R. A. Easton's Weekly Letter

There are men in the United States senate who appear to have no sense of values. The time which they consume in idle talk is as nothing to them. The respectable position into which they have been placed is to them as a vanity bag from which they may pull out articles to doll themselves up in newspaper headlines. It would naturally be supposed that a man who has been sent to the United States senate would be without yellow streaks or the blotched garments of a clown, but when things like those wear the senatorial title who opposed the confirming of Charles Evans Hughes for chief justice of the United States, it not only causes one to have contempt for the office of senator but it causes a greater contempt for the low-down intellectual capacity exhibited by men who by a chance turn of the wheel of fortune have become possessed of a senatorial togged mind and thus be able to strut upon the public stage for a season. The attack on Mr. Hughes by a handful of senators was as nothing to him, was as nothing to the great multitude of the people of the United States or of the world. I believe it to be true that there is no man in the United States of America for whom all kinds and conditions of people have a greater respect and sure confidence in his conscientious ability for the office of chief justice than Charles Evans Hughes. And that there is no man for whom the people of the nations of the earth regard more highly for learning, for knowledge of law and for unblemished character.

The salvation of this country is its protection by the Supreme Court from the mullings and slobberings of the rabble and the mob in the United States senate.

It may be it was the influence of the pro-slave rabble and mob in the senate that influenced the Supreme Court to render its infamous Dred Scott decision in 1857. Senators must keep hands off from influencing decisions for the Supreme Court. One experience of that kind is enough in the life of a people.

The following clipping taken from Amos R. Wells' page in Christian Endeavor World of January 23, gives evidence as to whether it would be profitable for the United States to follow the example of Canada in its relations to the booze question. The effect of hell's brew is not governed by international boundary lines.

R. A. Easton.

That Canadian Panacea

Reasonably charged with trying to overthrow prohibition without having anything to suggest to take its place in curbing the liquor traffic, the wets continue to follow the leadership of Governor Smith which proved so disastrous in the last political campaign, and urge the adoption of the Canadian system of government control.

That system, as is becoming increasingly clear, is popular with the wets simply because it gives them more liquor and greater license. Here are seven questions which were addressed to that influential paper, the Toronto Globe, by a gentleman in Philadelphia, with the illuminating answers of an editor of the Globe:

"1. Is it your opinion that government control makes for real temperance? Answer: No.

"2. Does government control decrease or increase the consumption of liquor? Answer: Liquor consumption has doubled in Ontario in two years.

"3. Does government control decrease or increase the number of drunken drivers of automobiles? Answer: Drunken drivers have multiplied by ten, while cars have doubled.

"4. Has death from accidents due to drunken drivers increased under government control? Answer: Yes, enormously.

"5. Have industrial accidents decreased under government control? Answer: No. Increasing seven per cent faster than pay-rolls.

"6. Has government control eliminated the bootlegger? Answer: Large bootlegger eliminated, but small bootlegger multiplied.

"7. Has government control proved any benefit to the young people? Answer: No."

These replies are in accord with everything learned from Canada. The dominion would repudiate the system of government control tomorrow if it were not for the immense sums obtained by Canadians from illicit liquor sold to the United States. The majority of the people of Canada are ashamed of the whole miserable business. Some day they will get courage enough to overthrow it.

A Jersey Herd's Record

The following item from the Ferndale Enterprise is called to our attention by Geo. S. Davis, himself a former resident of Humboldt county, Calif., where he knew Mr. Coppini. Such a record as his herd of Jerseys made will make very interesting reading for Coos county dairymen whose herds consist principally of Jersey cattle:

John W. Coppini has just received, from the American Jersey Cattle Club, a Herd Improvement Registry Certificate showing the average production of his herd for the year 1929. The certificate shows the following figures: Average number of cows in the herd, 14.97; average number of cows in milk, 13.27; average milk production, 9450 pounds; average butterfat production, 567.80 pounds; average percentage of butterfat, 6.01.

In a letter accompanying the certificate Mr. Morley, secretary of the Club, extended Mr. Coppini congratulations, and also stated that this is the best thing Mr. Coppini has ever done for the Jersey breed. Mr. Copeland, head of the Register of Merit and Herd Improvement tests, states that this average is nearly 150 pounds higher than any herd yet reported by the Club, and he never heard even in cow testing associations' records of any to equal this one. He further states that a striking feature of these records is that only three cows in the herd were mature cows and nearly two-thirds of the herd were yearlings and two-year-olds, and were milked only twice a day during the whole year.

