The First National Bank of Coquille—Oldest Bank

The First National Bank of Coquille, the oldest bank of the county operating continuously under one management, well reflects with credit the success achieved in all lines of business, industrial and agricultural endeavor in this country. There is a history of continuous growth and progress. The excellent conditions that are shown in the bank statements of Coos and Curry counties are in themselves one of the best advertisements for this country.

IMPOSING STRUCTURE OCCUPIED BY FIRST NATIONAL BANK

One of the leading financial institutions and one that has served the public and grown with the country's progress for many years is the First National Bank of Coquille.

This bank bears the distinction of being the first national bank to operate here and the oldest bank in the county operating continuously under one management and stock ownership.

The bank was organized originally in 1903 with a capital of $25,000. Among the prime movers in the original organization were A. J. Sherwood, L. H. Hazard, R. C. Dement, L. Harlocke, I. Hacker and R. E. Shine. These were all local people and stock and management to this date has always been in the hands of prominent local people. Four of the original organizers are still with the bank. These are Messrs. Sherwood, Hazard, Dement and Shine. In 1910 their business had grown to such proportions that more modern quarters were deemed necessary. The above modern structure was erected in this year and capital increased to its present figure of $50,000. Some idea of the strength and reliability of this important Coos county institution may be gleaned from looking over their last statement. It shows a capital of $50,000, surplus and undivided profits of more than $33,000 and total resources of more than $700,000. Officers and directors today are as follows: A. J. Sherwood, president, who has been a resident and identified with the business life of this country since 1883; L. H. Hazard, vice-president and general manager, who excellent banking and investment authority. His advice is much sought after.

Aside from these officers there are included in the board of directors R. C. Dement and C. T. Skeels.

The management of the bank has great confidence in the future of this country and looks in particular to great future agricultural development. With more farmers will come more production, more development, more industries and more general prosperity.
