Lifted a Tractor Off Himself

The many friends of Guy A. Cutlip will be pleased to learn that he is rapidly recovering from the serious accident that befell him a week ago.

Guy Cutlip with his brother, N. S. Cutlip was logging on Daniel Creek when Guy, operating his tractor down a steep mountain, suddenly became aware that his brakes were not holding. The machine out of gear, disaster stared him in the face, but true to the Cutlip spirit Guy "stayed with the ship." Within fifteen feet of his being victorious, the tractor turned over pinning him under it. Unable to breathe, Guy knew that he would be dead before aid could arrive so he attempted to lift the machine. Once, twice, he tried and not a budge, then the third time he lifted it from him. When his brothers and helpers arrived a few moments later, they found Guy in a dead faint. He was immediately rushed to the Smedburg hospital where every care has been taken for his recovery.

Guy has always been noted for his great strength as well as fine character, but this act performed is none other than superhuman strength.

Star Making Great Record

Without precedent in automotive history, the 1925 record of the powerful Star car goes down to motoring annals as one of the greatest series of achievements a motor car ever succeeded in placing before the public.

Automotive experts agree that there is really nothing of importance in the matter of high gear work that is left for the Star car to perform. There is nothing that will more clearly demonstrate its rugged power—power that has succeeded where others have failed—than the conquering of every well-known Western road in high gear.

They agree that in the history of the motor car there is no record like that of the Star—climbing steep hills under observation, sealed in high, placing them definitely under record as having been conquered. Now the forces of the Star organization are asking: "What is there left to do?"

From the northern to the southern boundaries of the United States the most tortuous roads into the mountains, popular demonstration hills in every locality, and hills, scores of them, that have never before been conquered under observation, all have fallen before the relentless Star hill climbing campaign.

Certified standard stock Star cars, under strict observation, have added these famous hills to the stellar honors achieved by Star during the past year, in exploiting the "Million Dollar Motor": Palomar Mountain (west side) near San Diego, Cal.; Huntington Lake, near Fresno, Cal.; round trip to Lake Tahoe from Sacramento, Cal.; climbing both the Slippery Ford and Meyers Grades; Yosemite Valley via Coarse Gold; Old Town, San Diego; Old Ferry Hill, Seattle; Micheltorino street, Los Angeles; San Bernardino to Lake Arrowhead, via the Waterman Canyon switchbacks; The Divide (both sides), Bisbee, Arizona; Camp Baldy from Pomona, Cal. Mt. Wilson, from Pasadena, Cal.; Oakland Avenue, Oakland, Cal.; Hill Street, Portland, Oregon; Mt. Diablo, near Oakland, Cal.; Bidwell Bar, Oroville, Cal.; Fish Creek Grade, Arizona; North Broadway and Mandana Boulevard, Oakland, Cal.; Lake Rosiger road near Everett, Washington; Alisp Hill, Salem, Oregon; Monroe street, Coos Bay, Oregon; Rowell Hill, Brownsville, Oregon.

Those hills, H. W. Curtis, director of sales and branches of the Durant motor company of California, pointed out, are but a few of the grades that have been climbed in the Star high gear demonstration campaign. They have resulted in countless demonstrations, while others have driven over the hills themselves, the Star car always acquitting itself with high honors.

"In this campaign," says Curtis, "we have not been content to do the things that others have done, even though the others happened to be much larger or higher priced cars. We knew we had the power with which to demonstrate, and proceeded about those demonstrations to make them conclusive beyond doubt. So we sent out to tackle the hills where others had failed, and the Star record today stands pre-eminent among hill climb records.

"We found out that it did not take 'professional' or 'stunt' drivers to accomplish these records. I will venture to say that nine out of ten Star car owners are high gear 'demonstrators' of no mean ability. They take pride in showing their friends the power of their cars. Hardly a day passes but what we hear of Star car owners who have some new tale to offer.

