A PATRIOTIC DUTY

President Hoover: "The American people are no less courageous and no less wise than the people of other nations. All other great nations of the world have been faced with even greater necessity during the past year. In order to preserve their national credit these countries have increased their taxes far more severely than our deficit demands of the American people."

"One of the first requirements to the accomplishment of the absolute necessity of a balanced budget is that the people and all their organizations should support and not obstruct the members of Congress in sound efforts to both reduce expenditures and adjust taxation."

"It must not be forgotten that the needs of the government are inseparable from the welfare of the people. Those most vitally concerned in recovery are the ones whose margins of savings are the smallest. They are affected by the depression more seriously than any others; ultimately they will pay the biggest price for any failure on our part of the government to take the necessary action at this time. We can overcome this national difficulty as we have overcome all our difficulties in the past by willingness to sacrifice and by the resolute unity of national action."

Earl C. Bronaugh, Jr., of Portland, is making a strong race for the republican nomination for attorney general of Oregon, and it is going to be no surprise to his friends if he has a majority of the votes next Friday.

Coos county received $2350 for relief of its unemployed out of the $84,441 contributed by state officials and employees during the past five months, according to figures released by the committee in charge of the collection and distribution of the fund. It is estimated that voluntary contributions by persons on the state payroll for unemployment relief during the past winter totalled approximately $125,000. In addition to more than $84,000 contributed through the committee of state employees thousands of dollars were contributed direct to local charities in the cities in which state departments and institutions are located. Contributions to the fund were made on the basis of one day's pay a month for the five month period.

More voters are registered in Oregon this year than ever before, exceeding by 26,818 the pre-primary registration of two years ago. Figures compiled by Secretary of State Hoss show that 425,564 persons have registered for the privilege of participating in the primary election. Of this number 294,177 are republicans and 121,387 are democrats. The balance is made up of a scattering of progressives, prohibitionists and others. Compared with the figures for 1930 the republican registration shows a gain of only 9986 or approximately three percent while the democrats show a gain of 18,644 or approximately 18 per cent.

An impressive reminder of where a sizeable chunk of the Oregon taxpayers' money goes was contained in a shipment of 12 bags filled with paid and cancelled bonds and bond coupons which State Treasurer Holman received this week from the state's fiscal agency in New York. The cancelled paper represented bond and interest payments totalling $2,608,983.47 made by the state on April 1 through the Chase National Bank on obligations falling due at that time.

A woman school teacher can not be fired from her job simply because she marries during the term of her employment, even though her contract contains a clause specifically forbidding her marriage, Attorney General Van Winkle has held. In an opinion to C. A. Howard, state superintendent of public instruction the attorney general points out that the courts have held "that a district school board does not have authority to add to a teachers' contract of employment other provisions as to the term or condition of service beyond those found in the statutes defining the powers of the board and the dismissal of a teacher because of becoming married is an arbitrary and capricious act in violation of the statutes."

Toutist traffic into Oregon this year to date has been heavier than for a similar period last year. A total of 13,854 non-resident automobiles registered in Oregon during the first four months this year compared to an even 13,000 for the first four months of 1931. As usual more than half of these out-of-state cars carried California license plates while one-third of the total were Washington cars, leaving less than one-sixth of the non-resident registration for the more distant states.

Danger of an invasion of Oregon forests by the hemlock looper was pointed out by F. P. Keen, Portland entomologist, in a conference with wardens and inspectors of the state forestry department here this week. The pest has proven a serious menace to Washington forests the past two years, destroying large areas of fir, spruce and hemlock timber. Experiments in Washington have proven that the epidemic can be controlled through dusting from airplanes.

Higher fees and smaller loads for commercial trucks and buses is proposed by the Highway Protective Association, Oswald West, president, in a proposed initiative measure on which Attorney General Van Winkle is now preparing a ballot title preliminary to its circulation for signatures. The measure also proposes that the highway commission make a study of the nature and extent of damages done to the highways by different classes of vehicles. This information will be reported to the governor and passed on to the legislature for use in readjusting the schedule of automobile license fees.

Six hundred and fifty men and women interested in the welfare of children gathered at the capitol last week in Oregon's first conference on child health and protection. The conference here grew out of a national conference at the White House in Washington, D. C. Aims and ideals set up by the state conference are to be passed on into county conferences, with 17 counties already organized for this purpose. Out of it, it is expected, will come a better understanding of the needs of children and more adequate provision to meet those needs in the home, the school, the church—more playgrounds properly supervised, more adequate hospitalization, and more attention generally to the mental, physical, spiritual problems of the child.

