R. A. Easton's Weekly Letter

In one of the speeches against slavery Charles Sumner said, "The slave is the humblest and grandest figure of our times. In his presence all other questions are so petty that for a public man to be wrong with regard to him is to be wholly wrong."

Those words, said about the slave by Senator Sumner in pre-war days and war days and a public man who was wrong on that question, apply to the prohibition and law enforcement questions of today. And the names of those anti-prohibition and anti-law enforcement congressmen in the present congress will go down in dirt like unto their predecessors in favor of slavery.

There is no compromise between positive right and positive wrong. "What concord hath Christ with Belial? What agreement hath the temple of God with idols?"

The compromises made by the congresses in slavery days did not right any wrong; they simply postponed and enlarged the days of war and bloodshed. Any who would make compromises with the 18th amendment or the Volstead act, while they may be conspicuous things in the limelight of their noise, shall not accomplish their purpose and their names will go down into the pit of oblivion as the sons and daughters of Belial.

An one hundred years' warfare against the lawful making of drinkards is not to be sacrificed for the reason that ten years of constitutional law has not been able to wipe out as with a fairy's wand the depraved appetite of depravity which centuries of guzzling has created.

Law enforcement against prohibition has not been a failure, unless the law against theft has been a failure, unless the law against murder has been a failure, unless the law against narcotics has been a failure, unless the Mann act has been a failure, unless you count that all laws for the welfare of mankind, animals, fish and birds are failures.

Verily the prohibition law has been better enforced than many of these other laws mentioned for it has had to be enforced not only in the face of the opposition of the boozier, the harlot and the dirty politician, but also by those who, like the silversmiths to Diana objected to Paul's preaching, for the reason "by this craft we have our wealth." Some of those congressmen are like Demetrius, they have their constituents shouting, "Great is Diana of St. Louis, Great is Diana of Milwaukee, Great is Diana of New York." There is no question but that the silversmiths to Diana had to go out of business with Diana. Without regard to what the political boozier congressmen tell them, the brewers are closed by the eighteenth amendment to stay closed.

An article in the Oregonian of Feb. 3 quotes John C. Lodge, ex-mayor of Detroit, as saying that prohibition in Detroit cannot be made a fact by its metropolitan police. Yet further on he says the police did close the booze places which he told them to close. Why did he not tell them to close them all?

A letter of Jan. 14 from a relative in Northfield, Ohio, says: "We are about 17 miles south of Cleveland and Akron is just as many miles south of us. It is said in automobile journals that this is the most traveled piece of road in the country, between the two cities. We can believe that it is. One grows very tired of seeing the almost continuous streams of traffic, although it is not so bad this season of the year when the doors are closed. This road is one of the many strong arguments why there can be no repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Whatever may be said about lack of enforcement the number of accidents about here is small but what there are, usually have some liquor mixed up with them."

Booze and gasoline do not mix any better in Ohio than in Oregon.

American makers of automobiles have asked Hoover to protest to the French and German governments against any reprisals for prohibitive tariffs carried in the Hawley-Smoot bill. We don't seem to like to play the game of tit for tat, when the tit for tat is not coming our way. Strange, isn't it?

Red Cross Officials

Make Statement

At a meeting of the officers of the Coos & Curry Chapter of the American Red Cross held Wednesday, January 29, it was decided that in view of the great number of calls which were being made upon the Chapter throughout both counties this year a statement should be made to the members and to the communities regarding the work which was being carried on.

In speaking of the meeting, Mair A. Dano, secretary of this chapter, stated that during the past five years the expenditures had exceeded the income by approximately one thousand dollars a year and owing to this heavy drain on the treasury the funds were being rapidly exhausted. "For several years," stated Mr. Dano, "the Roll Calls had been steadily decreasing and the expenses had been increasing. More and more ex-service men are needing help and medical treatment and this, of course, is the main work of the Red Cross. In numerous cases the effects of the war are just beginning to be felt and we are told by authorities that the peak has not yet been reached."

In addition to the work among ex-service men the local chapter has been doing a great deal of civilian work. This is work which we feel should be done by the various community relief agencies and county courts.

Mrs. Haines, the chapter chairman, stated that the relief work of the Red Cross was properly confined to disaster relief. "If we should have a disaster of any kind in either of these two counties," said Mrs. Haines, "the Red Cross would take entire charge and the local chapter would have at its disposal unlimited funds and workers to care for any emergency." This in itself is a form of insurance which means much to any community, as has been witnessed by earthquakes and floods in various parts of our country. The Red Cross is not and cannot be a charity organization as it is not chartered by Congress for that purpose. Social problems involving charity or civilian assistance must be handled by local organizations, like the community chests, which are organized for that purpose.

Mr. Bosterud, in speaking of the meeting, said that the popular misconception of the purpose of the organization made the administration of Red Cross funds particularly difficult. If Mrs. Smith tells Mrs. Brown that the new family who arrived last week in a dilapidated flivver, with six children, are expecting a new arrival and that they have nothing to eat, the first thought is to call the Red Cross; if the children in that poor family need to have their adenoids out, call the Red Cross. "These are not Red Cross problems," continued Mr. Bosterud, "but we often overstep our limits and strain a point to help these unfortunate."

The general feeling at the meeting as expressed by Mr. Lewis was that the local chapter, by reason of shortage of funds and lack of co-operation at Roll Call time, must curtail its expenses and live within its income. Mr. Lewis stated that there were no paid workers in this chapter. If we had to pay a salary as is done in most chapters, we could not keep going six months on our income.

