

Why Experiment?

The man who buys the Goodyear tire buys a reputable product, of known value and superior quality.

He buys a tire sinewed with long staple cotton, armored with best quality rubber, embodying the most efficient construction yet devised.

He buys the tire famed the world over for long and economical mileage, distinguished everywhere for freedom from trouble. He also buys our pledge to give him the kind of service that will get out of the tire all of the mileage built into it at the Goodyear factory.

Come in and let us show you what Good year really means.

Music as a Pastime or as a Livelihood

If you wanted your son to be a tailor, would you ask a tailor to give him one lesson a week and then let him practice for one-half or one full hour daily on making clothes? Music is a more profound and difficult study than tailoring. A great many people earn their livelihood through music, just as a great number earn their livelihood by tailoring. If you want your boy to reach that livelihood earning stage, then he will have to work about six hours a day and take at least one lesson daily. However, if your aim is merely to have him study music as a form of culture, just as one would study French, Latin, Spanish, drawing, etc., within the day's work, devoting a fraction of the day's study to each, then, of course, he will derive a great deal of beneficial and worthwhile knowledge from them all, but very little real and lasting knowledge from any particular one.—Musical Observer.

Optimism vs. Pessimism

The talk was of the pessimism of the young. "I do not understand why," said one. "You would think that young people would be all optimism with the future before them. You would think they'd see life as a rosy path. It seems to me the middle-aged and the old have more reason to be pessimistic. They have seen their illusions and their enthusiasms go one by one."

"Because they are middle-aged and old is the very reason for their optimism," said another. "They have learned by the time they reach mature years that nothing is so bad as it seems and that this is a pretty good old world after all."—Springfield Union.

Satisfied

A short-sighted man who was also very inquisitive was walking in the country one day when he saw a notice board nailed on a tree that stood in a field. As he could not read the notice at that distance, curiosity prompted him to climb over the fence and walk across the field toward the tree.

A few moments later he managed to scramble back over the fence just in time to escape the horns of a raging bull.

"Well," he gasped breathlessly, "I had the satisfaction of finding out what the notice was."

It said, "Beware of the Bull."

Flowers at Weddings

It is impossible to state when flowers were first used at a wedding, since this is a very ancient custom. Orange blossoms were worn and carried by brides from the earliest times, as they portend luck and happiness. Spenser and Milton were of the opinion that the orange was the golden apple presented to Jupiter by Juno on her wedding day. It was customary for the Anglo-Saxon bride to give her friends small knots and ribbons to wear or carry on the wedding day. This custom still survives in the bouquets of the bridesmaids.