Gasoline sales in Oregon for March were 2,720,887 gallons greater than for March, 1931, according to Secretary of State Hoss. While February sales were nearly 1,000,000 gallons short of those for February, 1931, sales for the year to date are approximately 2,000,000 gallons ahead of those for the first three months of last year, which does not sound very much like any depression among the motorists.

News Notes From Powers

The Powers Woman's Club elected officers Wednesday, Mrs. T. Zimmerman being elected president, Mrs. Allan Rolfe, secretary and Mrs. Clarence Moe, treasurer. Mrs. F. A. Stewart was chairman of the program for the afternoon and presented the following program: "Mother's Day," Hazel Lewis; "Little Mother of Mine," by Mrs. Chas. Taylor; "My Sweetheart," Bobbie Lewis; "When Mother is Away," Max Watson, and a little play by the third grade under the direction of Florence Stewart, the teacher. Mrs. Geo. Stewart and Mrs. Allan Rolfe were hostesses for the social hour and served a lovely lunch.

Play Day was inaugurated in the Powers school Friday, with the crowning of little Cora Fry of the kindergarten as May Queen, followed by drills, winding of the May pole and athletic events. The following score was made in the different events: seventh grade, 69 points; fourth, 68; fifth, 53; eighth, 45; and third, 19.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Jess Walker, a daughter, at the Mast hospital.

This is a busy season in Powers with everyone planting garden and the social life of school, lodges and clubs that is keeping every one busy and happy.

The old Jim Hayes house, an old landmark, burned to the ground Monday morning.

R. A. Easton's Weekly Letter

Thirty-two thousand, more or less, people are killed every year in automobile accidents in the United States. And while these killings are causing the "best minds" to work over time to lessen this score of automobile slaughters, these thinkers do not seem to get anywhere in the lessening of the killings.

A happy thought came to me which solves this killing problem completely, according to the arguments of the wets. For so far there is no cutting out of these car murders and slaughters; instead there is an upward increase. The remedy is simple. Cut out all rules and regulations of the road and car equipment. Let every car owner and driver run his machine according to his own sweet will, unimpeded by stop signs or signal lights. Under the rules, regulations and laws governing automobile and traffic, and with policemen on many corners and traveling the highway, the road death list is growing and the bruised and lamed are increasing in numbers in spite of laws and enforcement officers. What is the use of all these automobile laws and traffic cops any way?

The things to do is to have a great parade of these traffic law abolishers, and straggling at their heels the 32,000 skeletons of the annual road dead killed by too much law. That would be a spectacular parade against law and law enforcement.

Thinks of it, 32,000 patriotic traffic dead in a single year and the thousands and tens of thousands of patriotic traffic cripples without bonus or pension carrying banners declaring to the world that we are what we are, skeletons and cripples, because of too much safety law.

I would recommend the above parade as the first division in Mayor Jimmie Walker's proposed "beer parade" for New York City's "finest." Think of it, New York City's "finest" criminal element parading for their "rights," led by his honor, the Mayor, astride the Tammany tiger.

Some times the depraved depravity of men's minds almost scares me. Then the record of Jonah and his gourd, causes me to remember that too many of us are asking the Almighty to put in too much time raising gourds, when we know that it takes the centuries of the years to put the toughened fiber into ship timbers.

R. A. Easton.

Brewster Valley

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Krewson and two children, Donna and Glade, were Sunday visitors at the home of Lee Mast, of McKinley.

Mrs. Albert Christensen and Mrs. Oscar Durrell were in Marshfield Saturday transacting business.

Mr. and Mrs. Elwin Alford were in Coquille Monday where Mrs. Alford received medical attention.

L. H. Hazard, of Coquille, is building a new summer cottage in the valley. He has had several men at work and the building is nearly completed.

The name of Herbert Hoover will not appear on the Republican ballot in Oregon next Friday, but voters need not vote for La France, the only candidate for president on the ballot. It's easy to write Hoover's name in and he should have a good majority in Oregon.

VOTE No. 59 A, N. GOULD For County Surveyor

Is a registered Engineer. Practiced Surveying and Engineering in Coos County for 29 years. Was appointed by S. B. Cathart, as Deputy County Surveyor, in 90. Was elected County Surveyor in 1908, and served in that capacity until 1914. During this period, had entire charge of surveying and construction of all county roads in the county, there being no roadmaster appointed by the Court during this period. Acted as engineer, and had charge of all the construction of the two largest drainage districts in the County. Served for a number of years as City Engineer of Coquille, and had charge of the Survey and construction of Coquille's fine large storage reservoir which was constructed in 1923, at a cost of $35,000.00.

The time has come for the most rigid economy in all the branches of our County Government, and I believe that every County officer should practice, as well as talk this policy.