"Many factors have united to make the Star campaign a success. Four wheel brakes have played a leading part, because of the great factor of safety involved in their use.

"Rigidity of the chassis, the Tubular Backbone, help the Star car through the most gruelling of tests and over deeply rutted and rough roads and turns.

Every member of the Star sales and service organization throughout the country is proud of the great record, and a discussion of hill climbs anywhere today will bring in the name of the Star car in any group of motoring enthusiasts. The car itself, looking for more fields to conquer, finds itself stopped; for there are none.

Possible Horsepower

Charles P. Steinmetz calculated on the basis of collecting every raindrop that falls in the United States, and all the power it could produce on its way to the ocean, being developed, that there would be possible about 800,000,000 horsepower. This represents about the present annual consumption of coal.

Telling the World

"Oh, I've had my shot at this public-speaking stuff," remarked Antwerp Ahty, who has done just about everything in this world. "When I was a kid I used to call up my girl over a rural telephone." -Hamilton Royal Gaboon.

The Beachmen at State Fair

When the Bandon Beachmen returned from the state fair, says the Western World, they brought with them one of the cups given as prizes by the Oregon Association of Hospitality clubs for booster clubs participating in the competitive program on Friday. The cup won by the Beachmen was given for the largest percentage of membership represented, based on the distance traveled. The clubs contending were required to appear in the parade in the afternoon and also to put on a stunt at the stadium in the evening. The Beachmen's cup is on exhibition in the window of the Golden Rule store.

Cheers and applause greeted the Bandon organization when they made their appearance on the fair grounds. The float, beautifully decorated and representing a beach scene, was preceded by a banner with the caption, "Bandon-by-the-Sea, Come Play on Our Beach." Maid Undine and her court of mermaids appropriately costumed were seated upon rocks around the lighthouse on the float. The Beachmen, followed in regular formation.

After the program at the stadium in the evening the Beachmen distributed starfish through the crowds in the grandstand. About 500 were given away, and as one of the Beachmen put it, the people literally went wild to get the souvenirs. The Beachmen received more effective advertising in that one day than could be obtained through any other channel. One visitor at the fair was heard to remark, "Well, I have lived in Oregon forty years and this is the first time I ever heard of Bandon-by-the-Sea."

Good Deed Worth More

Natural born choir singer that we are, we are haunted by the possibility that the Lord would rather be praised by one noble deed than seventeen affected hallelujahs.—Houston Post-Dispatch.

Feminine Attack

A Los Angeles woman buried a robber in the stomach, laying him out, which was using her head.—Vicksburg Herald.

Vocabulary Less Voluble

An adjective doesn't sound old and threadbare to the man in whose complimentary write-ups it appears.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Coals of Fire Note

Doing an injury puts you below your enemy; revenging one makes you but even with him; forgiving it sets you above him.—Benjamin Franklin.

Dog's Character

One often hears it said that a dog acquires the character of its owner. It is true that bad treatment will sour the disposition of a dog that was originally good-tempered, and it is equally certain that good and wise treatment will bring out all the best in a dog's nature; but neither bad nor good treatment can change the original character of the dog.

Boredom in Marriage

Madame, does your husband bore you? Certainly. . . . But you probably bore him as much as he bores you. Often what a woman regards as her loveliest trait annoys her husband most. . . . You may say the brute shouldn't be that way. But he is, so let us reason together more reasonably.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

Canary Ventriloquist

A canary that sings, then replies ventriloqually as if the notes came from far away, is owned by a New Zealand man.

The Jelly Roll

The record, says a scientist, shakes like jelly; but maybe he has been going to too many dances.—Columbia Record.

Seems Reasonable

Even a one-horse man can accomplish a good deal if he keeps driving.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Bequest to Workhouse

A woman inmate of the workhouse at Bridgewater, England, left $1,500 to the institution at her death.

Their Motto

The motto of those elusive holiday men seems to be: "There is no arrest for the wary."—Boston Transcript.
