Our meeting Tuesday evening was well attended and many educational things were found out. One thing especially was how the strawberry bore got into the plant and how to get rid of it and so on.

E. R. Peterson's talk was exceptionally interesting. He is a man who can readily talk on our Oregon woods and a man who notices nature and will teach you to do likewise when out on the open, even along our highways.

How many know who Victor Lemoine was? He was a man who did more to breed our regular plants and shrubs to a higher or better plant than any other, not even excepting Luther Burbank who brought in many novel, while Victor Lemoine didn't, as to record. True artist as he was, he dreamed of flowers, none of which were previously known. His unseen influence is everywhere in our gardens. Some of his recorded introductions are the double portulaca, double geranium, Martha Washington variety, Weigelia, Syringa or mock-orange, Deutzias, double lilac, world of peonies, phlox, double tuberous begonia.

How to Plant and Care for Ornamental Trees and Shrubs

In our climate, both evergreen and deciduous trees and shrubs can be successfully transplanted during the winter months. This applies, however, more particularly to plants dug from the open ground. Plants grown in pots, or established in boxes can be planted at any time during the year if they receive proper care.

Digging the Holes. In preparing the holes for planting, do not fail to make them larger than the root system of the plant. Always fill in with top soil. Be sure to make the soil friable before shoveling in.

Handling Balled Plants. At all times use both hands when handling balled plants, by placing one hand under the ball; with the other steady the plant by the stem. In filling in the hole around a balled tree, do not tramp on top of the ball, as it will break it, dislodging the fibrous roots and causing the plant to die. After the hole in which the balled tree is planted is partially filled, cut the cord at the top of the ball and turn down the burlap so that it will be completely buried when the remainder of the hole is filled in. After the hole is three-fourths filled with soil, water freely and then draw loose soil around the body of the tree, but under no consideration tramp it down. Do not remove the burlap from the ball (except as indicated above) as it will soon rot. Do not plant any after April 1st. The earlier the better.

Pruning Ornamentals. The tops of deciduous trees and shrubs should be pruned in proportion to the amount of roots lost in transplanting. This means with large trees, having a body of from two to four inches in diameter, to top them within ten feet of the ground and shorten all lateral branches to eight inches. Do not top Birch trees, although the lateral branches may be shortened in.

The Importance of Staking. Most deciduous trees should be firmly staked when planted, as this will prevent heavy winds from loosening them and insure a straight growth. In fastening the tree to the stake wrap some burlap around the body of the tree first so as to prevent chafing.

After Care. While of the greatest importance, proper planting is only the beginning. Trees may live even though neglected, but will fail to render the satisfaction and pleasure that is possible if well cared for. Never let trees get dry during the first summer. When you irrigate, see that they get a thorough soaking. This is vastly better than giving them a little water at a time. Keep the ground around your plants and trees thoroughly loose.

Aiding the Blind at U. of O.

The following letter from the president of the University Y. M. C. A. at Eugene, is in relation to so very worthy a cause that the Sentinel gives it space for reproduction in full:

The students of the University of Oregon, through the Y. M. C. A., are throwing themselves into a project which they will be unable to accomplish single handed—a project which they consider to be vital, significant and unselfish. They are asking the support of the service clubs of the state, and of other interested individuals.

There are a number of blind students on the campus—sightless young men groping in the dark for something which will enable them to better their condition and make possible their becoming independent, self-sufficient citizens. Their task is a hard one at best. The state provides each with a small sum of money for the purpose of hiring readers, but they find themselves handicapped by an utter lack of any reference books or literary works printed in Braille type which they can study as do other students.

The nearest Braille library is in California. We have set ourselves to the task of raising enough money to establish a small and compact Braille library here at Oregon. The cost of Braille volumes compares very favorably with the cost of regularly printed works and if we can purchase a reasonable number of standard reference works, we can establish the nucleus which will in time develop into an adequate library.

The University library has agreed to match $300 with another $300 to be raised by outside means. The students have been giving generously and various methods of raising money here are being planned. One student donated ten dollars of his school budget. It is refreshing to know that college students do have something on their minds more vital than sport squabbles and social life.

We think the blind students, less fortunate than we, need our help. The students are giving unselfishly and people who are aware of the need are contributing to make the drive a success. We do not ask for large bequests. If you can aid in some small measure, you will be doing a real and genuine service and one which will repay you, as it is repaying us, in the satisfaction that comes with accomplishing anything really worth while. Please mark any contributions "Braille Library Fund," care of University Y. M. C. A., Eugene, Oregon.

Christian Science Churches

"Substance" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, March 16.

The Golden Text was, "My God shall supply all your need according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus." (Phil. 4:19.)

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "The kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost. . . . Let us therefore follow after the things things wherewith one may edify another." (Rom. 14:17, 19.)

The Lesson-Sermon also included passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Things spiritual and eternal are substantial. Things material and temporal are insubstantial." (p. 335.)
