

OUT-OF-DOORS STUFF
By Lana Leneve

Not long ago I made the statement in this column that Capt. A. E. Burghduff was the best state game warden that Oregon ever had. It appears that a lot of sportsmen and some members of the Game Commission must be of the same opinion, as he has been favorably mentioned as our next state warden. At the present time he is engaged by the California Game Commission and it is doubtful if he would take the Oregon job. But being mentioned for it, is a compliment to his excellent work, while holding the wardenship for this state, a few years ago.

If the services of Burghduff could be obtained, sportsmen could rest easy knowing that a capable man was once again at the helm of game affairs.

Sportsmen through the purchase of hunting, angling and trapping licenses pay into the Game Commission over $400,000 each year. This money is used for wardens' salaries, the propagation of game and fish. Why should a warden be appointed that knows nothing concerning wildlife? Why should this vast amount of money be entrusted into the care of some one ignorant concerning the whole situation? Why should the sportsmen have to pay their good money to educate such a man as to the duties of the state warden's office? Why not choose an efficient man in the first place and do away with this costly schooling of a man who knows nothing about the work?

Why can't politics be kept out of game affairs and the sportsmen given a square deal for their money? It surely seems that something is wrong somewhere when a county as large as this receives only a small shipment of birds and about a tenth enough fish to stock our streams each year, in return for the hundreds of dollars sent in from here. In addition to this, it is becoming an annual event to stage a big row in the game commission, kick out the head warden and run in somebody else for the sportsmen to pay to educate.

If the early settlers of this country had been governed by game laws and taught conservation of our wild life, what a game paradise Coos county would be today, as well as all timbered districts of the entire state.

In the early days hide hunting was a profitable business and thousands upon thousands of elk and deer were slain and left to rot in the woods, just their hides being taken. Whole scow loads of elk hides have been taken down the Coquille river from the Bear Creek district.

Tales told concerning the slaughter of elk and deer are appalling. One old timer from the Bear Creek district tells of finding 86 slain elk, killed by hide hunters within a few days' time.

One entire herd of elk was exterminated by two hunters in the Brewster Valley country and not even their hides taken.

In Curry county, near White mountain, a herd of 25 elk were shot by one man and only the hams taken from one animal.

Three hundreds and fifty deer were killed on one hunting trip by two hunters, south of Eden ridge.

These are only a few incidents of the terrible slaughter of game.

At one time quail and ducks could be shot within the city limits of this town; elk and deer were killed within a short distance of here.

It is true that there are a great number of deer left but not one where there used to be hundreds and as for the elk there isn't one where there used to be thousands.

It makes a sportsman heartsick to think how this lordly beast was ruthlessly slaughtered, until the time came that nothing but bleached bones lay about his favorite stamping grounds, just grim reminders of the beautiful animals that were once so abundant.

One night last week, Jake Bohlander, who lives on Brummett Creek, in the Brewster Valley country, missed a couple of his cows. Taking a flashlight he went in search of the animals. A short distance from his house he spotted a pair of eyes. At first he thought it was one of his cows lying down, as the eyes were close to the ground. Upon approaching closer, the eyes, shining like twin balls of fire in the rays of the flashlight, disappeared for a moment.

Swinging the light about in a circle, Mr. Bohlander again brought them into range of the light, farther up on the hillside. This time he approached to within a short distance of the animal; in fact that he could see its entire body. Imagine his surprise when the light revealed to him a big cougar. Holding the light on the beast he shouted to his wife to bring his gun. She ran from the house with the weapon but in her haste neglected to bring a light of any sort and became confused in the darkness. Mr. Bohlander claims to have held the cougar for at least ten minutes in the rays of the light but just a few scant seconds before his wife reached him the big brute hit for the brush and disappeared. Mrs. Groat, who owns a fine cougar dog and lives in the valley, was telephoned to but the dog was sick, otherwise there would no doubt be a more fitting climax to this unusual happening.

It appears that in the last issue of this column that I had Governor Norblad tagged all wrong regarding the closing of the deer season on account of fire hazard. In a statement issued last week the Governor states that he will not close the season unless extraordinary conditions exist. He stated that as long as the woods were left open to tourists and berry-pickers that he saw no reason why seasoned woodsmen, as most deer hunters are, should be kept from them. The governor is to be congratulated upon asking such a view of the situation.

B. & P. W. Club Notes

The B. P. W. met Monday evening, Sept. 2, at K. P. Hall, the first meeting in their new home. They found that the Pythian Sisters had re-arranged the room, making it as pleasant as possible for their reception. Their efforts were so successful that all present were thoroughly comfortable and the club is extending the Sisters a vote of thanks for their thoughtfulness.

Though this was purely a business meeting but little business was transacted, the chief subject discussed being the yearly reception to be held at K. P. Hall, Monday evening, September 15. We hope to entertain that evening all residents of Coquille who are eligible to the B. P. W. and have not yet joined us. Business and professional women whether newcomers or those of longer residence, but not yet members, are cordially invited to meet with us, get acquainted and learn something of our accomplishments and aims. Our president, Leona Bryant, will tell you something of what we have done and what we hope to do. A short informal program will be presented and light refreshments served. Members please notice that the time of regular meetings has been changed to the first and third Mondays of each month, instead of the second and fourth and until further notice we meet at K. P. Hall.

In another column of the Sentinel will be found the notice of a nationwide contest for women, which is being held in co-operation with the Exposition of Women's Arts and Industries. Read the article and become a competitor.

Reservations Can Be Made Here For Air Transportation

Today the Coquille branch of the Oregon State Motor Association was appointed an agent for coastwise and transcontinental air travel. According to Miss Aileen Wilson, manager of the local branch, word has been received to this effect from J. E. Shelton, of Portland, manager of the state motor association. Authentic information may now be had and reservations may be made locally for travel over the Varney Air Lines and Boeing Air Transport lines extending from Portland to Chicago, via Boise, Salt Lake City and Omaha. Over the Pacific Air Transport coastwise system extending from Seattle to San Diego, via Portland, Oakland and Los Angeles. Seven hour service is offered to Salt Lake City from Portland and thirteen hour service to Chicago from Salt Lake City. One hour and a half service is offered from Portland to the Puget Sound section. Eleven hour coastwise service, Seattle to San Diego. This combination of air transportation fly nearly 20,000 miles daily. In the past it has been necessary for local people to write to some distant point for information regarding air travel and in most cases even then to the wrong places for information wished.

Eight Divorces Granted Tuesday

Tuesday, the record for divorces granted in one day was broken when eight decrees were issued in one day's session. Dan Cupid will have to get busy to repair such heavy inroads as this but he did fairly well by producing five marriage licenses on Saturday. Following is a list of the divorce cases in which decrees were made: R. A. Hutchinson vs. Katherine Hutchinson. Jake C. Hess vs. Leona C. Hess. S. F. Land vs. Hazel H. Land. Dasha Cooper Broughton vs. E. N. Broughton. Martha Epperson vs. Roland C. Epperson. Lola Elford vs. Homer Elford. Helen Henderson vs. Herbert Henderson. Sarah E. Munday vs. Samuel M. Munday. Courtesy, Price and Friendly Service combine to make Hart's House of Service a pleasant, profitable and progressive place to trade. Come and see it.
