Did the poet say, "He who laughs best laughs last"? We are optimistic.

Bobbette has ceased to sing. What's the matter? Is it the flood, the closing of the prayer meeting, the small attendance at Sunday school, the above scores or merely the winter solstice that has interfered? The days are getting longer, the flood is over, the prayer meeting must be re-vised, the attendance at Sunday school doubled and the above scores reversed. The very prospect is enough.

Bobbette says:

"I've a lovely secret I would like to tell But I mustn't speak it near Coquille. Everybody knows it here in Arago, But don't tell Coquille; it would scare her so!"

(We will let Coquille in on this se-cret February 5th, if no flood pre-vents.)

Mrs. Sanders and Mrs. Bennett and Mr. and Mrs. Sevy are planning on taking the special reading Circle work for credit at the state university.

Letha Munford has been out of school for a couple of weeks with what was supposed to be a sprained ankle. An X-ray examination re-vealed that a bone was broken.

The high school library has been classified and catalogued and the books repaired. Although the work is not quite completed, it is in shape that books can be loaned properly. The library will be open four half hour periods each week. Esther Crowley and Helen Hampton will act as librarians.

Mr. and Mrs. Stauff and son, Wil-iam have returned home from Ala-meda, California.

EAST FORK NOTES

Ted Brown, who is hauling myrtle stumps and logs from Albert Christen-sen's place, went down one day with one stump which was a load for his truck. It weighed in the neighborhood of 3,500 pounds. Ted expects to fin-ish his job this week.

Carl Laird has a Ford runabout, which is one of the prettiest cars which go down and up the East Fork.

Mr. Kay and his crew are putting into Elk creek for Bert Folsom about 100 logs a day.

The young Chinese who got so many worthless checks cashed in Portland, is the one exception accord-ing to the police statements of a Chin-aman being crooked in his business dealings. That which seemed to strike this young man the hardest was his realizing the fact that his act of dishonesty might give his coun-trymen a bad name.

Chinese are peculiar. Peculiar for the reason they are honest and their honesty does not tarnish with the years or by their association with the whites.

Senators Bailey, Brown, Butts, Dunn Eddy, Elliott, Jones, Joseph, Marks, Staples, Strayer and Corbett are men of whom their constituents and the state need not be ashamed.

Saturday morning was the coldest of the winter, 24 degrees above in the kitchen.

Elmer Wilson, who has the mail contract said, "It is a morning that makes a man feel his oats."

The day I rode to the road meeting at the Marcy place with Mr. Benham and Ernest Krewsen, when we were crossing section eleven and were look-ing at the hills across the river, it was mentioned that those logged off hills would make good sheep range.

Ernest said: "I lost lots of sweat on those hills." Then he went on to say that he and Clyde Norton felled 4430 trees on three forties, which scaled out 6,000,000 feet in round numbers. They were felling ten and a half months; actual time worked was about 200 days. That gave an average of 22 trees a day or better, and an av-erage scale of 30,000 feet a day. The timber was on the Wm. Abernethy claim, Sec. 14. R. A. Easton.
