MANLESS TRACTOR AMAZES FARMERS

Plows Without Guidance in Exhibition Test.

Lincoln, Neb.—A machine that plows a field without human guidance was given a demonstration at the agricultural college farm recently. Groups of interested persons watched the machine as it went about alone, with no hand at the wheel, guided solely by an arm carrying a shoe gliding along the furrow made on the previous round. To prepare a field for this operation requires that the first furrow be made under guidance and that the cultivars be rounded off by the same means to permit the machine to plow around the field without stopping. A safety pilot, the invention of Frank L. Zybuech, a young farmer, guided the plow around this field without stopping, except when for demonstration purposes the guide was lifted out of the furrow. Then the machine automatically came to rest. A simple device costing from $30 to $50 which can be attached to any tractor can be made to guide a gang of plows day and night, 22 hours out of 24 if necessary, with only the casual attention of the farmer. The machine plowing can go on all day and all night. It only requires two hours out of the 24 to water and fuel and care for the engine. Even the experimental machines have been left alone to plow, while the farmer goes to town and remains away for hours.

Roosevelts to Lead Hunting Army to Alaska

Juneau, Alaska.—Turning from Africa to Alaska, from expensive safaris to airplane hops, big game hunters will flock in unaccustomed numbers to the north this summer, reports H. S. Patterson are some named by him as already booked for the big bear and moose country. It will be big game hunting de luxe, for a tour company has chartered two airplanes to convey hunters and equipment to the interior.
