Matt L. May's "Confessions" to Chicken Raisers

Some poultrymen pay as much attention to their Scratch Feed for their hens as some of us do to our wives' request to wipe our feet before we come into the house. I guess it's human nature to allow ourselves to become lax in matters which seem to be relatively unimportant. Yet Scratch Feed is the balance wheel of poultry feeding—and it can have a very direct bearing on your egg production. Whether or not you are feeding the right amounts to say nothing of the quality of grains, their freedom from undesirable products will mean the difference between profit and loss.

The man who buys Scratch Feed on price is a gambler—and yet he may be a pillar of the church. The soundness of the grains used, their freedom from excessive moisture, their freedom from weed seeds and the proportions of the grains in the formula all have a bearing on the price. You don't get something for nothing—just remember that when you are tempted by price.

Sperry Scratch Feed will stand your most careful inspection—and when used with Sperry Surelay will give you best results. You try it.
