Eugene Defeats Coquille Again

Carl Gilbert who relieved Jack Pillsbury in the second inning of last Sunday's ball game with Eugene, pitched the best game he has turned in this year, but Coquille lost 8-4.

Numerous errors of omission and commission aided the visitors to run their score way above what their hitting entitled them to.

Baker, for Eugene, had the local sluggers at his mercy and held them to four safe blows, one of them a home run by Fortier. Baker struck out nine and was at all time master of the situation.

The same day Myrtle Point sprung a surprise on the Coos Bay Pirates by winning a 3-2 game. Manning pitched for Myrtle Point and Dwyer was in the box for Coos Bay.

Osmond to Be Chief at Bay

Frank B. Osmond, who resigned his position as chief deputy sheriff a few weeks ago, was appointed by Mayor Cook and the appointment was confirmed by the council Monday evening as chief of police at Marshfield. A salary of $180 a month goes with the position.

The appointment was made following the resignation of Jack Carter who first became chief in Marshfield nearly 32 years ago. At the same time "Curley" Richardson tendered his resignation and for the present Chief Osmond and Matt Coy will constitute the force at Marshfield.

Poultrymen to O. A. C. July 17

Poultrymen of Oregon will gather again this year for their annual convention on the campus of Oregon State college to review the year just ended and discuss the future. Dates announced are Wednesday and Thursday, July 17 and 18. Whether successful poultrymen attend or whether their attendance helps make them successful is a question ranking with the famous one as to which came first, the hen or the egg.

C. C. Carter Leaves Myrtle Point

C. C. Carter and family left Monday for Forest Grove, where they will establish their future home. The Carter family have lived in and near Myrtle Point for the past 46 years and have a large circle of friends who wish them well in their new home. Mr. Carter has been engaged in logging operations most of the time of his residence here. The family home on Fourth street has been bought by the Tom Sumerlin family who moved in Sunday.—Myrtle Point Herald.

LET US SPRAY

Kill the Vermin or the Vermin Will Kill Your Profits—Fowls That Are Free From Vermin Lay Better and Resist Disease More Easily.

Not long ago I was asked by an amateur poultry raiser, whom I know slightly, if I would look over his flock and see what made them so droopy, dispirited and unproductive. They were "all outa pep" was the way he put it. It took only a moment's examination to disclose the reason for this undesirable state of affairs. His hens were just about being eaten up by chicken lice.

I asked to see the hen house and what I saw was what is all too often seen. An old roughly built shed had been hastily converted into a hen house. To say there were ten thousand and hiding places for vermin would be a most conservative estimate. No attempt at sanitation or disinfection had ever been made. Ancient table scraps in various stages of decomposition proved attractive tidbits for myriads of flies. Mouldy straw lay about on the dirt floor, and dropping boards being something this chap had never heard about, the droppings served to still further befoul the already disgusting litter. In short, if I had wanted a particularly horrible example of almost anything one should not do in poultry raising, I could have found it here. I really marvelled that the poor birds had been so lucky as to suffer nothing worse than their painful burdens of lice.

Turning to my acquaintance, I said: "Charley, there are a lot of things that ought to be done here, but I have a little story that will help you to remember one of the most important." Then I told him that story about the mother skunk and several of her little ones who were being pursued by a hunter. The hunter gained ground quite rapidly, which alarmed the youngsters not a little. "Just be patient, children," admonished the mother, "I'll tell you what to do when the time comes." The hunter continued to gain, and finally the mother called a sudden halt. As the hunter, seeing success at hand, plunged boldly forward, the mother skunk remarked calmly and confidently, "Now children, let us spray."

Of course, the first thing to do was to make a thorough clean up of the whole place. Then, a strong solution of Dip and Disinfectant was sprayed into every crack and crevice. Lime was dusted liberally over the dirt floor in order to neutralize its sour odor and make the place still more uncomfortable for lice, mites, bedbugs and other insect pests. Then the hens were dusted well with Lice Powder to kill the parasites on their bodies, and the dusting was repeated in seven days time. Now, whenever I meet my friend, Charley, he invariably greets me with a gesture which indicates the manipulation of a spray pump and with an air of mock piety exclaims, "Doctor, let us spray!" He also has a tale to tell of a reborn flock that is taking a new interest in life and actually seems to be trying to make up for the time they lost before Charley learned his lesson.

While this case was an extreme one, the same story is being enacted many times over and not always with a happy ending. With proper construction of houses and equipment, proper sanitary arrangements and an occasional clean-up and disinfecting campaign, the problem of vermin is seldom encountered.

Where those three points are not observed, however, vermin takes possession and profits suffer with the poultry. Lice, fleas, ticks, mites, bedbugs and many other pests in infinite variety either suck the life blood right out of their unwilling hosts or cause almost unbearable irritation. In either case, the fowl is seriously weakened, and the various bodily functions, including that of egg laying, are seriously hampered. Furthermore, while parasites are seldom directly responsible for death, except in cases of extreme neglect, they do often sap the vitality to such an extent that fowls become easy prey to disease.

These pests are preventable. It is no disgrace to have them show up on your premises, but it is a disgrace to let them remain. Not only that, aside from humane considerations which are too plain to need emphasis, it is mighty poor business to take a cut in the profits of any business when the cause of such a cut can so easily be removed.