The Board went on record as favoring strict compliance with the constitution and charter and the officers were instructed to refer all cases not coming under the proscribed work to the civilian agencies which are organized for that purpose.

Those present at the meeting were: Mrs. A. T. Haines, chairman; Mair A. Dano, secretary; Herbert A. Bosterud, treasurer; E. P. Lewis and Dr. Geo. E. Dix, directors.

70 Families During January

Results of the classified advertising campaign now being conducted by the state chamber of commerce throughout the country are revealed in the January report which shows that 70 families were located in all parts of Oregon. During January, 1929, there were but 26 new arrivals. Investments showed a marked increase, from $72,850 in January, 1929, to $255,000 during the first month this year. Acreage of Oregon lands went up from 418 acres purchased by new families in 1929 to 14,485 in January, 1930.

The tremendous interest in Oregon which has been aroused by the state chamber is shown by the 298 letters of inquiry received one day by the state chamber and the average of 160 per day for the month of January. Manager Ide states that in all his years of land settlement work he has never seen such interest on the part of substantial families, amply financed to insure success in a new country as has been manifested in Oregon recently.

Motorist to Judge: "Your honor, I do carry insurance on my car. Noshler and Walker at Coquille are the agents."

Judge: "That identifies you as a law-abiding citizen and a careful driver. Case dismissed."

M. P. Faculty to Present Play

The union high school faculty at Myrtle Point is presenting the comedy, "A Full House," Wednesday and Thursday evening, February 12 and 13. Two years ago the faculty staged, "Stop Thief" before a packed house, so this year's play will be given two nights.

Imagine a reckless and wealthy youth who writes ardent love letters to a designing chorus girl, an attorney brother-in-law who steals the letters and then gets his handbag mixed up with the grip of a burglar who has just stolen a valuable necklace from the mother of the indiscreet youth, and the efforts of the crook, to recover his plunder, as incidents in the story of a play in which the swiftness of the action never halts for an instant. Not only are the situations screamingly funny but the lines themselves hold a fund of humor at all times.

This cleverest of all farces was written by Fred Jackson, the well-known short story writer, and is backed by the prestige of an impressive New York success and the promise of unlimited fun presented in the most attractive form. A cleaner, cleverer farce has not been seen for many a long day.

The faculty of the union high school is endeavoring to do something for the community and the proceeds will be used for a tennis court fund.

Outlook Service for Farmers

The Federal Farm Board warmly commends to American farmers the Outlook Service provided by the Federal Department of Agriculture and the Agricultural Extension Service in the various states.

Improved farm income requires planned production and effective marketing. In any one year, wise production planning must precede effective marketing. In spite of all that nature does, a large responsibility for farm outturn rests with the farmers themselves. The surest way to control an oppressive surplus is to prevent it. No marketing machinery can insure good prices and satisfactory income if the farmer plants and breeds unwisely. The day is past when farmers can safely plan on the basis of current or last year's prices, or on guesses about the future. Planting and breeding operations should rest on the best possible size-up of the market outlook at home and abroad for a year or more to come.

Such an appraisal is given in the Outlook Report, just released by the Department of Agriculture. It has been prepared jointly by a large corps of experts, inside and outside the Department, drawing upon several years of experience. It deals with prospects for domestic and foreign demand, both in general and for individual crops and livestock products. It is not a prophecy and will probably not be 100 per cent correct. It does not tell each farmer what to do. But it furnishes information that no farmer can get by himself, and that each farmer ought to take into account in planning his own operations.

In the next few weeks this Outlook Report, with special applications to local conditions, will be discussed with farmers in every state of the Union by the Extension Service of the Federal Department of Agriculture and the State Agricultural Colleges. In recent years they have made splendid progress in bringing such outlook statements home to farmers. The results have been gratifying, but they ought to reach a great deal farther. The Federal Farm Board heartily commends this service to the farmers of the country and believes that it will contribute largely to increasingly intelligent farming operations and toward larger farm incomes.

45,500 Eggs a Minute

Hens on American farms in 1929 produced eggs at the rate of 45,500 a minute, U. S. government statistics show, while poultry as a whole created a net income of more than $1,181,000,000 for the farmers of the nation. This places poultry well above wheat, oats, fruit, potatoes, and a long list of other farm products in rank as money makers for farmers.

Increased egg production is the first step to greater profits from the poultry flock. Hens must lay from 140 to 170 eggs a year to return a good profit to their owners, while the average for American farms is only 70 eggs per hen per year. Replacement of low-grade stock, and improved methods of caring for hens offer the two quickest methods of securing best results from the poultry flock, poultry experts advise.

Happy Woman Tells How She Lost 19 Pounds of Fat in 27 Days

During October a woman in Montana wrote: "My first bottle of Kruschen Salts lasted almost 4 weeks and during that time I lost 19 pounds of fat—Kruschen is all you claim for it—I feel better than I have for years."

Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings into blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses.

Every morning take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast.

Be sure and do this every morning for "It's the little daily dose that takes off the fat." Don't miss a morning. The Kruschen habit means that every particle of poisonous waste matter and harmful acids and gases are expelled from the system.

At the same time the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels are toned up and the pure, fresh blood containing Nature's six life-giving salts are carried to every organ, gland, nerve and fibre of the body and this is followed by "that Kruschen feeling" of energetic health and activity that is reflected in bright eyes, clear skin, cheerful vivacity and charming figure.

If you want to lose fat with speed get an 85c bottle of Kruschen Salts from Fuhrman's Pharmacy or any live druggist anywhere in America with the distinct understanding that you must be satisfied with results or money back.
