Robert Clinton has returned to this city after visiting for some time in the vicinity of Albany.

S. D. Puffert, attorney of Coquille, was in town on business Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Matthews and son, of Fairview, were in this city on Friday.

The Ellison-White Christmas concert Saturday with the presentation of the play "Daddy-Long-Legs" by the Elias Day players. The play was very well given and enjoyed by everyone. Although there were some doubts as to the success of the Christmas at the first of the week, Myrtle Point to usual went "over the top."

The annual picnic of the M. E. Sunday School was held Tuesday at the Norway Grove.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Barker Sr. of this city, were Coquille visitors Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Barker and children returned to North Bend on Sunday.

Miss Alison Barker is spending the week in Marshfield as the guest of Miss Inez Woodworth, of that city.

The fire on Sunday at Camp 4 of the Coos Bay Lumber Company on Dumont Creek was the largest fire so far this year. Three derrick and their rigging were destroyed by the flames. The buildings on a homestead belonging to Ernest Barker were also destroyed.

Harrie Kitchener, Coos county Boy Scout executive, J. S. Tomlinson, of North Bend, and T. A. Shattwell, of Portland, were in this city Monday looking for a site for a summer camp for Coos Bay Boy Scouts. The camp will be established as soon as a suitable place is found. There will be a short stay there until school opens.

The M. E. Ladies Aid will meet Friday at the home of Mrs. E. C. Barker for a regular meeting, the first since the Fourth. Mrs. C. A. Barker will assist the hostess.

Fire at Camp 4 Sunday
 Last Sunday afternoon the southern sky here was filled with a dense pall of smoke, from a fire directly south of this city. Of course, it seemed to us here to be in standing timber but fortunately it was not. The story of the blaze is thus told in Monday's Daily News:

The most serious forest fire of the year in southwestern Oregon raged Sunday in 600 acres of slashings around camp 4 of the Coos Bay Lumber company on Dumont creek, destroying three derrick engines, burning an undetermined quantity of logs, damaging the railroad, and for a time threatening destruction of the camp itself.

The fire is said to have originated from a derrick engine and was fought throughout the day Sunday by a crew of 50 employees of the lumber company.

In an attempt to save some of the derrick engines Ray Williams, camp engineer, was caught in a whirl of flames and saved his life by crawling under a derrick engine.

Several futile attempts were made to penetrate the wall of fire and rescue the marooned engineer. Friends and relatives finally gave Williams up as lost but two hours later he reappeared unhurt. The derrick engine proved sufficient protection from the burning timber and Williams' chief hardship was difficulty in breathing.

For a time saving of the camp was despaired of but the fire fighters succeeded in cutting the blaze just at the edge of the camp. By cutting the entire fire was well under control and no further danger is threatened unless the wind changes. Fifty men were added to the crew Monday morning and it is not believed that the blaze will spread to green timber.

Sam Owen, in charge of the camp crew, was called from the funeral of Ruth Thomas, of Powers, in Marshfield, to help fight the blaze.

Married Forty-Six Years
 Del Cathcart, aged veteran and one of the earliest pioneers in Coos county, and his wife celebrated their 46th wedding anniversary Wednesday.

Cathcart and Miss Dora Lambeth of Lane county, Ore., were married here on July 25, 1899, and have since resided in this section.

Former Coquille Girl Married

The following account of the wedding of a former Coquille Valley girl we find in the Modesto, California, Herald. Mr. and Mrs. H. Crandall, the parents of the bride, were for years located at Craine's camp down the river here, where he was foreman.

At a beautiful home wedding in the presence of twenty-five friends and relatives, Miss Aris Crandall became the bride, of Delbert Hilde at high noon Sunday. The wedding was performed at the attractive new home of the bride's parents on McHenry avenue.

Just before the ceremony, Mrs. C. Barker sang "Oh Promise Me," and "I Love You Truly." She was accompanied by Prof. Carroll McKee. As the bridal party took their place in the flower bedecked room, Lebergren's wedding march was played by M. McKee. The bride was given away by her father. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Chester Taylor, pastor of the First Christian church.

The bride was charming in a white satin wedding gown trimmed in lace and pearls. The veil, from a wreath of orange blossoms fell in graceful folds to the hem of her gown. She carried a shower of roses and lilies of the valley.

Following the ceremony a reception was held and wedding luncheon served.

The following guests were present: Mr. and Mrs. P. K. Platt, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Brien and son, Marion, Miss Arlene Brien and Leona Smith, Mr. Milton Brien, all of Modesto; Mr. and Mrs. Homer Washburn, Mrs. H. P. Hansen and children, all of Lodi; Mr. I. Crandall, of Sacramento; Mr. and Mrs. George Thornhill, of Livingston and Warren Washburn, of Shastah.

Transit Is Laid Up
 The ferryboat Transit, between Marshfield and Estacada, was taken off the run the first of this week and put on the ways. The planks on her bottom are rotting and the county court has asked the federal inspectors to give her a final examination. Whether the boat will be repaired depends somewhat on their report.

Meanwhile there is no vehicular traffic across the bay to Estacada and passengers are carried in small boats.

The court is considering the purchase of a new, cable and steel and the operation of a ferry similar to the one used to transfer across the river here.

If the Transit is gone beyond repair, it will be necessary to do this whether the funds for the bridge are voted or not. If they are approved it will be at least two years before a bridge can be opened. If the funds are deflected the construction of a new ferry will have to quit all next year when the court will have had a chance to budget for it.

Will Never Die in Four Hours
 A young lad has been noticed lately by Bandon street residents chasing after robins in the fields. At first it was thought the boy was foolishly endeavoring to catch the birds by placing salt on their tails, but so that boy is anything but foolish. He goes fishing nearly every day at Lake Agassiz and the robins furnish him with bait. He watches the bird, pulling worms from the ground, and he waits until the worm is nearly drawn out of his hole when he makes a quick dash and the bird is frightened away and another juicy worm is laid snugly away in his pocket. That boy will never end his career in the posthouse.—Southampton L. I. Times.

Fell Unconscious on Street
 Thomas Michelson, who fell unconscious on the street at Marshfield Saturday, was identified as an ex-convict man. He served convicts with the 21st Engineers, Company E, being enlisted at Portland. Mr. Michelson was gassed and wounded in the war and has since been subject to striking spells such as occurred Saturday afternoon. He has been able to leave Marshfield yesterday and he returned to his home in Powers.

Death of a Pioneer
 E. W. Ballard, who has kept a store and peddler at what is known as Ballards, where the ferry across the river was also named for him, died last Saturday and was buried Monday. He was one of the best known residents of the lower river. He was born in Wrentham county, Iowa, Nov. 26, 1857, and came to Coos county in September, 1877.

The last survivor of the original "sawed wagon train" that left Shelburne, Vermont, in 1847, recently passed away in Spokane, Washington.