Mr. Coppini entered his herd in the herd test in connection with the Register of Merit test through the solicitation of the A. J. C. C. and it was under the latter test rules this test was conducted. A two days monthly test is made with the preliminary milking, each milking is separately tested and the average percentage constitutes the percentage of the cow for the month. The milk of every milking is accurately weighed and recorded during the whole period of test and a copy of the milk report is sent to the Club office in New York every month. The retest rules are: If a cow, according to her age exceeds a certain amount of butterfat during the two days' supervision, a retest must be taken within 10 days. Several of the cows met the retest requirement last spring and summer, thus being under supervision for 10 milks a month. The test is under the supervision of representatives of the University of California Agricultural College.

John naturally feels jubilant over his success because he states that it is higher than he even expected to reach, also states that there is only one cow in the herd that is not either a daughter or grand daughter of that great cow that died on his ranch just a year ago, Noble's Sayda Polo No. 307199, the cow he purchased in 1919 for $325.00 and was laughed at because of the "extravagant" price paid.

A Jersey Has Twin Calves

A Jersey cow owned by C. E. Ashby, who resides in the Silk creek district west of this city, is the proud mother of twin calves. Mr. Ashby, upon going to his barn one morning last week to see if the cow was fresh, found the calves perfectly formed and almost identical as to markings. Both calves are healthy and frisky young animals although slightly under weight. They weigh about 35 pounds each. This is declared an unusual occurrence but Mr. Ashby reports it is the second time his cows have presented twins. The first time was about 15 years ago.—Cottage Grove Sentinel.

Miss Cowgill to Return

Club leaders are happy to know that Miss Helen Cowgill will hold two meetings in Coos county. One will be Friday, February 21st, at the Junior High School, Myrtle Point, after school and the other will be held at the Flagstaff school Saturday, February 22nd, beginning at ten o'clock. In each of these cases the club leaders will have luncheon in the building where the meeting is held. It is hoped that every club leader will be reached through these two visits.

Describing His Architecture

Caller: "Let me see. I know most of your folks, but I have never met your brother, George. Which side of the house does he look like?"

The small boy in the family: "The side with the bay window."

Letter from Judge Thompson on County Over-Time

To Editor Sentinel:—There seems that there is a misunderstanding in the minds of the public concerning claims filed for double pay for over-time by certain individuals sometime employed by Coos county.

This matter was brought to my attention several months ago by Labor Commissioner, C. H. Gram, Salem, Oregon, at which time he appeared on behalf of the men and demanded settlement. He also called to my attention Section 6722, Oregon Laws, which reads as follows:

"Eight hours shall constitute a day's labor in all cases where the state, county, school district or any municipality, municipal corporation, or a subdivision is the employer of the labor, either directly or indirectly, by contract with another."

Section 6723 provides the penalty and reads as follows:

"All contractors, sub-contractors, or agents, or persons whatsoever in authority or in charge, who shall violate the provisions of this act as to the hours of employment of labor as here-in provided, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined in a sum of not less than fifty dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, or with imprisonment in the county jail for a period of not less than five days nor more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the Court."

In view of which I requested a report from the records of any over-time that had been worked by employees of Coos county within the past three years.

A check was made under the supervision of W. H. Wann, county auditor.

We found that during the years 1927 and 1928, which was under a previous administration, a great deal of over-time had been worked. The total amount still due employees for such work being approximately $12,000.00.

I wish the public to be assured that the practice was not carried on in 1929, nor have any of the claims yet been paid, and before paying such claims they will be submitted to the district attorney for his opinion as to whether or not Coos county and its officers have violated the statutes in permitting such over-time to be worked, and as to whether or not it should be paid at this time and by this court.

Thanking you for the space, I am, very truly yours, D. F. Thompson, County Judge.

Commending Harold Varney

Editor Sentinel: In the course of my professional duties, I have visited the county jail at Coquille. I am pleased to state that the gentleman in charge, Mr. Harold Varney, has shown me every courtesy. His attitude towards the men under his care is no way short of splendid. We who never come in contact with the law-enforcing machinery too often do not realize what an important place such a man fills. Frequently the future welfare as well as the present comfort of young men lie in his hands. It is no easy position to fill and carries with it few laurels. Surely the people of Coos county are fortunate in having such a man as Mr. Varney in charge of their jail, and a little show of appreciation never comes amiss. Think it over, fellow citizens.—A Coos County Resident.

THE NOONDAY THROG

Some sail along with arms like flails. Some drag along, with pace like snails. Some heads bow'd low, and others high. Some cheery go, while others sigh. In this I'm speaking of the men. But women folks are much the same. Not only arms, and smiles, and sighs, There's clattering heels, and coat that flies.

Again there's some that's lapped so tight

Around the body, what a sight. And seeming with a deathlike grip. They hold it there against their hip. But much the same is saint and sinner. They're all bent alike to get their dinner.

—Isabella Austin.
