the time your house burns until it is rebuilt. The cost of this Dwelling Rental Insurance is insignificant—often only $1 a year.

Geo. Topping Struck by Auto

George P. Topping, Bandon attorney, had a narrow escape from death Sunday night when he was struck by an automobile driven by Elton Burton. Mr. Topping was crossing Alabama avenue near the corner of First street and was near the curb when the car ran onto him. It was quite dark and a heavy mist falling. The driver was making a wide curve at a good rate of speed.

Mr. Topping suffered a broken nose, a badly wrenched knee and sprained wrist. He was also cut and bruised about the body. As a result of the shock he was confined to his bed for several days.—Western World.

Only $2.25 for the Oregon Farmer with the Sentinel for one year. The two papers make an excellent combination.
